The Spectator By C.C. Hartley

Harry Spyker Was Friend of Hilltop Y

After 40 years of service, Harry Spyker has retired as secretary of the Columbus Metropolitan YMCA. Many a Hilltopper will recall his friendship for years to come.

The Hilltop Branch YMCA has a real friend in Mr. Spyker. Back nearly two years ago when local men were looking for the means to establish some type of a youth program on the Hilltop they presented their case to Mr. Spyker, who was receptive to our plan for an enlargement of the Y program to include a branch on the Hilltop. Since that time he has been a real friend to the local organization.

At the dinner given in his honor last Friday one note stands out. One of the speakers pointed out that the Y is not an organization that deals with just the type that comes before the juvenile court, nor is it established just to serve underprivileged children. It has a real job in being able to provide additional character training for boys and girls who already have fine backgrounds.

Mr. Spyker, in relating some of his experiences and difficulties in 40 years of administration work in the metropolitan Y, said, "I wouldn't give a nickel for a job that didn't present a challenge."

Those who have the vision and foresight to carry on with their support of the Hilltop Y will one day be able to look back and see the hurdles that have been jumped here and be proud of the challenge that today's problems present.

The Hilltop joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Spyker many years of contentment and happiness.

Youngsters' Thoughts Are Turning To Summer and Wide-Open Spaces

With the Memorial Day holiday past and the closing of schools only a week away, the thoughts of most of the younger set are turning to the outdoors and the activities of the long summer months.

To some of the youngsters, summertime will mean one long sojourn in the Hilltop Swimming Pool. Others will scatter to vacation spots in the Great Lakes, some will attend boys' or girls' camps, many will take part-time jobs to gain experience and a number of others will continue with their studies at summer sessions of various schools.

Camping seems to be in the limelight for the immediate future. Boy Scouts will head for Camp Lazarus for the first of eight camp periods beginning June 12. A camp for girls of Junior High School age will be held June 12-19. The YMCA will open Camp Alfred L. Willson for the first of five two-week sessions on June 17.

Camp Near Bellefontaine

Camp Willson is located on Lake Mac-O-Chee near Bellefontaine. About 140 boys can be accomodated at each of the five sessions.

A qualified staff of counsellors and program leaders will direct all kinds of camping activities. Instruction will be offered in arts, crafts, hobbies, sports, games, nature lore, woodcraft, Indian lore, swimming, diving, life saving, canoeing, sailing, boating, fishing and many other interests.

Hikes and trips will be offered to nearby spots of natural and historic interest, including such places as the Ohio Caverns, Mac-O-Chee Castles, Black Lake, Miami River Park, Zane Caverns, fish hatcheries and Rush Lake.

A few vacancies remain in some of the periods. For further information parents or boys may call at the Boys Branch YMCA, 40 W. Long-st or telephone AD. 1131.

Camp Periods Open Sunday

Camp Lazarus for Scouts will open its weekly camp periods at 1:30 p. m. each Sunday through July 31. Each period will close at about 2 p. m. Saturday, im-

Restauranteur Gets Lots of Fun From Free Steak Dinners

A steak dinner always is a tasty treat, but when it's for free, it's all the sweeter.

Already a number of Hilltoppers, their copy of The Hilltop Record in hand, have called at the Camp 40 Restaurant, 715 W. Broad-st, to claim their free steak dinner after their names had appeared in the restaurant's Thursday advertisement.

The owner and operator of the restaurant, S. Abrams, says he gets a lot of fun out of the look of incredulous wonder on the faces of the winners.

Mr. Abrams specializes in pan-fried steaks and chops. His dining room is available for church, club, social or business meetings and he can serve up to 80 persons at one time.

WHO'S YOUR NOMINEE?

Rose Festival Will Honor Hilltop's 'Father of Year'

The Hilltop is going to select its "Father of the Year" this week-end.

The man selected will be honored, along with representative fathers from other Columbus communities, at a special ceremony opening the three-day Columbus Festival of Roses Friday, June 10.

Nominations for the "Hilltop Father of the Year" are now open. The deadline for nominations is 9 a. m. Saturday.

They may be sent either to The Hilltop Record's office or to M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, 335 Guernsey-av, president of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club. The selection will be made by the Kiwanis Club and the chosen father will be sponsored at the Rose Festival by the Record.

Dads To Get Bouquets

Mayor James A. Rhodes said a floral tribute will be paid to the representative community fathers in the form of huge rose bouquets during a special 1½-hour program. It will be held from 7:30 to 9 p. m.

The "Community Dad" theme was suggested by the mayor because, he said, of the nearness of Father's Day (June 19) and "because of the basic importance of good fathers to a community and, therefore, to a city."

Mayor Rhodes officially proclaimed the three-day exposition the "Columbus Festival of Roses." He said the big floral show inaugurated this year will be an annual affair for the summer season.

Cooperating in the show are the Columbus Allied Florists, Columbus Landscape Association and the Columbus Rose Society. Individual bouquets will also be presented by the Allied Florists.

In overall charge of the festival is Ray S. Dietz, superintendent of the City Division of Parks and Forestry. He said he could prom-

'49 Cowboy Nine Forced to Settle For Second Place

By Dave Miller

West High's baseballers captured undisputed second place in the 1949 City League baseball race, losing out on their slim title chance the final day of the season.

The Cowboys suffered their third loss in 12 starts in this year's finale of the season, dropping a 5 to 2 verdict to South's third-place Bulldogs, at South, on Tuesday.

The Cowboys therefore own a 14-won, four-lost overall record for the year's competition.

Eight seniors made their final bow in their high school careers Tuesday. They include, Jack Pickens, Dick Culbertson, Bob Birle, Jim Burke, Ed Easterly, Dick Kirk, Jim Hamrick and Jerry Solinger.

In the South loss, Phil Young, West's moundsman, turned in his usual fine brand of ball, allowing only six hits. For the first time this year, however, his mates couldn't back him up with any hits, collecting only a trio in the entire ball game.

Sluggers Hand-cuffed

The usual West sluggers were held down tightly by South's mound ace, Paul Ebert, who was hit very hard by the same West team in the two teams' first meeting last month. It was a different story Tuesday as the Cowboys could get only singles, one each by Dick Culbertson, Morris Dobbs and Pinchhitter Tommy Wright. In only one other game this season were the Cowboys' bats tamed to just three hits. That was against Marion Harding in the district tournament.

Both teams were runless for the opening three rounds, but the locals took the hop on the score with a tally in their half of the fourth. The Bulldogs came back with a duo in their half of the same frame, and sewed the ball game up in the next frame with three more runs. West's second run came in the sixth.

The Cowboys scored first in the fourth frame when Culbertson met Ebert's first pitch for a line single to center for the first Cowboy hit of the game. Kirk then hit a hopper to Thirdbaseman Dick Wagner, who pulled Dick Ruh off the bag at first, and Kirk attempted second when Ruh finally dropped the pellet. However, the big outfielder was out at second, Ruh to Secondsacker Ed Linsey.

Culbertson then came home from third on Dobbs' grounder to third.

South Comes Back

The Bulldogs came back fast in the fourth inning to go ahead with two tallies. Chris Treneff led off with a double to right. It normally would have been a single, but the ball took a high bounce over Jerry Solinger's head.

Treneff moved to third while Birle was throwing out Ruh. However, South took the lead when the right-hand hitting Clyde Trumbull smacked a four-master over the right field fence. From then on, the Cowboys never led.

South sewed up matters in

Galion Pastor Kiwanis Week Dinner Speaker

Rev. Philip Auer

The All-Kiwanis Week dinner meeting will be held Thursday, June 23, at the Hillcrest Baptist Church, according to M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, president of the Hilltop club.

Speaker for the evening will be Rev. Philip E. Auer, pastor of the Peace Lutheran Church, Galion. Rev. Auer is a past governor of the Ohio Kiwanis District and an international trustee and international vice-president of Kiwanis International.

A graduate of Capital University Seminary in 1921, Rev. Auer served a pastorate in Sharon, Pa., before going to his present pulpit 25 years ago. He has been active over the years in youth work, Red Cross and Boy Scouts in addition to his Kiwanis activities.

Ladies' night will be observed for the dinner meeting. Rev. Auer will induct new Hilltop Club members during the after-dinner activities.

Nelson Firm Enters Field Of Appliances

The Nelson Appliance Co., 2289 W. Broad-st, is announcing its grand opening Friday and Saturday. The firm, which came to the Hilltop in October, 1946, as an appliance service company, has expanded its facilities to include a complete line of household appliances.

The authorized dealer for Norge, Crosley, Sunbeam, L & H., and Arvin, the Nelson Appliance Co. will have on display the latest model refrigerators, ranges, radio, washers and numerous small appliances.

The firm was founded by Jerry Nelson in 1945 at its former address, 145 N. Front-st. Since Mr. Nelson's death in April, 1948, work has been carried on by Mrs. Margaret Nelson, and her son, Robert, co-owners.

Manager of the store is H. L. Dotson, who has worked for the Nelsons since 1945.

Mr. Dotson announced that the store will continue its service and repair work.

Regular store hours are from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Monday the store will close at 6 p. m., and on Wednesday at noon.

New Y Head Hails Hilltop Achievements

Chalmer J. Dyer, new executive secretary of the Columbus YMCA, took over his new job yesterday and lost no time in telling the rest of Columbus that it will be one of his principal missions to see that other communities in the city emulate the Hilltop in the establishment of branch Y's.

Mr. Dyer declared: "The new Hilltop Y is an example of community progress that I hope to see duplicated in other sections of Columbus and in rural areas of the county."

He pointed out that the Hilltop teen-agers' club was the spark which aroused the interest of Hilltop residents into taking steps to obtain their own community Y.

Branch Y work is one of Mr. Dyer's favorite activities. He has been with the YMCA for 32 years and comes to Columbus after four years in Chicago, 16 in Toledo and 12 in Hamilton, in that order. He succeeds Harry A. Spyker, who has retired after 41 years' service.

Meanwhile, the Hilltop Y's membership campaign was picking up speed again after the Memorial Day holiday lull. The campaign's goal is to raise $3000 in membership fees to agument the annual $7500 Community Chest appropriation for operating expenses.

Jerry Spears, Sr., chairman of the campaign, reported today that $1877 has been turned in by campaign workers to date for memberships and the Hilltop Y's building fund. Any contribution in excess of the $5 membership fee is placed in the building fund, he explained. No breakdown between the membership fund and the building fund will be available for several days, he said.

Fewer than 25 per cent of the volunteer workers conducting the campaign have reported so far, according to Averille Thorn, Y secretary. He urged those who have not reported to do so at the earliest possible time.

TO HONOR GRADUATES

Glenwood Methodist Church will honor its college and high school graduates at a banquet on Monday evening, June 6. Rev. Sydney C. G. Everson, pastor of Riverside Methodist Church, will be the speaker and Ned Moore will be toastmaster. Martha Brown and Dennen Leach will furnish the music for the program.

Hilltop Will Field Two Teams in Legion League

The triumvirate of Burke, Sweeney & Burke is mighty busy these days forging a couple of strong ball clubs to represent the Hilltop in the American Legion League.

This year, as a departure from previous years, Camp Chase Post and the Beasley-Grove Co. are co-sponsoring two entries in the Legion League. Arthur (Tim) Sweeney will coach both teams with Ray Burke as his assistant. Ray will handle the second team during its games and Tim will handle the first team.

Manager of both teams and a Legion member who is one of the moving spirits behind Camp Chase Post's baseball program is Homer J. Burke, Jr., 509 S. Harris-av. Homer and Ray are brothers.

Drawing from both the public and parochial schools of the Hilltop and West Side, Burke, Sweeney & Burke expect to field two exceptionally strong teams for the summer's play. The "A" team will be the "varsity" with the "B" team being cast in the role of "reserves."

In addition to their Legion League competition, members of both teams will be used to form both intermediate and senior Knothole teams. The personnel of the two teams will not necessarily be the same as the A and B Legion teams because of different eligibility requirements.

The boys will be entered in both leagues, Homer Burke said, in order that they might be given more opportunity to play during the summer months. All the boys registered for Legion baseball have been practicing regularly at the Westgate Park diamonds and hope to be in top shape for their opener.

The season is scheduled to get under way June 12.

Camp Chase Post, through Dewey Stout, commander, and the Beasley-Grove Co., through Neil Grove, have put up a fund of approximately $450 to finance the purchase of uniforms and equipment to outfit the two Legion League teams this year.

FOE To Install Officers Monday

Aguila Aerie of Eagles will hold installation ceremonies Monday, for new officers with Past Presidents Ralph Lanigan, Loren L. Smith and Alva Nafzger as installing officers.

Herman W. Wolfe is the new president; Dr. Guy S. Hulett, junior past president, and Robert Doughty, vice-president. Other new officers are: William Ollp, chaplain; Clyde W. Ogdin, secretary; Leo Clark, treasurer; Dr. Arthur Hulett, conductor; William Sands, inside guard; C. W. Slane, outside guard; and Guy H. Peden, trustee for three-year term.

A reception for the new officers and their wives will be held after the installation ceremonies.

Mrs. Mary McVay Is Surprised With Stork Shower At Fern Circle Meeting, May 27

Fern Circle of Robert Morris Chapter No. 372, Order of the Eastern Star, met at the home of Mrs. Ethel Galloway, 191 Haldy-av, on Friday, May 27. Mrs. Lillian Wilcox was assisting hostess.

Following the completion of arrangements for the festival to be held June 28, at West Gate Temple, a social hour was held. The "Queen for a Day" radio program was reproduced with the president, Mrs. Beatrice Corcoran, acting as mistress of ceremonies.

Mrs. Mary Ann McVay was elected "Queen for a Day" and was surprised with a stork shower in her honor. A royal purple and gold cake was presented to her, plus a station wagon filled with gifts. Refreshments were served.

Those present were Fern Johnson, worthy matron, Alice Goodall, Thelma Doran, Martha Hegenberger, Marie Payton, Etta Timms, Ethel Cranford, Jean Ware, Mary Ann McVay, Jane Jones, Emma Cunningham, Ethel Galloway and Lillian Wilcox.

Miss Virginia Fladt To Marry Mr. James Hamilton June 12

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Virginia Elizabeth Fladt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fladt, 163 S. Ogden-av, is being announced by her parents.

Miss Fladt will become the bride of James Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton, 489 Nashoba-av, on June 12, at 7:30 p. m. at the Zion Lutheran Church.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Central High School and is an employe of the John Hancock Insurance Co. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of West High School and is employed as a Railway Mail Clerk.

Miss Mary L. Friend Is New Bride-To-Be

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Earl Friend, Sr., 70 N. Powell-av, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Mr. Donald Lewis Fritz, son of Rev. and Mrs. Walter John Fritz of Port Huron, Mich.

Miss Friend graduated from West High School and attended Capital University, where she became a member of Kappa Sigma Theta sorority. At present she is associated with the Ohio State Life Insurance Co.

Mr. Fritz was graduated from Capital University, where he became a member of Kappa Sigma Upsilon fraternity. He has a Bachelor of Arts degree in speech, and at present is attending the Capital University Seminary. He also is a radio announcer for WHKC.

No definite date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis To Attend Son's Graduation Rites

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Davis, 73 S. Burgess-av, will leave June 13, for Louisville, where their son, Robert, will graduate from medical school at the University of Louisville.

Robert, his wife, and two daughters, will return to Columbus to their new home at 34 S. Richardson-av, after his graduation.

Mr. Davis will begin his internship at White Cross Hospital.

The principles of the card game of poker are almost as ancient as playing cards themselves.

Glenwood Methodist Is Scene of Lowrie-Greenler Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Greenler

Married at Glenwood Methodist Church, Friday, May 27 were Miss Dorothy Lowrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lowrie, 593 S. Hague-av and Alfred M. Greenler, Jr., 632 S. Eureka-av.

Carrying a bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid, the bride was attired in a gown of white satin, styled with long sleeves, and long circular train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion.

Attending the bride were Miss Elaine Bale, bridesmaid, who wore a formal gown fashioned in aqua. The maid of honor, Mrs. Eileen Kern, wore a similar gown in yellow. Best man was Mr. John Kern.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Greenler are graduates of West High School. Mrs. Greenler is an employe of the State Health Department and Mr. Greenler is employed by the Post Office.

The new couple will reside temporarily at the home of the bride.

Mrs. Eisle and Miss Elder Visit Donn Eisle at June Week Annapolis Ceremony

By Myron T. Seifert

Mary Nell Elder, 110 Southampton-av, and Mrs. Herman Eisle, 158 Algonquin-av, were June week guests of Midshipman Donn F. Eisle last weekend at Annapolis.

Mrs. Eisle visited with her son before his scheduled departure on an extended cruise on the USS Missouri, Saturday. His itinerary will include visits to England and Cuba. The cruise will last seven weeks. His next leave will extend from Aug. 13 to Sept. 22.

A little over a year ago, Donn, a June, 1948, graduate of West High, was recipient of the appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. Rep. John Vorys, who recommended the appointment, says he has learned that Eisle's first-year record at Annapolis shows that the Hilltop boy's nomination was well warranted.

Donn competed with 41 boys in winning the appointment, scoring the highest marks among the central Ohioans who took the examination. The appointment carries a full four-year course of study, followed by four years of naval service.

Donn was an outstanding student in his high school days, earning a scholastic record of 3.45 while participating in numerous school activities. He won a reserve letter in track and a varsity letter in cross-country and was on the varsity track squad.

Filipino Girl Likes Hilltop, But Misses Parents in Hawaii

Nearly 4,000 miles from home, four-year-old LaVerne Mae Rhoads, pretty Filipino baby, said she liked "the Hilltop lots."

LaVerne is in the states visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rhoads, of Xenia, and her great uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hickman, 461 S. Harris-av.

Best part of all, little LaVerne likes playing with Brenda Lou and Judy Lee Hornsby, small daughters of Mrs. Delmar Hornsby, who lives with her mother at the Harris-av address.

LaVerne came to Ohio from Honolulu where she lives with her father, Laurence Rhoads, and her mother, a Filipino. She is looking forward to her father's arrival in June, when he will take LaVerne home again.

This is LaVerne's second trip across the ocean. She says she isn't homesick, but her great-aunt admitted a few tears fell when she talked to her Mother and Dad over the long distance telephone.

Only four, the little girl uses perfect English. She has long brown curls and big brown eyes. Her parents were married when Mr. Rhoads was stationed in Hawaii during the war.

Miraculous Medal Novenas to Begin Monday Morning

A new series of Miraculous Medal Novenas in honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary will begin at St. Mary Magdalene Church on Monday. Rev. Owen McConville C. M., and Rev. Richard Connelly will preach the sermons.

The Novenas are conducted by the people and begin with Mass each Monday at 8:30 a. m. Other exercises are held at 10 a. m., 3 p. m. and 4 p. m. Beginning at 5:15 p. m. services are held every 45 minutes the last exercise beginning at 9 p. m.

St. Mary Magdalene Church is located on Binns-blvd one block north of Sullivant-av.

'49 Cowboy Nine is Forced To Settle for Second Place

the fifth when, after Bob Hewitt had grounded out, Ebert singled to right, and the latter advanced to second on Ray Dreher's hit past Birle into right field. Bill Camp, South's all-round athlete, iced the fray by punching a drive again over the right field barrier.

West's final run of the season came in the sixth when, with two down, Wagner threw Kirk's grounder over Ruh's head for a two-base error. Dobbs then got his second RBI of the tile by singling past First Baseman Ruh.

Ah, Well . . .

The Cowboys, though disheartened, took the loss a little better when they learned that Linden beat North, 5-2. Even if the Cowboys had won Tuesday, Linden was champion of the City League. However, the loss by the locals puts them two games out of first place instead of the possible one.

The line score:

West	000 101 0	2	3	0
South	000 230 x	5	6	3

Young and Nafzger; Ebert and Treneff.

Don Nafzger, catcher for the Cowboys, has a much deeper voice now. He was hit in the throat by a foul tip in the fourth inning . . . Jack Pickens, West's speedy shortstop, is going to play this season at second base in the American Legion for Cohagen Hardware, a South Side establishment . . . Dick Kirk will probably play with Reynoldsburg of the Heart of Ohio League.

Morris Dobbs, West's sophomore outfielder, has in uncle, Chuck Kearney, who pitches for the Reynoldsburg team . . . Tom Wright, junior outfielder, was the happiest man in the locker rooms after the game, getting his first hit of the season, a single in a pinch-hitter's role in the Cowboys' seventh . . . Of the starting lineup for the South game, four of the nine will be back for next year's team. They are Don Nafzger, Morris Dobbs and Jack Winnestaffer.

Bill Thrush, brother of Jack, and regular at third base for the Cowboys the earlier part of the year until he broke his ankle, said at the Hilltop Kiwanis dinner that he would be able to play third base again this summer . . . Winnestaffer, a regular first baseman, has handled the hot corner most of the season, with Dave Caton, Ed Easterly and Jim Burke giving him a fight for it.

The managers of the team, who should be commended for their fine job, are Bob Glassburn, Bob Brooks, Don Trimmer, Joe Behling and Bryon Ridenour . . . Behling gives the opposing pitchers quite a hard way to go with his constant line of chatter . . . The most hits the Cowboys collected this season were in the Aquinas game on Apr. 28 when they pounded out 13 . . . Also in that same game they did something that they did only twice this year —they played flawless ball . . . The other game was Tuesday's South game.

Three in Family Recovering From Traffic Injuries

Two sisters and a brother were on the road to recovery this week after two serious auto accidents, one May 7 and the other Apr. 26.

The two sisters, Grace E. Smith, fifth grade teacher at John Burroughs School, and Marguerite Smith, were victims of an auto accident May 7, while enroute to visit their brother, A. H. Smith, 721 Wiltshire-rd, who was hospitalized in Perrysburg Community Hospital following an auto collision Apr. 26.

Grace Smith suffered three fractured ribs and bruises. Kathleen suffered two crushed vertebra and was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital, where she was placed in a cast, which she will wear for most of the summer.

Both the sisters are at home at 558 Woodbury-av.

DEATHS

E. C. Cody

Funeral services were held Tuesday in St. Aloysius Church for E. C. Cody, 86, father of Robert Cody, 764 Racine-av, who died in Marysville.

Mr. Cody disappeared May 26, from the home of his brother, Richard Cody, of Marysville. His body was found by a relative May 28, partly submerged in Mill Creek. Relatives said death was not attributed to drowning, but to a heart attack or a fall down an eight foot embankment.

Mr. Cody was one-time Union County Democratic Chairman and was a delegate to the 1920 Democratic National Convention. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Lillian Coleman, Anne and Mary Cody, both of Detroit; four sons, Ralph E. of Worthington; Robert M. of 764 Racine-av; Paul of Linworth, and Albert of Detroit; three brothers, Richard Emmett of Columbus and James Cody; and two sisters, Mrs. Anastasia Grigsby and Mrs. Catherine Macken of Marysville.

Loretta Tarpy

Private funeral services were held this morning for Miss Loretta Tarpy, 58-year-old Columbus school teacher, who died at her home, 45 N. Hague-av, May 31.

Dr. Robert A. Evans, coroner, returned a verdict of suicide by carbon monoxide fumes. Officials at Bellows Avenue Elementary School, where Miss Tarpy was employed for more than 20 years, said she was suffering from a nervous disorder and had not taught for the past four weeks.

Surviving are four nephews, Thomas M. Tarpy, 580 Salisbury-rd, D. J. Tarpy, 30 N. Powell-av, David J. Tarpy, 2751 Carol-av, and James Tarpy of near Sunbury; and two nieces, Mrs. Lucille Harris and Mrs. Helen Dittoe of 30 N. Powell-av.

Ernest A. Gilbert

Funeral services for Ernest A. Gilbert, 49, of 128 Brehl-av, railroad conductor who was killed May 30 in a motorcycle accident near Montgomery, W. Va., were held at 2:30 p. m. today at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home.

Rev. Herbert Saxman officiated. Burial was in Sunset Cemetery.

Mrs. Brantley W. Gray

Mrs. Emma May Gray, 63, of 304 West Park-av, died yesterday in Mt. Carmel Hospital. She was a member of West Park Methodist Church.

Surviving are her husband, Brantley W. Gray; four daughters, Mrs. Helen McGuire, Dorothy Gray, Mrs. Ruth Miller and Mrs. Mary Kuhn, all of Columbus; six grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Mary Sarber of Canal Winchester, and a brother, Charley Price, of Long Bottom, O.

Friends may call at the Wylie S. Shroyer Funeral Home, where services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. Rev. William M. George will officiate.

Burial will be in Sunset Cemetery.

PTA Notes

The John Burroughs PTA will entertain the 6A graduating class with a party Tuesday, June 7. The following committees are making the arrangements: Mrs. Fred Dinsch, chairman; Mrs. W. J. Noltemeyer, co-chairman; Mrs. H. C. Booth, program chairman, assisted by Mrs. Verghn Horger; Mrs. Howard Hartranft, refreshments, and Mrs. Edward Bradfute, favors. The following 6A pupils' mothers are also serving on the committees: Mrs. Bostic, Mrs. Chakeres, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Reber, Mrs. Mack.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright, Grove City, daughter, May 28 in St. Ann's Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Compton, 468 S. Terrace-av, daughter, May 31.

Add Magic to your Menus
with Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise

Salad Sorcery
There is just no match for the full-bodied richness, the luscious double-whipped smoothness, of Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise on salads. Try it with your favorite tomato aspic salad and see! And for fruit salads—COTTAGE CHEESE-NUT MAYONNAISE adds a wonderful flavor flourish. Just blend ½ cup cottage cheese with 1 cup Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise and ½ cup broken nut meats. So easy to make—so delicious too!

Top Trick for Sauces
The creamy goodness of Real Mayonnaise is ideal in hot sauces for vegetables. For POTPOURRI SAUCE—put ½ c. Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise in top of double boiler. Stir in 6 tbs. milk. Add following chopped ingredients: 2 tbs. each of parsley, green pepper, onion; 1 tbs. pimiento; 2 hard-cooked eggs. Heat thoroughly; and serve.
Wonder Spread for Bread
It spreads so smoothly, so evenly, even on the thinnest bread! Adds such a fine festive flavor to the simplest lunch or picnic sandwiches. You just can't beat Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise—it's truly a super spread. No wonder children like it so much! And Real Mayonnaise is so rich in good food value too!

Magic for Thrifty Baking
½ cup Real Mayonnaise will replace shortening and one egg in your pet recipe for corn muffins or shortcake. Marvelous flavor touch too!
Sensation in Soups
Serve this CHERRY SOUP chilled, or hot—but be sure to serve it temptingly seasoned with Hellmann's! Set aside ¼ cup red cherries for garnish. Put balance of can in saucepan with ⅓ c. water, ½ c. sugar, ½ tsp. salt, 1-inch stick cinnamon, small strip lemon rind. Boil quickly 8 min. Rub cooked cherries through fine sieve. Stir 2 tbs. water into 1 tbs. cornstarch and add to cherry purée. Add cherries for garnish, simmer 4 min., stirring frequently. Top with ¼ cup Real Mayonnaise folded into ½ c. whipped cream. (Serves 6)
Here are more "magic touches"!

Try them all—and see for yourself how Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise adds flavor magic to dozens of different foods.
No wonder! It's so flavor-rich with good things . . . freshly broken eggs, added egg yolks, "Fresh-Press" salad oil, mild vinegar, and spices.
Dress Up Leftover Vegetables with its golden goodness. Breaded carrots, or cauliflower, sautéed in Real Mayonnaise make a crusty treat.
Transform Yesterday's Mashed Potatoes by whipping them again with Hellmann's, and browning them in the oven.
Add Zest to Croquettes by using it as a binder. Efficient! Delicious!
Perk Up Hamburgers by spreading them with Hellmann's before you broil them. A gourmet touch!
Flavor-Toast Buns and Rolls! Cut them, spread with Real Mayonnaise, pop under broiler. In a few minutes they're golden brown, flavor-rich!
And of course—there's endless salad magic in Real Mayonnaise. Wonderful "as is"—and you can vary it many ways! Add fruit juice. Mix it with catsup or chili sauce. Blend it with whipped cream. It won't turn watery because, unlike ordinary "salad dressing," it contains no starchy filler. Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise is all pure mayonnaise. That's why it's America's favorite! That's why it's so good so many ways!

Gold Star Mothers Attend Convention In Chicago, Ill.

Fourteen Gold Star mothers of Columbus, Chapter 1, are attending the 13th national convention of The American Gold Star Mothers, Inc., in Chicago, June 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.

The headquarters for the convention are in Hotel Sherman with registration beginning at 2 p. m., Saturday. On Suunday, a sight-seeing tour of the city took place, followed by a memorial and tea where mothers were greeted by distinguished citizens of Chicago. The business session will begin on Monday morning, June 6, and continue through June 8 with a banquet Wednesday evening.

Members of the local chapter attending the convention are delegates: Mrs. E. A. Gerber, president; Mrs. Oscar Tipton, Mrs. Bertha Kellar, Mrs. James H. Semons, Mrs. Charles Shoemaker, Sr., Mrs. J. G. May, Mrs. Grace Hall, Mrs. Alvin F. Phillips, Mrs. A. C. Lewellen, Mrs. Joseph Trott, Mrs. Edward G. Meyers. Alternates are Mrs. Alma Schumacher, Mrs. Zola Oswald and Mrs. Roy Young.

The next meeting of Chapter 1 will be Friday evening, June 10, 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall. Reports of the convention will be read in connection with the business meeting. A social time will follow in the dining hall with Mrs. Alice Leonard, chairman, Mrs. Joseph Prantl, Mrs. Saul Marc, Mrs. O. J. Sprouse and Mrs. George A. Neibler assisting.

Persons who have suffered from sunstroke have an abnormal susceptibility to the action of stimulants.

Thoughts Turning To the Outdoors

mediately after camp Court of Honor.

The Franklin County Council urges that entire troops register for the camping period and camp village of their choice, but a provisional village has been provided to accomodate Scouts who enroll without their own troop leadership. The cost for attending summer camp is $10.50 per Scout or Scouter for one week, or $12 per Scout who registers without troop leadership.

These are the three steps in preparing for summer camp registration:

1. Register names of Scouts with local troop or obtain a registration blank from the local council office.

2. Fill out and return the registration blank with a preliminary fee of $1 for each Scout and Scouter being registered, the balance to be paid upon arrival at camp.

3. Each registrant will receive medical application a week before he is scheduled to enter camp. Each registrant must receive a medical checkup and take his completed application with him to camp.

Equipment Listed

The equipment each Scout should take with him to camp includes: dress uniform; bed roll (sleeping bag); Scout handbook; swim suit; hiking shoes; shorts or an old pair of trousers; socks and underclothing. Other equipment, such as tents, cooking utensils, etc., will be provided. All meals will be served in the dining hall except for those Scouts who request cookouts for either rank advancement or the cooking merit badge.

Visiting days will be Sunday afternoon and Thursday evening.

Camping for girls of junior high school age will be conducted at Camp Wildwood. Planned for the camp program are arts and crafts, music, dramatics, hiking, sports and nature projects.

City Rose Show Will Honor Dads

ise that the Columbus festival will be "Ohio's largest."

The exhibition will be both inside and outside City Hall. Dietz said inside display will depict every use of roses for the home while outside displays will include latest methods of planting and cultivating garden roses.

The parks superintendent said the three participating floral and landscape groups are sponsoring the show "entirely free." He said it will include 3000 bushes featuring 100 different varieties of roses. Included among these, he added, will be newly-developed varieties never yet offered commercially.

Among especially interesting species will be the thornless rose.

Mayor Rhodes has invited officials and citizens of every community in the state to the three-day exposition. He declared Columbus "should be the state's showplace because it is Ohio's capital."

W. Broad St. Woman Is Struck by Car

Mrs. Jane Porter, 67 of 4491 W. Broad-st, is in good condition at Mt. Carmel Hospital today, after being struck by an auto Tuesday. She suffered severe head lacerations and possible internal injuries.

Sheriff's deputies said Mrs. Porter was struck in front of 4460 W. Broad-st by a westbound car driven by George B. Terry, 43 of New Rome. She was taken to the hospital in a Jerry Spears ambulance.

The advantage of many commercial codes is that they condense the message into one-fifth the space.

Memorial Service For Railroad Men To Be Held

A joint memorial service, sponsored by the National Association of Retired and Veteran Railroad employes will be held Thursday, June 9, at 12 noon at the IOOF Hall, 24 W. Goodale-st.

There will be a covered dish luncheon. Admission of 75c will be charged to those who do not bring a dish.

The memorial will be held at 2 p. m. by the Ladies Society of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen under the direction of Mrs. Helen Davis, president of Auxiliary No. 310.

Participating will be all divisions of Railway Trainmen, B of LE, ORC, B of LF and E, and the auxiliaries. All railroad men are invited.

Starling Band Tours Hilltop

Starling's Band, under the direction of Bill Coyle, toured the Hilltop and West Side, presenting a concert in each of the elementary schools.

On May 25, 11 band instrumental pupils received Starling letters as an award for membership in the band or orchestra for three or more semesters. Those honored were:

Garden Club

Tomato and zinnia plants were distributed to the members of the Starling Junior High Garden Club on May 25.

Highland School PTA Officers Installed

Mrs. Kenneth Cooper, newly installed president of the Highland Avenue Parent-Teacher Association, called members of the executive board together May 26 for a meeting at the school.

Mrs. C. J. Lauer, first vice-president of Franklin County Council, installed Mrs. Cooper to her new duties at the annual mother and daughter tea on May 19. The following were also installed:

Mrs. Charles Siegfried, first vice-president; Frank Mason, second vice-president; Mrs. Trafford Ream, recording secretary; Mrs. Roy Hastilow, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Loren Pfleeger, treasurer.

The Councilors will be Mrs. Harry Cooper, Mrs. Glenn Castle and Mrs. Willard Waltman.

Alternates elected are as follows: Mrs. Guy Bolt, Mrs. Earl Porter and Mrs. Carl Gilliland.

Mrs. Cooper's chairmen will be as follows:

Membership, Mrs. Verne Orme; ways and means, Mrs. Wilber Stanfield; programs, Mrs. Arthur Miller; publicity, Mrs. James Bond; hospitality, Mrs. William Beard; magazines, Mrs. Tony Lampano; parent education, Mrs Ted Campbell; legislation, Mrs. Dodson; devotion, Mrs. Eldon Ardel; recreation, Mrs. Russel Drake; music, Mrs. Josephine Clark; librarian, Mrs. John Fleischer; health, Mrs. Pearlie Haynor; safety, Mrs. Harold Freeman.

Concordia School Holds Dinner For Graduates

Eighty-five people were in attendance at the dinner given to honor the graduates of Concordia Lutheran School, Friday evening, May 27, by the Service Club of the school.

The honored guests, Donna Lou Cowgill, Shirley Ann Krull, and Jay C. Kellogg, Jr., were presented with gifts as a token of remembrance of their grade school days at Concordia. Table appointments and all floral decorations were carried out in the school's colors, red and white.

By Road Map

Danger of taking the wrong road is eliminated, when we go by a road map that has been carefully charted by experienced heads, instead of relying on a "cock-eyed" sign that changes with each wind.

Exertion of driving is less, when we have the confidence of a well traveled road under the wheels, with no fear of coming unexpectedly upon rough, unreliable stretches.

Traveling by a reliable road map is like the feeling of confidence that accompanies the dealings of American families with their Physician and Pharmacist.

They know that behind every bit of service by the Doctor and Pharmacist there are many, many years of study, preparation and practice. For your own protection, heep the hands that chart your "health road" free from inexperienced theorists.

3 Firms Display Bendix Economat To Hilltop Folk

The new Bendix Economat, a new automatic washer featuring the "wondertub" which collapses by vacuum action to squeeze laundry dry, is being introduced on the Hilltop by Better Home Center, C. C. Robinson Co. and Westgate Electric Co.

The new washer, which employs agitator rather than spinning action, has been tested both by housewives and home economics experts, all of whom are lavish in ther praise.

Weighing only 138 pounds, the new Economat may be installed wherever hot and cold water and drain are available. The new washer is vibrationless, can be easily moved, and requires no fastening to the floor.

Test users report there are no deep-set wrinkles, no tangling of clothes. The flexible Wondertub gently but firmly squeezes the clothes, removing water without danger of snags, tears or broken buttons, tests users report.

Brinker Ave. Sisters Will Study At Colorado School of Theater

By Doris Rokeach

"Perfect for television" are the words used by Fred Kelly, dancing teacher brother of Gene Kelly, Hollywood movie star, to describe little five feet, two inch Mary Ann Gillivan.

Mary Ann's dancing feet have won her fame in nearly every local variety show and revue sponsored on the Hilltop and Columbus. With her graduation this month from St. Joseph Academy, she will take her first big step towards preparing for a professional dancing career.

Mary Ann, her talented sister, Clara Jane, 14, and their mother, Mrs. Herold Gillivan, 77 S. Brinker - av, are anxiously awaiting June 28, when they will leave for Colorado, where the two sisters will study at the nationally famous Perry Mansfield School of the Theater.

Teacher To Go Along

Accompanying them for a short visit will be Keith Lovewell, for 10 years the girls' dancing instructor and a former student of the school.

One of the chief reasons for selecting the Colorado school, Mrs. Gillivan advised, was the recommendation made by Miss Lovewell and Mr. Kelly, who visited the Gillivans Apr. 28. Mr. Kelly was in town with his wife visiting her parents, who are residents of Grandview.

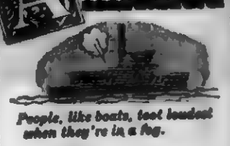
Fred first met the Gillivans in New York, two years ago, when they attended the national convention of the Society of Dancing Teachers at the Astor Hotel. Miss Lovewell accompanied the girls and their mother to the convention and arranged the audition with Mr. Kelly.

Both the girls are excited about their trip West, as is Mrs. Gillivan who will work as an accompanist and seamstress at the school. Mary Ann is particularly looking forward to her role in the school's summer production "Finian's Rainbow," which will premiere at the University of Wyoming in Laramie, Aug. 23.

Numerous Talents

Unusually talented in all fields of art, dark-haired Mary Ann was awarded a medal at St. Joseph Academy for her work in piano, and last summer won first prize for her oil painting at the Ohio State Fair.

Both girls will study ballet and modern dancing at Perry Mansfield School along with a variety of other subjects including theatrical arts, tennis, swimming and horsemanship. Faculty of the school, which once boasted Agnes de Mille as a staff member, specialize in the field of experimental dance-drama work, Mrs. Gillivan said.



Only 18, Mary Ann admits she has a lot of studying to do before she achieves her chief ambition, to be a radio-television star. But for the present she is satisfied to continue practicing intricate dance routines and teaching young would-be-stars at Miss Lovewell's studio at 15 N. Westmoor-av.

Words of the Wise

The discovery of what is true and the practice of that which is good are the two most important objects of philosophy.

"Song of South" On Auto Theater Screen Sunday

Parents and children will be delighted to know the management of the Academy Theaters has secured a print of Walt Disney's "Song of the South" for the giant screen of the National Auto Theater next Sunday. The Technicolor treat combines live action with cartoon sequences dramatizing the beloved Uncle Remus stories.

"I Shot Jesse James" will be co-featured for the two-day engagement.

Thales was an early Greek philosopher and founder of a school of philosophy. He was one of the Seven Wise Men, and a native of Miletus, in Asia Minor.

Feature At Academy Theaters

NOW YOU SEE IT, now you don't, as Pat O'Brien teaches young Dean Stockwell a lesson in thrift. "The Boy With Green Hair", a new Technicolor presentation, opening Sunday at the Mid-Trail Theatre, will open next Thursday at another Hilltop Academy Theater, the Westmont. "I Shot Jesse James" will be co-featured at both houses.

Southern Hospitality

By BETTY BARCLAY

"One of the things bespeaking the tradition of the South is a good dessert. Not just a store-bought dessert, Ma'am, but something homemade, such as a fluffy cake or a luscious pie.

Really southern is this recipe for Grape-Nuts Pie, made rich with eggs and corn syrup, with Grape-Nuts added to give it a nut-like flavor.

Serve it in small wedges with whipped cream; then count the hands of those who want a second helping!

Southern Grape-Nuts Pie

1 cup Grape-Nuts
1 cup boiling water
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
1 cup dark corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell

Combine Grape-Nuts and boiling water. Let stand a few minutes. Cream butter; add sugar gradually, creaming well. Add Grape-Nuts and eggs and beat well. Add syrup, salt, and vanilla. Pour into pie shell. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 50 minutes. Cut in small wedges and serve plain or with whipped cream.

Note: If desired, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind may be substituted for the vanilla in the above recipe.

FEATHERLESS BIRD

The young man wired home from his job, saying, "Made foreman. Feather in my cap."

A few weeks later he wired again, saying, "Made manager. Another feather in my cap."

After some weeks, he wired again saying, "Fired. Send money for train fare home."

His wife unfeelingly telegraphed back, "Use feathers and fly home."

"Song of South" On Auto Theater Screen Sunday

Parents and children will be delighted to know the management of the Academy Theaters has secured a print of Walt Disney's "Song of the South" for the giant screen of the National Auto Theater next Sunday. The Technicolor treat combines live action with cartoon sequences dramatizing the beloved Uncle Remus stories.

"I Shot Jesse James" will be co-featured for the two-day engagement.

Thales was an early Greek philosopher and founder of a school of philosophy. He was one of the Seven Wise Men, and a native of Miletus, in Asia Minor.

Feature At Academy Theaters

NOW YOU SEE IT, now you don't, as Pat O'Brien teaches young Dean Stockwell a lesson in thrift. "The Boy With Green Hair", a new Technicolor presentation, opening Sunday at the Old Trail Theater, will open next Thursday at another Hilltop Academy Theater, the Westmont. "I Shot Jesse James" will be co-featured at both houses.

Briggsdale And Brown Road

By Mrs. Harry C. Downing

Mr. and Mrs. Oakey Bapst and sons, 3442 Chambers-av, spent the week-end in Akron.

Mr. George C. Berry, County Superintendent of Schools, addressed the Franklin township graduates during commencement exercises Tuesday evening, May 24, in the West High School auditorium. Elbert Becker, president of the township school board, presented the diplomas.

The four graduating from Pleasant Hill were Rhoda Webb, Helen Hulls, Charles Cartwright and Lena Dailey. Those from Walton were Donna Hamler, Mary Hooks, JoAnn Barber, Myrtle Carsey, Arl Allen, Jr., Harrison Jordan and Edward Burns, Jr.

Other schools represented were Skidmore, Franklin Heights, Burnside Heights and Briggsdale. A list of Briggsdale graduates appeared in last week's paper.

Omar Pasha was a Turkish general whose real name was Michael Lattas. He deserted the Austrian army in 1828, embraced Mohammedanism and was raised to the rank of colonel and appointed military governor of Lebanon in 1842. Later he was minister of war, and died in 1871.

Southern Hospitality

By BETTY BARCLAY

"One of the things bespeaking the tradition of the South is a good dessert. Not just a store-bought dessert, Ma'am, but something homemade, such as a fluffy cake or a luscious pie.

Strictly southern is this recipe for Grape-Nuts Pie, made rich with eggs and corn syrup, with Grape-Nuts added to give it a nut-like flavor.

Serve it in small wedges with whipped cream; then count the hands of those who want a second helping!

Southern Grape-Nuts Pie

1 cup Grape-Nuts
1 cup boiling water
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
1 cup dark corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell

Combine Grape-Nuts and boiling water. Let stand a few minutes. Cream butter; add sugar gradually, creaming well. Add Grape-Nuts and eggs and beat well. Add syrup, salt, and vanilla. Pour into pie shell. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 50 minutes. Cut in small wedges and serve plain or with whipped cream.

Note: If desired, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind may be substituted for the vanilla in the above recipe.

FEATHERLESS BIRD

The young man wired home from his job, saying, "Made foreman. Feather in my cap."

A few weeks later he wired again, saying, "Made manager. Another feather in my cap."

After some weeks, he wired again saying, "Fired. Send money for train fare home."

His wife unfeelingly telegraphed back, "Use feathers and fly home."

Bear Up! It Won't Be Long!

There are times when all of us must bear with temporary inconvenience for the progress of the community. Progress usually costs us something. If the price is merely inconvenience, then it is a price we all can afford—by simply taking a slight tuck in our tempers.

The matter which brings this thought to mind is the repaving work now in progress on Sullivant-av, between Hague-av and Derrer-rd. The blocking of such a key thoroughfare for a period of many weeks is bound to cause residents and businessmen in the area considerable inconvenience.

The contracting firm on the job, however, assures us it is making all possible haste to open the thoroughfare to traffic at the earliest possible date. To bear with the contractor, then, seems the only reasonable course. If there are just complaints, they may be carried direct to the foremen or city engineers and inspectors who are on the job all during working hours. Talk it over with them. They'll do their best to work out some solution—and it's a much more effective course of action than a 'round-the-barn-appeal to City Hall.

Meanwhile, we must not let the petty annoyances of the moment blind us to the greater advantages which will result from the work.

Government Spending Rise Dismaying Turn of Events

By John Kelly

The unprecedented peacetime sum of $2 billion is the estimated expenditure of government for the fiscal year beginning this July. This amount is actually 42 per cent of that of the peak year of global war, and some $8 billion above the postwar low in 1948.

This enormous total of expenditures demands that we give serious consideration to how the money will be spent. The question is so important that some figures are recalled to your attention.

For fiscal 1950, just over $14 billion is the amount of our premium on the insurance against war. The international program—our effort to keep the free world free—will cost almost $7 billion. Veterans' services and benefits and interest on the national debt add another $11 billion. These categories account for 76 per cent of the budget.

The remaining 24 per cent, mentioned here last week, is a little matter of $10 billion. It is for all activities of government other than the four major categories.

Ten billion dollars may seem a modest sum when measured against the grand total of $42 billion. But it is more than the entire expenditures of the government in 1939. That year was one of the biggest spending periods of the New Deal before the war.

The president's budget message offers no encouragement that the $42 billion expenditures projected for fiscal 1950 will mark the top. Commitments already made to our friends in Europe and probabilities here at home make it very possible that the government will spend more.

Here indeed is a dismaying prospect not only for the taxpayer but for every one of us. This new upturn in governmental spending is dangerous. Present levels are already high by any standards other than the fantastic budgets of World War II. The aftermath of those huge expenditures has been the inflation of prices and living costs, and the resultant inequities and destruction of savings.

The non-partisan Hoover commission, appointed in 1947, estimates that as much as $3 billion could be saved annually by improving the administration of government departments and agencies. Everything possible should be done to speed the adoption of the reorganization recommended by the commission.

Every one of us has had enough personal contact with government, with its political expediency, to understand that most of the harsh words are understated. Upon reflection, one wonders if more than $3 billion, a more seven per cent of the grand total, could not be saved through good management. Whatever the amount of the economies, it could be of the greatest importance to our country.

And Have Not Love

By MARGARET NICHOLS

Copyright, 1949 by Margaret Carmen Nichols. Published by Macrae-Smith Company. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

IT SEEMED to Beatrice that she did most of the things she was expected to do, and few of the things she wanted to do. There were the unread books, and there were the friends from earlier years that she still wished to see. Though Porter never spoke of those people out of whose economic and social orbit he had passed, Beatrice missed them, and occasionally saw them and remembered the fun she had shared with them—long evenings in the little apartment where she and Porter had first lived, evenings of music and lively discussions, weekends in summer of picnics and swimming, and weekends in winter of skating on the frozen lake until the burning stars faded. Yet when she had remarked to Porter that she had asked Sue to lunch, or had seen Julian on the street, his indifference was all too clear. It was as though Porter divided his life into compartments, closing an old one as soon as a new one was opened. Such a person, she had thought with sadness often recently, could have only broken pieces in the tapestry of his life. As for herself, she knew that apart from genuinely liking those old friends, she still clung to them because they were a part of the past, and therefore a part of love when love was young.

A good many childless people, she had observed, said that people with children used the children as an excuse for their limited time. It was futile to tell them, for she had tried, that a child demanded and deserved more than food, clothing, toys, and a bed. She had always given a part of each day to Marianne, talking, listening, explaining, planning, feeling meanwhile a stern sense of responsibility toward the young life given her to mold. To the women who brushed their children aside, and to the others who gave great sighs of relief when the children were finally settled for the night, Beatrice always wanted to say that many of her most inspired moments had come to her when she had been with Marianne.

That Marianne saw so little of her father anymore broke upon Beatrice with pain and shock one evening when Porter came home. Marianne, playing with a new ball in the living room, cried absently, "Good-bye, Daddy."

Porter had looked amused. "But I'm not leaving. I'm just coming in."

Marianne laughed, shrugged, and went back to the ball. "You leave us so much," she said, "I'm just used to saying good-bye to you."

His face had sobered at once, and in an instant he had passed from their vision.

His reasons for being out in the evening were seemingly legitimate. He bowled one night a week, and his serving on committees was to him a civic responsibility, and he was continuously being called upon to address the many social groups in the vast Ramey plant. Beatrice knew in what respect and admiration he was held, not only by the office people but also by the manual workers. Porter made them feel that he was one of them, and no better a man than they.

Recently, though, the thinness of his excuses with the barest note of apology in them suggested his deliberation to be at home "a little as possible. Once or twice Beatrice had sensed that he was waiting for her to use the word that would be as a flame to a fuse. Though she did not utter it, she knew in the voice of silence that their hearts were strangers, and that theirs was marriage at the breaking point.

No emergency precipitated a telephone call to his office. Thus Bonnie Watson was only a name in her mind like a stick floating in the river—one that would not be submerged.

Meanwhile, the pace of her life had quickened. It was appalling how her engagement book filled with appointments not of her own desire or design. Would she work on a committee for the card party Marianne's school was having? The young people's group at the church had to have a hostess one Sunday evening. "You're so good with them, Beatrice, and they like you so. You will come, won't you, dear?" Someone was at the hospital, or someone's mother died, and Marianne had to be taken to a series of birthday parties for a series of Saturdays.

There was a formal dinner at a hotel in recognition of the birthday of a local octogenarian and philanthropist. She and Porter had been the youngest couple at the speakers' table. And glancing over faces unresponsive, rapt, tired, cynical, good, Beatrice had thought, To return to simplicity again . . . To return to each other again, Porter, you and I . . . And to turn to each other again with demonstrative love . . . What are they, the people in this audience, thinking of my face? So brave, and so busy, and so frustrated . . . David said that. Is that how I look, David? If you were here, would you read those hateful things in my face?

There had been more than polite applause when Porter had got up to speak. These people had heard him before, and knew that he would not be dull. Beatrice had looked down at the pink oval of her nails, and what she had felt had been like a sickness spreading through her body. Because Porter, speaking into the microphone had not been speaking from his heart. He might deceive the others with his fine phrasing and poised and subtle humor, but those things were wholly of his mind. Had he closed, too, she thought with horror, the compartment that was his heart so that he could no longer speak from it?

His speech had been followed by a generous burst of applause, and after dinner by an enthusiastic round of hearty handshaking and congratulations.

It was not until they were riding home that he spoke directly to Beatrice.

"You didn't like my speech?"

She caught her breath. "You didn't mean what you said, Porter."

And then his silence was unbearable, because she knew that fire was running along the edge of his nerves and that he was trying to subdue it while he kept the car under control.

Yet when he spoke, he spoke with passion harnessed. "People change, Bee. They're conditioned by their environment and experiences. You and I started out wanting the same things . . ."

"Don't we still? We have everything we started out wanting, haven't we? Aren't you pleased with the good things of our life, Porter?" She was near to tears. "I don't understand you."

"I kept all the promises I made you the day we were married. Your happiness has been bought and paid for, Bee."

They went into the house full of happy memories that sprang at her. The smoke of his cigarette lay heavily on the warm currents of air as he went to the fireplace and took the notes of his speech, and dropped them one by one slowly into the fire. She stood there, afraid to whisper even on a softly drawn breath, knowing the anger beating in his blood.

He looked at her distantly. "I'm a cheat and an imitator."

She held out her hand that it might be joined with his.

"It's worse when people cheat and don't know they're cheating. For me, Porter, for any woman, there is nothing beyond love. Won't you come?"

"Not yet. You go up, Bee. I'll be up later."

Still, wrongly, she hesitated, feeling unlovely, unwanted.

He turned to her again. "This little corner of my life belongs to me. Don't trespass. And leave me alone. Leave me alone so that I won't hurt you."

There was Christmas coming.

And there was Mrs. Ramey, smug after a long visit with her attorney, her manner with Beatrice declaring, "You will be a good girl now, won't you, Beatrice? You will be sweet and agreeable, won't you? You dare not be otherwise now. Money buys everything, my dear. You will see. Because I am giving all of my riches to you and to Marianne."

LEGAL NOTICE
Common Pleas Court, Franklin County, Ohio.
No. 177059 — Minnie C. Francis, Plaintiff, -vs- Maxine VanMiddlesworth, Defendant.
Maxine VanMiddlesworth, last known place of residence, Caracas, Venezuela, South America, is hereby notified that on March 17th, 1949, Minnie C. Francis filed a petition against her as defendant in this case alleging that plaintiff is the fee simple owner of the following real estate:
Situate in City of Columbus, Franklin County, Ohio, Being Lots 104, 105 and 106 of H. H. Parsons Subdivision of Lots 56 and 57 of Theodore Leonard's Heirs Subdivision, Plat Book Number 1, page 228, Recorder's Office, Franklin County, Ohio.
that on June 11, 1946, Fred C. Dunn, Auditor of Franklin County, Ohio, delivered to the defendant a deed to said real estate, which was recorded on June 14, 1946, in Deed Book 1318, page 299, Franklin County Recorder's Office; that said Auditor's deed was without authority of law and is a cloud on plaintiff's title; that plaintiff prays that said deed be set aside and her title quieted and other relief.
Said defendant is required to answer said petition on or before July 23, 1949, or judgment may be rendered against her.

Armstrong's Linoleum

Colorful and attractive though it is, there's nothing delicate about Armstrong's Linoleum when it comes to wear. It seems to become richer and more mellow appearing with age. This is because the beauty of Armstrong's Linoleum is more than surface deep. It's a flooring material that's built to last. And there are no worries about its good looks fading, either, because the colors of linoleum run all the way through from the surface to the backing material. This means that the designs and colors will remain sharp and bright—even after years of hard wear. When you consider this lasting beauty of Armstrong's Linoleum, you'll agree that the initial cost is moderate indeed.

Jesus Sentenced to Death

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 27:19-26; Mark 14:53-15:15; Luke 22:54-23; John 18:12-14, 19-24, 28-40; 19:1-16.

They led Jesus to the high priest: and with him were assembled all the chief priests and the elders and the scribes of the temple.

A maid saw Peter warming himself beneath the palace, and said, "Thou wast with Jesus," but Peter denied it three times.

Pilate had Jesus scourged, and the soldiers platted a crown of thorns and put it on His head and a purple robe on Him.

Pilate would have released Jesus, but the populace cried, "Crucify Him, crucify Him."

MEMORY VERSE—Proverbs 17:17.

Red Cross Water Safety Campaign To Be Repeated at Hilltop Pool

The third annual Red Cross Water Safety Campaign will get under way on Monday, June 13, following the close of the school year.

Swimming pool owners and managers in Columbus and Franklin County, including the Hilltop Swimming Pool, again are cooperating in the annual campaign. Last year 1500 boys and girls learned to swim and more than 700 were certificated by the Red Cross from the beginners through senior life saving.

The classes in all pools will be under the supervision of Red Cross trained instrucfors and registration for the classes may be made by pool members and their guests at the office of their neighboring swimming pool. There is no charge for the swimming and life saving instruction.

The schedule of classes for beginners, swimmers, advanced swimmers and junior and senior life saving will be available at each pool. Early registration is urged.

Every youngster who learns to swim at least 10 strokes will become a "polliwog" and will receive a polliwog button.

Following the plan adopted in last year's campaign, a trophy will be awarded to the pool having the best water safety program. Medals and ribbons will be presented to winners in each classification at a county-wide meet to be held at the end of the season.

The trophy in last season's Red Cross campaign was won by the Upper Arlington pool.

MARCH OF EVENTS

President's Tiff With Byrd Worries Truman's Top Aides | No Purge, Urge Strategists Seeking Peace Within Party

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Just when President Truman's top political strategists thought they had convinced him it would be unwise to try to purge Democratic rebels against his domestic program, the unpredictable chief executive upset the apple cart.

The men who chart what they think would be a prudent political policy of "hands off" for Mr. Truman in 1950 now are worried again. They sense that the old Truman temper is getting the better of what ought to be the new Truman better judgment.

Senator Harry Byrd

Latest indication that Mr. Truman still is toying with the idea of again barnstorming the country in behalf of his program came recently when he talked to a group of veterans.

The president told the vets that there are too many "Byrds" in the Senate—meaning Senator Harry Byrd (D), Virginia, who bucks the president down the line on the home front, while supporting him in world affairs.

Byrd immediately said he is "waiting around" for the president to start "purging."

Mr. Truman's strategists are warning him that, even if he suffers a stunning defeat on Taft-Hartley repeal, a "purge" will only emphasize it next year—and will not help either Mr. Truman, or the party.

● DECISION—Probably the most difficult decision of the congressional session will be made by Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, on whether to vote for ratification of the Atlantic Pact.

He had fully determined to vote for the pact before Secretary of State Dean Acheson told the Senate that this would morally commit the senators to vote the accompanying program of arms for Europe.

Taft, definitely opposed to the arms program, now is restudying his decision. He believes that the arms program would violate the United Nations charter and, in fact, could be interpreted as an aggressive move.

What makes Taft's decision so difficult is the unlikelihood that two-thirds of the Senate could be mustered for any purpose, even ratification of the pact, over his opposition.

He is extremely influential with a number of Democrats as well as Republicans. On his decision may hang the fate of the pact for this session of Congress.

• • • • •

● VETO—There is a story going the rounds in Washington that Defense Secretary Louis Johnson virtually invited Jonathan Daniels to decline President Truman's offer of the post of secretary of the Navy.

According to the story, which seems to be well authenticated, Daniels naturally declined.

Daniels, once an administrative assistant to the late President Roosevelt and later acting press secretary for Mr. Truman, was offered the Navy post some time ago.

He went to see the president in the company of Johnson on May 7, and at that time is reported to have said that he was sorry, but could not accept.

Before the call, however, Daniels talked with Johnson. Johnson is said to have told Daniels that, although he had someone else in mind for the post, he was willing to go through with the appointment, since the president had offered it to Daniels.

Daniels, by no means slow to get an idea, said that under the circumstances he would not stand in the way of the Defense secretary getting the man he thought could work out best.

• • • • •

● ARABS—Reports to President Truman indicate that the United States may have to shoulder a new burden in the Middle East—about one million Arab refugees from Palestine.

Million Arab Refugees From Palestine?

For the most part they are destitute and homeless. Unless some permanent solution is found for their problem, they may prove a danger spot in the inflammable Middle East.

It's likely that the United States will be asked to step into the situation alone since other nations seem unable to handle it.

West Broad Singers Will Assist In Hillcrest Services

A singing group from the West Broad School will assist in the morning worship service of the Hillcrest Baptist Church at 10:30 a. m. this Sunday. The group, composed of sixth grade pupils, is under the direction of Mrs. Don Waymer. They will sing the traditional English melody, "This Is My Father's World," and "Alleluia." The appearance of the youthful singing group is part of a year-end musical activity.

The Hillcrest church also includes in its program this Sunday the announcement of an Old Testament cathedral film, "Prophet of Tekoah," for its twilight service, at 7:30 p. m.

Community Christian Church To Celebrate

Sunday, June 5, will mark the first anniversary of the founding and building of the first unit of the Community Christian Church. After the regular morning worship service at 10:30 the congregation will adjourn to the Scioto River shelter house, where members will have a picnic luncheon.

The Community Christian Church at present has a membership of 100 and a seating capacity of 250. The pastor, Rev. James F. Lorenz, is planning a recreational unit addition to the new building. Rev. Lorenz is also the founder and builder of the Westgate Methodist Church.

BEST YEARS OF THEIR LIVES

BACKWARD, turn backward, O Time in thy flight; make me a child again, just for tonight."

How many of us, watching our own or other children going happily to school, have longed to live over again the carefree days of childhood or adolescence.

"When all the air, to toss and quaff, made life a jubilee;
And changed the children's songs and laughs to shrieks of ecstasy."

Those were the formative years of our lives. Those are the years when the characters of our children are being molded. "As the twig is bent, the tree's inclined."

What these children learn in school will go with them throughout their adult lives. What inestimable service is performed in the interest of youth by the teachers who stress the ideals which will fortify them in the years ahead.

Parents hope and plan that the best in life will come to their children. By diligent home training and good education, our children may be started in the right direction. Regular attendance at church and Sunday school is of the utmost importance in the teaching of youth. Training in the home, the school and the church is the foundation of Christian character.

"Since the things you want are always at the rear, this model has a door in the back."

The way ordinary refrigerators are built may be funny to the cartoonist who raids the refrigerator at night. But it's not so funny to his wife—or to any woman—who spends so much of her day playing "put-and-take" or "hide-and-seek" with foods in her refrigerator. Not so with the millions of women who own Crosleys!

Only CROSLEY gives you the SHELVADOR*

Every Crosley refrigerator has the Shelvador . . . the wonderful Shelvador, designed by a woman in the first place — the amazing Shelvador that doubles your "front-row" refrigerator space . . . triples your bottle storage capacity . . . stores constantly-needed foods within fingertip reach . . . keeps little things from "getting lost"!

Why buy any old-fashioned refrigerator? Instead, get a new 1949 Shelvador—designed for practical use — planned for complete refrigeration service—built for long, trouble-free, economical operation — styled for "proud-kitchen" beauty—priced for every budget.

Come in and see the 8 handsome 1949 Crosley models—all with the Shelvador. You'll see why it's fun (instead of "funny") to own a Crosley!

*Made only by Crosley. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

We, the Crosley Dealers on the Hilltop and West Side would like to demonstrate to you the many exclusive advantages of the Shelvador refrigerator. We promise not to sell you any periscopes, doors in the back, rods or fishhooks, or any extras of any kind. We don't have to because the Shelvador has everything included. There are no extras to pay for.

Yesterday . . . Today And Tomorrow

This philosophical bit from the Great Northern Railroad publication is worth passing on:

Yesterday . . . Today and Tomorrow.

There are two days in every week about which we should not worry, two days which should be kept free from fear and apprehension.

One of these days is yesterday with its mistakes and cares, its faults and blunders, its aches and pains. Yesterday has passed forever beyond our control.

All the money in the world cannot bring back yesterday. We cannot undo a single act we performed; we cannot erase a single word we said. Yesterday is gone.

The other day we should not worry about is tomorrow with its possible adversities, its burdens, its large promise and poor performance. Tomorrow is also beyond our immediate control.

Tomorrow's sun will rise, either in splendor or behind a mask of clouds — but it will rise. Until it does, we have no steak in tomorrow, for it is as yet unborn.

This leaves only one day—today. Any man can fight the battles of just one day. It is only when you and I add the burdens of those two awful eternities—yesterday and tomorrow that we break down.

It is not the experience of today that drives men mad—it is remorse or bitterness for something which happened yesterday and the dread of what tomorrow may bring.

Let us, therefore, live one day at a time.

Westgate Electric Boxing Show Set On WLW-C Tonight

For the second time, the AAU boxing card at the Columbus YMCA will be telecast over WLW-C, under the sponsorship of the Westgate Electric Co., 2655 W. Broad-st. Scheduled at 8 p. m. today, the telecast will be two hours long, and will be conducted by WLW-C's, director of sports, Joe Hill.

Included in the roster to appear on this second Columbus Amateur boxing card are Pete Cagas, 1949 Golden Gloves champion; Ray Tiburzio, 1948 Golden Gloves champ, winner of the Al Haft trophy, and 1948's outstanding boxer; Homer Humphreys, this year's undefeated featherweight; Don Blair, YMCA southpaw, winner of eight of his last nine bouts by knockouts; Richard Mackert, West Side's KO artist; Al Saul, 1949 Golden Gloves flyweight.

5 Playgrounds Open On Hilltop Monday With Big Parades

Plans are nearing completion for the grand opening of the Columbus Recreation Department playgrounds on the Hilltop next Monday afternoon. Parades and contests are scheduled for each of the five playgrounds on that day.

Playgrounds scheduled to open for the busy summer season on Monday are Westgate Park, Holton Park, Glenwood Park, Columbian and the Highland Avenue School playground.

Two other playgrounds, which will be operated by the Columbus Board of Education, are scheduled to open one week later. They are John Burroughs School and West Broad Street School. The date for their opening will be Monday, June 20.

Each of the playgrounds operated by the City Recreation Department will have a parade of decorated bicycles, tricycles, doll buggies and wagons at 1:30 p. m. Monday. Prizes, furnished by the Hilltop Community Council, will be presented for the best-decorated vehicles in each classification.

After the parade at each playground, games and contests will be held with additional prizes furnished by the Community Council.

Mrs. Roy Hastilow, 197 Midland-av, is general chairman of playground openings for the Community Council.

Opening programs similar to those at the Recreation Department playgrounds are scheduled for the Board of Education playgrounds the following week.

Hilltop Takes Spotlight At Rose Festival

Hilltoppers have double reason for attending the Columbus Festival of Roses at City Hall next week-end.

A Hilltop "Father of the Year" will be honored at special ceremonies opening the big floral show at 7:30 p. m. Friday. And a Hilltop couple will be married in a "Rose Wedding" climaxing the festival Sunday.

The Hilltop father is one of five representing their communities at the festival's opening. They will be honored with large bouquets during a special 1½-hour program.

The five "Community Dads" will have been selected by various civic or service clubs in their neighborhoods. The idea was suggested by Mayor James A. Rhodes due to the nearness of Father's Day, June 19.

Hilltop Couple

The bride will be Miss Sherry Gillen, 2389 Apple-st, and the bridegroom, Pfc. Howard Forbes of the Columbus General Depot, son of O. V. Forbes, 2545 Sullivant-av.

The military wedding will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday on the south grounds of City Hall. Lt. Col. I. T. May, depot chaplain, will perform the double-ring ceremony.

The bridal bouquet will be 50 white roses in a basket effect. The brides attendants will carry similar "basket" bouquets of peach colored roses.

The occasion is being sponsored by the Columbus Allied Florists, cooperating with the Columbus Rose Society and the Columbus Landscape Association to present the festival. Roses will be donated by Roses, Inc., a national association of growers.

Participating in designing the rose altar and other rose decorations will be the Columbus Land-

19-Year-Old W. Side Girl Is Queen

Highlighting the festive Jubilee sponsored by the West Side Board of Trade was the selection last night of pretty Elizabeth Irwin, 19, of 164 S. Dakota-av, as queen.

Ten thousand West Siders witnessed the crowning by Mayor Jim Rhodes of dark-haired Miss Irwin. The Board of Trade Queen was chosen by audience applause after the decision of judges resulted three times in a tie.

Besides reigning over the week-long jubilee as queen, Miss Irwin will be awarded a trophy cup and merchandise prizes provided by West Side business firms.

On Saturday, June 11, closing day, free carnival rides will be provided between 10 a. m. and noon for all youngsters under 12.

Besides Mayor Rhodes, 28 other city and county officials will be on hand to greet the youngsters and help them ride.

The queen contestants were Dorothy Daley, Jean Hite, Shirley Huntsberry, Darlene Rozell, Evelyn George, Sunya Slane and Gloria Demoskey.

Proceeds of the Jubilee will go to a fund for the Sunshine Park youth program which includes a comunity teen-age night club of the dancing and soft drink type, according to Harry E. Jacobs, the jubilee chairman.

Library Announces Summer Schedule

The Hilltop Branch Library, 21 N. Hague-av, is operating on its summer schedule, Mildred Phalor, librarian, announces.

New summer hours in effect are as follows: 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., week days; and 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Saturdays.

Vandals Wreck, Ransack Four Hilltop and West Side Churches

Four Hilltop and West Side churches and a downtown church were vandalized last night in a continuation of the wave of destruction against Columbus churches, but Columbus police arrested two boys this morning in connection with all the vandalism.

The two boys claim to be from St. Petersburg, Fla. They are 18 and 19 years of age, police said.

First reports said damage was most extensive at St. Aloysius Roman Catholic Church at W. Broad-st and Midland-av. Police estimate damage at $1000 and said most of the vandalism was directed at the altar and the Blessed Sacrament. The tabernacle was desecrated and blessed candles and lights at the altar were extinguished.

At the West Broad Street Presbyterian Church, W. Broad-st and Dakota-av, offices were ransacked and a bicycle belonging to Robert Frost, secretary of the church, was stolen. One of the youthful suspects was arrested on the W. Broad-st hill this morning riding the stolen bike.

Police said the boys had attempted to set fire to the St. John Lutheran Church, W. Broad-st and Hague-av. They still were investigating that report.

The Memorial Baptist Church at 26 S. Sandusky-st also was entered and ransacked.

The downtown church entered and ransacked last night was the Central Presbyterian Church, 122 S. Third-st.

Housewarming Climaxes Building Program of Newest Hilltop Church

The congregation of the West Broad Street Church of Christ, 3361 W. Broad-st, completed its building program recently with a housewarming party at its new parsonage at 3372 Camp Chase-dr.

Just as with the church edifice itself, the parsonage represents a great deal of donated labor on the part of members of the congregation. The church itself was contractor for the construction of both buildings and the members of the church did all of the work they were competent to perform.

Completion of the parsonage follows the dedication of the church by five months and comes only a little more than three years after organization of the congregation. The parsonage is of brick and frame construction, designed much the same as the church edifice. The house contains six rooms and has a large living room with woodburning fireplace.

Evangelist T. E. Butterfield and his family moved into the new parsonage two weeks ago.

West to Graduate Two Classes In Rites Tomorrow

By Myron T. Seifert

Tomorrow will be a red-letter day in the annals of West High School when commencements of West Junior and Senior High will be held at the Hilltop school in the afternoon and evening, respectively.

Thirty five hundred parents, friends and graduating seniors will pack the school auditorium for the two events close to the hearts of every Hilltopper.

About 400 West High students in the two classes will file past the president of the board of education to receive their diplomas as a reward for diligence and application in the prescribed course of study.

Eagerly anticipating the momentous event, the "400" already have rehearsed daily their routine.

Programs of the commencements were released this week by Principal I. F. Young. He will preside at both ceremonies.

Senior high rites in the evening follow this pattern:

Prelude, Country Gardens, West High School Orchestra; Processional, God of Our Fathers, the Graduating Class; Star Spangled Banner, Audience and Senior Class; Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, led by Don Longmire, Audience and Senior Class; Invocation, Rev. A. J. Wold of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Chorus, You'll Never Walk Alone, the Graduating Class; "A Plea for Common Sense," Barbara Coffey; "Your Pilot's License," Fred Wollerman; Chorus, Battle Hymn of the Republic, the Graduating Class.

Presentation of Class to President of the Board of Education by Superintendent Roudebush; Presentation of Diplomas, Dwight A. Swisher, President, Board of Education.

Alma Mater, Alice Shoenberger, '25; Benediction, Rev. Aaron Roth of Hillcrest Baptist Church; Recessional, Pomp and Circumstance, West High School Orchestra.

Prelude, Air de Ballet, West High School Orchestra; Processional, Francaise Militaire, the Graduating Class; Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, led by George Brown (Class and Audience).

Invocation, Rev. Arthur W. Witherspoon of Apostolic Gospel Church; Chorus, Through All the Year; "Which Way America?", Shirley Mercer; "Road of Destiny," Gerald Witherspoon; Chorus, Recessional.

Presentation of class to member of Board of Education; Presentation of diplomas; Benediction, Rev. Arthur W. Witherspoon.

What Are '48 Grads Doing? Alumni File Gives Answers

By Myron T. Seifert

Editor's Note: George F. Neeb, West High senior adviser, during the school year, among other duties, has been interested in following-up activities of graduates, particularly those of recent years. Nancy Kimm, 11B student of the Hilltop school, has combed the "alumni" files, and was instrumental in providing facts for this story.

What happens to West High graduates? What school, if any, do they attend following graduation? What occupations do they follow? What part of their high school careers were most helpful? What courses of study were of most value?

Looking back on the school-training program at West High in what respects was it weak or strong, former students were asked.

These and a host of other questions were needed in order to learn about the alumni products, many of whom have brought honor and glory to West High.

Senior Adviser George F. Neeb and Principal I. F. Young have been instrumental in establishing an alumni file of interest to all Hilltoppers.

A questionaire was addressed to alumni of the Hilltop school, seeking information to be included in alumni records.

One-Third Reply

The response was gratifying; of the 254 students in the January and June, 1948, classes to whom was addressed Mr. Young's note, one out of three replied.

The pattern followed by most 1948 graduates shows some interesting trends.

Practically an even 100 who replied are following the same program which they had planned in their high school days; 18 said no. These explained that their plans were changed due to the fact that, to date, they had not been able to attend college, or that circumstances altered their original goals.

Ninety-seven of the 117 students averred that West High School's training program had been "valuable in the job or in college work."

A score of the remaining indicated that vocationally no courses were offered that prepared them for the jobs they now follow.

High in their praise of opportunities offered at the Hilltop school, the majority complimented the administration and teaching staff for "a job well done."

Praise Commerce Work

Girls who were enrolled in the commercial department at West High, in particular, said that the department was doing a tremendous and splendid service in preparing students for a commercial occupation. Several boys explain-

Kiwanis Night Game Funds 100 Pct. for Boys' Camp

All money raised at the Kiwanis Night baseball game June 14 will be used to send deserving Columbus boys to Kiwanis summer camp, it was announced by Herbert G. Deems, 127 N. Roys-av, treasurer of the United Kiwanis Clubs of Greater Columbus, the organization staging the event.

Last year the Kiwanians sent 75 boys to camp. This year it is planned to send double that number in two two-week sessions, Aug. 4 to 16 and Aug. 18 to 30.

Advance ticket sales for the Kiwanis night game indicate that a record crowd for the season will be on hand to watch the Columbus Red Birds play the Indianapolis Indians and to swell the proceeds which will give these boys, who would not otherwise be able to attend a summer camp, an unforgettable two weeks crowded with fun and good fellowship.

The Kiwanis camp site is that of the Big Brother Camp in Hocking County, southeast of Columbus, near Logan. It is situated on 165 acres of wooded hills, with streams and caves, and is one of the most beautiful spots in the state of Ohio. The camp consists of 10 cabins which house seven to eight boys, a dining hall, recreation barn, infirmary, and wash and shower houses. Counselors and other personnel will be the same ones employed for Big Brother camp sessions.

The boys will be chosen by Kiwanis Clubs on the basis of character, citizenship, initiative, etc.

Tickets for this game are on sale downtown in the lobby of the Neil House and at Smith and Lee Sporting Goods Store, 120 E. Broad-st. They are also available from any member of a Kiwanis Club, and will be on sale at the Red Bird Stadium June 10.

Europe-Bound Illinois Scouts Pause on Hilltop

FIRST OVERNIGHT STOP for Boy Scout Troop 3 of Decatur, Ill., on its way to Europe, was at Allen's Acres, owned by Noble L. Allen, on Valleyview-dr. The boys camped on the Hilltop last Friday night. It was their first overnight stop on their way to New York. They will sail for France tomorrow. They plan to set up headquarters at Paris for a series of trips to all parts of Western Europe. This is the troop's third trip to Europe and its 18th major expedition in recent years. The scoutmaster is Webber Borchers of Decatur. There are 19 Scouts in the group, mostly of high school and early college age. Twelve of the group are Eagle Scouts. — Photo by J. Curtis Allen.

Hilltop Impressario Manages Quartet, Heads Concerts, Has Radio Show at 19

It is axiomatic in musical circles that a person must start young to achieve a musical career.

A young West High School graduate is taking that axiom seriously even though he is not an active musician. At the age of 19 he is on the threshold of becoming a full-fledged impressario.

The young man is James N. Cain of 160 S. Harris-av. He has just finished his first year as head of Prestige Concerts, inc., a group which, during the past season, presented five chamber music concerts by the famous Walden String Quartet and a piano recital by Ernst Van Dohnanyi, 71-year-old Hungarian pianist, conductor and composer.

Philharmonic Librarian

Jim Cain's interest in management of musical organization dates back several years to the days when, at 15, he was librarian for the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra.

Already acquainted for a number of years with John Garvey, violist of the Walden Quartet, Jim conceived the idea last summer of bringing the quartet to Columbus for a series of chamber music concerts because he felt, along with several of his friends, that chamber music had not received its proper attention in Columbus in recent years.

James N. Cain

Jim Organized Prestige Concerts late last summer and headed the board of directors. The six concerts presented by the group received wide critical acclaim and encouraged the youthful impressario to schedule a second season with five more concerts by the Walden group and a sixth concert by a leading tenor. The negotiations for the latter concert have not been completed and no dates have been set for the coming season.

An unexpected development near the close of last season was the invitation by the Walden Quartet to Jim that he manage the group.

Jim, of course, accepted the in-

Summer School Courses Offered Again in City

The Columbus public schools are offering summer school courses from June 20 to Aug 13 to pupils in the elementary grades and junior and senior high school.

Pupils who have completed the sixth grade may take two courses in the 7B (first year junior high school).

Pupils who have completed the 4A grade may take the 5B work in summer school. The 5A, 6B and 6A work is also offered.

The cost is $5 for the elementary grades and $2.50 per subject in junior and senior high school.

Many reasons exist for summer school attendance.

1. Many wish to gain a half-year so as to complete the "A" classes in June instead of mid-year.

2. Many need or wish to review the class work which they have just completed or are about to take.

3. Many have lost a half-year or more due to illness or other causes of extensive absence.

4. Several pupils have moved from school to school, for reasons beyond their own control, and have not been able to make normal progress.

Registration will be held at Central High School on Monday, June 20, and the elementary classes will then meet at Fieser School, 335 W. State-st, for the balance of the summer school sessions.

Registration cards may be obtained at school offices.

Student Sings 'Freedom Song'

Walter Gibson of 178 S. Souder-av feels he has a firm grip on the pulse of every school pupil in the land at this time of year in the sentiments he expresses in the following poem, to-wit:

"SONG OF FREEDOM"

Soon to summer pleasures of our vacations hot and long
We'll soon be going merrily;
This is why I sing the Freedom Song.

Away with pronouns and rectangles,
No more parallels or right angles.
No more verbs to conjugate
Or long questions to debate.

Get thee behind me, pencils dull!
Compass, ruler, I've used you all
For the last time! Nevermore
Shall I worry about such Punic War.

Down with grade cards with their A's and B's
(Usually C's or D's or maybe E's).
No more Hawthorne or Shakespeare;
Of Kipling, Keats I'll have no fear.
Teachers and Latin I'll not remember.
Forget them all for ever — till next September!

Hilltoppers Like Chicken, Want Ad Proved

When Mrs. E. A. Hoffman, 762 Rome-Hilliards-rd, was ready to sell her fries, she ran a three-line ad in two issues of the Record.

The $1.02 she spent for advertising proved to be a profitable investment; those two little ads resulted in the sale of 50 members of the poultry family.

Record ads can, and do, sell just about anything. What do you have to offer your fellow Hilltoppers? You can place your ad in Thursday's paper by calling RA. 1123 before 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Strawberry Festival Planned June 12

The second annual benefit party for the Cancer Clinic and the Crippled Children's Society will be held Sunday, June 12, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kunz, 2511 Kunz-rd, one mile south of Galloway.

Strawberries, ice cream, cake, sandwiches and coffee will be served beginning at 12 noon. An auction sale will be held.

The trunk of the African elephant has two finger-like processes at the end—that of the Asiatic elephant, only one.

Newlyweds Depart for Honeymoon Trip

GETTING READY for their wedding trip are the new Mr. and Mrs. George Schotz. Mrs. Schotz is the former Juanita Armstrong, niece of Mrs. Stella Bryans, 418 S. Warren-av. Married May 26 in the Lutheran Church in Amlin, O., the new couple will reside temporarily at 418 S. Warren-av. After June 12, they expect to make their home in Hilliards. (J. Curtis Allen Photo)

Miss Nancy Bailey Honored With Party

A dinner party was held June 3 by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bailey, 821 S. Eureka-av, in honor of the 19th birthday of their daughter, Nancy.

Attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kildow, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Davis, Ed Moore, Donna Davis, Jack Moore, the honored guest, and the host and hostess.

An estimated 40,000 gold seekers crossed the continent to reach California in 1849.

Reed-Wilson Take Vows In Michigan

Mr. James Elliott Reed, 266½ E. Long-st, is announcing the marriage of his sister, Miss Idella Reed, 6 N. Green-st, to Mr. George J. Wilson, Flint, Mich., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson of Ecourse, Mich.

The marriage vows were read by Fr. Vincent Parr of the Holy Redeemer Church of Flint, May 20, at 8 p. m.

The bride wore a street length dress of dark blue crepe with black accessories and wore a corsage of delicate pink carnations. Mrs. Louise Knoblock, stepdaughter of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. They were also attended by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brown, who served the wedding dinner for the bridal party at their home, 2009 Church-st, Flint.

Miss Reed is well known in Columbus, especially on the Hilltop, having been employed at the Columbus State Hospital for 22 years.

Mr. Wilson is associated with the J. P. Burroughs Grain Elevator Co. The bride and bridegroom will be at home after June 15 at 2278 McLean-st, Flint.

Sunny Skies and Summer Weather Lead Hilltoppers to Thoughts of Vacations

By DORIS ROKEACH
Society Editor

Suddenly its vacation-time . . . maybe the fact that it's summer has come as a surprise to some of us . . . But warm weather, swimming parties and picnics mean only one thing to most folks—vacations.

A lot of Hilltoppers have already made their plans for the summer. Some will be content to stay home and keep cool in local pools, on front porches and in their back yards.

Others will head for the wide-open spaces. Here are the vacation spots picked out by some:

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Pfleeger, 273 N. Wheatland-av, think they'll head for the Skyline Drive and the mountains to escape late summer heat. They'll take their two children.

California-bound are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Underwood, 453 S. Burgess-av, who'll spend six weeks touring California, Washington and Oregon. They're also going to spend some time at beautiful Hermosa Beach, where Mrs. Underwood's sister-in-law, Mrs. Gertrude Ghent, lives.

In Connecticut

Already vacationing is Mrs. Joe Goodwin, 531 Westgate-av, who left Saturday for Groton Long Point, Connecticut, where she will spend the summer. Mrs. Goodwin's sister, Mrs. James Foster, of Hartford, will join her there.

Buckeye Lake is the destination of the Swadleys, 752 S. Terrace-av. Bill and the Mrs. will spend two weeks there with their two children.

Maybe New York

The Drapers, 74 N. Roys-av, haven't made definite plans, but Robert has tentatively promised them several days in metropolitan New York.

Also heading east are Mr. and Mrs. James Cooke, 308 S. Westmoor-av, who will spend the last two weeks in July in Rochester. Their two children will accompany them.

The lure of cooler weather and Great Lake fishing helped decide Joe and Rosalie Agee, 471 S. Ogden-av, on North Bay, Canada. The Agees will visit Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Miller who are spending the summer at their Canadian cottage.

Enjoying the sunny clime in California are Mr. and Mrs. Lou Saunders 52 Binns-blvd, and Mrs. Edith Hauntz, 44 Binns-blvd. Vacation plans indicate they'll stay two months.

Fish Story

Their fishing trip to northern Michigan already past, Dr. T. S. Fox, and Chan Randall, 86 N. Terrace-av, are having fun telling some tall tales.

News and Notes

Alaska-bound were Mrs. Robert Williamson and her daughter, Barbara Jean of Olympia, Wash., when they visited May 29, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Underwood, 453 S. Burgess-av. Her husband, Capt. Williamson, is stationed in Alaska with the army.

Home from Detroit for the Memorial Day holiday was Pat Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Goodwin, 53 N. Westgate-av. Patty is going places with her job at the J. L. Hudson Co.

Watching the races at Indianapolis recently were Mr. and Mrs. William Swadley. . . . From Wilson, N. C., last week-end came Mrs. Katherine Swink, formerly Katherine Ogden, of the Hilltop. Katherine was visiting Mr. and Mrs. James B. Ogden, 42 S. Harris-av.

Gets AP Post

Taking over an AP job at the local bureau this week will be Bob Wiener, former Record reporter. Bob and his wife, Dottie (former Dorothy Mers, 494 Wrexham-av), have been living in Berganfield, N. J. Bob recently graduated from Columbia University.

Visiting at the Thomas home, 2724 Vida-pl, recently were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilkins of Louisville, Ky. . . . Recovering from an appendectomy, Mrs. Rhoda Carson, 28 S. Richardson-av, has been hospitalized at Doctors Hospital for the past week.

Honored With Party On 9th Birthday

Mrs. E. H. Adams, 41 N. Oakley-av, entertained Saturday, June 4, with a party for her daughter, Jane, in honor of her ninth birthday. Games were played in the yard and refreshments were served on a table decorated in pink and white.

Guests were Carolyn Cooper, Darlene Maxwell, Carolyn and Judy Michaelis, Carol Limeneck, Judy Lamotta, Sue Ann Bauer.

Susie Raush, Mary Jo Courtney, Barbara Ann Miller, Justine Goetz, Zo Ann Stanfield, Martha Ann and Mary Alice Claggett of Newark, Sonja Lee Griffith of Hebron, Darlene Rose Griffith of Utica.

David and Donald Hallam, Robert Heible, Charles Raush and Michael Golly.

Assisting hostesses were Ellen Claggett, Ruth Griffith and Barbara Adams.

Calendar

Mrs. Marjorie Leighty, 1001 Yearling-rd, is chairman of a rummage sale to be held Monday, June 13, by Women of the Moose Chapter 206 at 902 Mt. Vernon-av.

Women of the Moose Chapter 206 will hold a casserole dinner at the Moose Home, 36 W. Sycamore-st, Thursday, June 9, at 6:30 p. m. At 8 p. m. a regular business meeting and election of officers will be held. Mrs. Marie Hughes, 33 Eldon-av, will preside.

The Circles of the Women's Society of Christian Service of Glenwood Methodist Church will meet as follows:

Circle 1 will meet Thursday at 1:30 at the home of Mrs. H. D. Davis, 116 N. Chase-av.

Circle 2 will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. Harry Kattau, 181 Binns-blvd, for a 12:30 dessert luncheon.

Circle 3 will meet Thursday at 1 p. m. at the home of Mrs. T. J. Frasure, 98 N. Burgess-av.

Circle 4 will meet Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. W. W. Kendall, 172 S. Roys-av.

Circle 5 will meet Thursday at 1:30 at the home of Mrs. Harold Fiechter, 153 N. Ogden-av.

Circle 6 will meet Thursday at 1:30 at the home of Mrs. John P. Jones, 75 N. Ogden-av.

Circle 7 will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. C. Huffman, 280 N. Hague-av, for a 12:30 dessert luncheon.

Circle 8 will meet Thursday at

Attend Graduation Exercises of Son

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Boehm, 2165 Sullivant-av, flew to Hattiesburg, Miss., to attend the graduation services of their son, Edward Charles Boehm, at Mississippi Southern College. Edward graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree and will continue to study for a Doctor of Philosophy degree in Texas.

Scalping, practiced by some American Indians, was painful but not necessarily fatal since the part taken was usually a small circular patch of skin just back of the crown of the head.

PTA News

The Highland PTA will entertain the 6A graduating class with a party Tuesday, June 7, at 2 p. m. The following mothers are assisting in the arrangements: Mrs. Roy Hastilow, Mrs. Kenneth Cooper, Mrs. William Beard, Mrs. Lawrence Seibert, Mrs. Robert Baus. The prizes and games for the party are all planned by the 6A children and their teacher, Mr. Cook.

Triple-Action Wondertub is Secret of "THE WASHER THAT COULDN'T HAPPEN!"
From Bendix, a new automatic agitator washer at a price every family can afford!

UNDERTOW WASHING ACTION!

Wondertub's dynamic shape combines with the trusty agitator to give you a new kind of washing action! Clothes and suds are pulled down into undertow currents. Dirt comes out like magic! Whites are whiter, colors brighter—you'll be delighted with Undertow Washing Action.

FLOATAWAY DRAINING!

Floating suds trap dirt. Then the Wondertub automatically closes in. Dirty suds are pushed up—then down the hollow agitator they float. Sand and other heavy sediment is flushed out through the tub bottom. Dirty water never strains through clothes! Clothes come out clean!

SQUEEZE-DRYING!

Amazing! Wondertub then gently but firmly hugs the clothes—squeeze-eezes out water! No wringer! No high-speed spinning. Just even, constant, vacuum pressure to bring your clothes out damp-dry in a jiffy! No deep-set wrinkles! No tangling! No broken buttons!

Never before a washer like the great new Bendix Economat!

Its secret is the revolutionary new Wondertub*—the utterly different kind of tub that gives you a wonderfully new kind of washing, draining and squeeze-drying!

The Wondertub* is the secret of the amazing Economat: Made of the sensational new wonder material—metexaloy—it eliminates many expensive parts: See the Economat—newest, simplest, automatic washer in the world at the world's lowest price: It's here now!

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

ONE DAY soon after Libby returned from what was to have been a week in New York, but which stretched into two and a half weeks, they met for lunch. Invariably they met in the same restaurant—a quiet, exclusive place little patronized by frantic, hurried shoppers.

Beatrice arrived first, and presently she saw Libby enter—Libby luxuriously coated in beaver and with a band of the same fur across the center part of her sleek dark hair. Indeed so colorful was she that everyone stopped to look at her, and Beatrice felt drab by comparison.

"Oh, Bee, I had the most marvelous time in New York," she cried as she sat down and slipped her arms out of her coat. "Not for years have I had such a marvelous time. Some place to go every night, to the theatre, to dance, to someone's apartment. David knows the most interesting people. At one party he spoke three languages." She laughed huskily. "I felt like a country girl in that cosmopolitan group. And of course I had to buy just gobs and gobs of new clothes to keep up with it all. I may not be remembered for my conversation, but I assure you that no one will ever forget my hats."

When the waitress had come and gone away with their order Libby said, "But David is just the same wherever he is, Bee . . . detached, amusing, and amused. He's a fine man. He makes me think of Kipling's 'If'." She laughed again. "Pardon my frenzy, darling, but the stimulant of those two weeks hasn't quite worn off in my conventional surroundings, and, of course, I wouldn't be caught dead here in any of the hats I wore there."

"Did you see my mother?" Beatrice asked.

"Twice," Libby said. "And she's still one of the most decorative women I've ever known. We went to the theatre to a matinee, and then to her apartment. There were people there, and David came for me and met her. He was delighted with Cecily, and she sparkled for him the way she always does with any new and attractive man. She sent her love to you and Porter and Marianne, and said to tell you if she forgets to write that she's spending Christmas in Florida." Her eyes that Beatrice had been thinking had the cold brilliance of stars gathered warmth. "It was grand of you to have Jane with you so much while I was away. Thanks, Bee."

Beatrice looked at her reticently. "Libby, we must all stop thinking of Jane as a little girl like Marianne."

Libby's warmth suddenly chilled. "What do you mean?"

"I mean there's an awakening mind you can't ignore." She leaned closer. "Jane is growing up. The things that have satisfied her in the past, her music, her drawing, her bike, are not going to continue to meet her needs."

Libby smiled again. "But she is still a little girl in spite of what you say. She's still only a baby. I want to keep her that way as long as I can. Jane's so innocent, so unspoiled, so sweet. I don't want her to be hurt."

"But we can't keep our children from being hurt. Life hurts them. If you protect them too much, they are less able to protect themselves. They have no armor. They have to learn to depend upon their own resources."

There was scorn in Libby's voice when she said, drawing back, "Jane has everything she wants, Bee. Haven't I given her everything?"

Beatrice said, "Give her a party at Christmas. Have it at my house. Have girls and boys and music. Let her buy herself her first long dress. Let her have a wave in her hair, and use lipstick."

"She's too young," Libby said trying hard to conceal her scorn. "What you're suggesting is sheer nonsense. She has plenty of time before she's . . . she's pushed around by her emotions. I know you mean well, and that you love her dearly, but I'd like to keep her the way she is. I . . . I don't want her to be like me."

"Like you, Libby?"

"Yes. Yes. Like me. There's a lot wrong with me and the way I feel about men."

"David, too?"

Libby clasped and unclasped her jeweled hands. "Oh, I don't know. I don't want to know. I can't face it." She shrugged. "I'm just having a good time, and wearing beautiful clothes, and living!"

Whom are you fooling? Beatrice thought. No one can live for herself alone. Not for long can anyone endure an orgy of the ego. Can't you see rebellion in Jane's rigid little back? Are you letting David know the best of you? If you want him, let him touch the bottom of your heart. David will have no warmed-over kind of love.

Libby's eyes moved searchingly over Beatrice's face. "Never let it be said that I took myself seriously. Who started this anyway? You did. Come on. Let's get out of here. Why don't you go up to New York for a few days? No wife is as indispensable as she thinks she is. It's amazing how well men get along without their wives, and how much fun they have. Let's have fun this afternoon, Bee. Let's buy things just for the fun of it."

An orgy of the ego, Beatrice thought again. The sad truth broke upon her own deadened life that in all the years she had known Libby she had never felt so far away from her or liked her so little.

Late one afternoon in December, Mrs. Ramey telephoned and asked Beatrice if she would drive across town and pick up her reading glasses that had been left for repairs. Though inwardly Beatrice recoiled at the command in the old woman's voice and her total disregard for the weather—it was snowing and windy and the streets were slippery—she nevertheless acquiesced. Marianne wanted to go, and ceased to protest only when Beatrice said she might take her sled to the hill in the rear of the house.

After an interminable time in the creeping, intrepid traffic, she at last reached the store that was only two stores away from the little shop where Hilde worked. Though she had seen Hilde every two weeks, she had seen her only in the shop where frankness would have been imprudent.

With Mrs. Ramey's glasses in her purse, Beatrice came out into the street again. The wind stung her face, and the swirling snow was almost blinding. Even the neon signs winked feebly in the darkness. People with heads bowed hugged the buildings as they walked. Those waiting for the bus shivered on the corner.

Beatrice saw Hilde among the latter. Herself eager to be home, she probably would not have singled out Hilde, had the girl looked as the others did with their chins in their collars, their bodies in motion. Hilde simply stood there in her thin shabby coat, her feet in open-toed shoes unprotected, the snow upon her face and hair. Her weary face seemed to say, "I can take this, too, for this is nothing. This is only cold and snow and wind. This is only winter. It touches my body and that suffers, but my spirit is impervious."

Beatrice stepped from the curb and went toward her, seeing that though Hilde was obviously looking at her, she was not really seeing her. When Beatrice touched her arm, she felt the shivering flesh beneath the thin coat.

"Oh, Mrs. Farish!"

"My car is just around the corner. I'll take you home, Hilde."

The girl spoke from lips purple from cold. "No. Thank you so much, but I'm . . . I'm not going home."

"Then I'll take you where you are going. Please let me. There's a heater in the car and a robe. I have plenty of time."

Hilde smiled at her, and they walked away together. When they were in the car, she placed the robe over the girl's legs and turned on the heater. Hilde stopped shivering and closed her eyes. Beatrice did not start the car. Give her warmth a little while, she thought. Warmth and comfort I can give her, but not peace and cheer. She has them already. That wonderful inner peace of hers that I wish I could understand, that attracts me powerfully, that I envy so much.

Hilde said nothing, and Beatrice didn't interrupt the silence. There was nothing to say while the traffic moved noisily about them, the headlights glared, and the wind rattled the doors, and snow stuck to the windshield.

Then Hilde turned to her and smiled radiantly. "It is so warm in here and so cold out there. I am not going home because I am going to work."

"You just left work," Beatrice said.

"Ah, yes. But I have a job at night, too. I'm a waitress in a restaurant. I had to do it for Tommy's Christmas. Could I have him stop believing in Santa Claus? Tom cooks Tommy's dinner and bathes him and puts him to bed."

"Your husband still isn't working?"

"He did have a job, but there was a strike. And now he's looking again. There are jobs he could do, but I don't want him to do work that he hates with his soul. Maybe you don't understand," she said slowly. "We are poor and we have many debts, but a man is what he thinks he is and I don't want Tom to stop thinking that he is a craftsman. I don't want him to lose his pride in the things he can make with his hands. We will see this through. We will manage because we are together in this."

Hilltop Tune Shop Owner Buys 3000 Choice Records

Thelma Kuhn, owner of the Hilltop Tune Shop, 2392 W. Broad-st, returned last week from a record-buying trip which took her to Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

During her trip she managed to acquire more than 3000 records, many of them one-and-two-of-a-kind of the "hard-to-get" variety. She also purchased a number of Crosby, Lombardo and John Charles Thomas discs.

More than 1500 of the records she acquired on her trip already have been delivered to the Tune Shop, she said this week, and the rest will be delivered in the next day or two. A number of the new records are 45 RPM and LP's.

Mrs. Kuhn invites Hilltop records fans to drop in at the Tune Shop to examine the new collection for any long-wanted records which the new shipments may contain. She also invites orders for "hard-to-get" records not in the present collection but which she may be able to obtain through one of her many contacts in the phonograph record field.

St. Aloysius Hurlers Hold Foes to Seven Hits in Five Games

St. Aloysius, champions of the East-West Parochial School League, owes part of its success to Jack Wihl and Jim Darby, two young pitchers, who limited opposing teams to seven hits in five games.

Jack Wihl pitched no-hitters against Holy Name and St. Francis, while Jim Darby pitched a no-hit game against Holy Family until he was relieved late in the game.

Scores of the games follow:

	Hits
St. Aloysius 2, Holy Name 1	0
St. Aloysius, 6, Holy Family 5	2
St. Aloysius 11, Sacred Heart 2	1
St. Aloysius 4, St. Mary Mag. 3	4
St. Aloysius 17, St. Francis 0	0

Hilltop Youths Invited to Compete In Tennis Tourney

A tennis tournament for boys and girls of central Ohio will be held at the Ohio State University courts June 10, 11 and 12. Sponsored by Radio Station WBNS and the Ohio Valley Tennis Association, it is sanctioned by the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association. Similar tournaments are being held in other cities and are the first step in determining the national championships.

Play is divided into four classes: (1) Boys 15 years and under. (2) Junior boys, under 18 years. (3) Girls 15 years and under and (4) Junior Girls, under 18 years. Age on Jan. 1, 1949, determines playing under the association rules.

No entry fee is charged and every boy or girl who had not passed his or her 18th birthday on Jan. 1 is eligible and invited to play. Balls will be furnished and the finalists in each class will be awarded a trophy and medal.

Arrangements have been made for the finalists to play in the Ohio Valley District play-off tournaments with players from Cincinnati, Dayton, Middletown and Hamilton. Last year Columbus boys and girls won two of the district titles and a third was runner-up.

Entry blanks may be obtained from WBNS or the tournament chairman, Robert C. Higgy, 2032 Indianola-av.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Pfc. Robert D. Worthen, who gave his life for his country, June 7, 1944, in France.

Dear boy, the world so soon forgets—
Forgets the awful price
When you, and countless other boys
Paid the supreme sacrifice.
But never! will your "Mom" forget—
Each day I think of you.
Your love and tender care for me,
Your courage brave and true.
In the window where you and I
Placed your blue star proudly
That day . . . a gold one shines there now
Love's constant memory . . .
Ethel Titus Worthen.
Sadly missed by Mother, sisters and brothers.

vitation. His unit now is en route to Europe for an eight-week concert series. All members of the quartet are now attached to the University of Illinois as instructors. Others in the quartet, beside Mr. Garvey, are Homer Schmitt and Bernard Goodman, violinists, and Robert Swenson, cellist.

Has Radio Show

In addition to his activities as an impressario, Jim writes a weekly radio program for Station WOSU. He also selects the music for the program from his own record library, a collection of 500 to 600 contemporary classical recordings. The program has been on the air from 1 to 2 p. m. each Saturday for only two months but already WOSU has offered Jim an additional Sunday evening spot. His second program probably will be inaugurated within several weeks.

Jim disclaims any pretensions of being a musician himself, but he is learning. He already has studied piano and now is in his second year of violin study.

Another Hilltopper, Don Story 155 Binns-blvd, will be a member of the board of Prestige Concerts Inc., for the 1949-50 season as a result of a reorganization of the board following its first-year venture in the concert field.

Going on Vacation?

Two things we can do to help

Before you start on your vacation, here are two things to think about:—

What would you do if you lost all your money while away from home?

How would you feel if you were to arrive home to find all your jewelry and other valuables gone?

Why take chances? Convert your money into American Express Travelers Cheques—the safest, most convenient way to protect travel and pocket cash. You sign them when you get them and again when you spend them—no other identification needed. And they cost you only 75¢ per $100. So, if they're lost or stolen, you get a quick refund.

And for those valuables you leave behind, there's no safer place than your own safe deposit box in our vaults.

Buy Your Coal On The Budget Plan

Spread your fuel costs over the full 12 months. Avoid those extra, heavy, winter payments. Instead of paying fully for coal you buy during the heating season, you pay a small sum every 30 days.

Our coal budget plan lets you figure in advance what your heating expenses will be . . . makes your budgeting easier . . . gives you extra money for the winter holidays.

Call us today for details! Call us for Coal Heating Service!

News of Rome

By Mrs. E. C. Sheets

Mrs. Elwood Rose, Lawrence-av, is in Fowler, Colo., her former home, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Kimble. As her several brothers and sisters live within 30 miles, she will have a very pleasant month of June vacation. Rev. Rose, will leave in July to make the return trip.

Mrs. R. H. Vandevere, formerly of this community, living several years ago on Pasadena-av, now of 96 Olentangy-st, has left for a month's stay in Germany, visiting near relatives about Frankfort. She is in a party of five. One of the men in the party is a veteran of the first World War, 60 years of age, going to Germany to get the woman he met during the first war and bring her to this country as his bride. Another young man of the party is a veteran of the second World War. He is going to Germany to convince a young lady there that she should return with him as his bride. Mrs. Vandevere is the teacher of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Rome.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Miller, Maple-dr, entertained the Rome Card Club Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones and son, Bob, were Saturday supper guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Barnecut, Maple-dr.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Richey and family spent Sunday afternoon visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sealer, London. Their daughter, Linda Lee, returned with them.

Don't forget the Strawberry Social, Saturday night, sponsored by the Monitor Class of the Columbia Heights Methodist Church, Maple-dr.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Caldwell, S. Ogden-av, visited with Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Barpecut, Sunday evening.

Mrs. John Lannon, formerly of this community and now of Ft. Wayne, Ind., visited with Mrs. LeRoy Schoonover, Lennox-av, Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Lannon is the former Mildred High of Garden Heights.

Several weeks ago, Mrs. Stanley Lappe, formerly of Rome, now of S. Roys-av, received word from the New York airport, that their son's dog had arrived by plane from Trinidad but had gotten away. The dog had plenty of identification on his collar, but has never been heard of since. They knew then that their son was on his way home. Master Sgt. Richard Lappe, wife and daughter, Frances Ellen, have since arrived to visit the month of June with his parents.

Mrs. Guy Carpenter, grandmother of Mrs. Stoody, Pasadena-av, and her mother, Mrs. James Phillips, Salt Lake City, are visiting with the Stoody family. The combination represents four generations.

Mary Patterson, Maple-dr, attended the annual picnic of the past matrons of the Honorary Chapter No. 43, in Crestline Wednesday, June 1. She and Mrs. Earl Cline, Crescent-d., Hilltop, also attended the Past Matrons Association meeting of District No. 10, held in Bellville, O.

Saturday evening, May 28, a party was held at the home of Mrs. Roseberry, near Hilliards, in honor of Mrs. Vandevere. The guests were Mrs. Montgomery and Florence, Paul Toops, Marilyn West, Don Greene, Rev. and Mrs. Rigmiller, Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard, Mr. and Mrs. Hoare, Mr. Vandivere and son, Don, Paul Brobst and Dianne Kasler.

Mr. W. G. Lamb, Buena Vista, entertained the parents and friends of her piano pupils with a recital, Friday evening. The students who were on the program were Dickie Elliott, Beverly and Ronnie Campbell, Harold Kuhen, Caroline Kaderly, Patty Johnson, Arthur Siebert, Diane Kasler and Jean Toy also gave a duet number.

Inside WASHINGTON
MARCH OF EVENTS

Mediterranean Pact Loomi; Similar to North Atlantic | Pact Might Include Turkey, Israel, Egypt, Trans-Jordan

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—All signs point to another international pact for peace and against aggression—particularly Russian aggression—in the vital Mediterranean area.

It is possible that the democracies fronting this sea will be included in the North Atlantic Pact—which already bears the signature of Italy.

More likely, however, is a separate pact—to be signed by such nations as Turkey, Greece, Israel, Trans-Jordan, Egypt and some of the former Italian World War II colonies.

Necmeddin Sadak

As a matter of fact, Turkey's Foreign Minister Necmeddin Sadak broached the subject in talks recently with Secretary of State Dean Acheson. With the Rio and North Atlantic Pacts under its belt, the State department may well be considering a Mediterranean Pact next.

• • • •

● FEDERAL SALARIES—President Truman's difficulty in finding successors for Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall and Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan is a factor which may pop up often in the future when top government officials resign.

Mr. Truman repeatedly has stressed that the salaries paid to key government men are too low to entice high class executives from private business to Washington.

For that reason, the president has, in the past, promoted career government workers to top posts. He did that in naming Charles Brannan as Agriculture secretary and Jesse Donaldson as postmaster general.

The chief executive still faces the dilemma of retaining these men when they receive lucrative offers from industry. The pay is too low and the headaches too many to keep top officials happy for long in the capital.

• • • •

● SENATE MAJORITY LEADER (?) LUCAS—Senator Scott Lucas, the handsome and genial leader of the Senate Democrats, has been given a hard time in the current session, especially during the administration's losing fight to gag debate and pass civil rights legislation.

Now they are taking it out on Lucas far from the staid Senate chamber—on the golf course!

Lucas, who found Senator J. William Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat, an especially effective opponent in the civil rights fight, decided to arrange a golf game with the southerner and try to win him over.

Fulbright, however, found it necessary to decline Lucas' invitation. Disappointed, the majority leader went out to the golf club anyway, thinking to pick up a match. There he saw Fulbright on the first tee getting ready to play with Senator Robert A. Taft, the Ohio Republican!

• • • •

● NEW USE FOR GUIDED MISSILES—Vermont's Senator Ralph E. Flanders, who takes pride in his Yankee directness, thinks the State department's striped-pants boys are being too round-about in trying to offset Russian trouble-making.

Flanders wants to take a direct route: straight over the Iron Curtain with leaflet-packed guided missiles and free balloons carrying broadcast devices on Soviet wave lengths to tell the Russian people about the outside world.

Assails Politburo "Gangsters"

It is high time, says Flanders, that the United States meets trouble-making in kind. Maybe, he says, the Politburo "gangsters" can be given "enough domestic trouble to divert their attention from world conquest."

Flanders says that, unlike Hitler's "gangsters," whose ideology had no appeal outside Germany, the Russian export is captivating "soft-minded intellectuals" and providing false hope to the unfortunate the world over.

So Flanders proposes the use of ideological weapons, as long as it is an ideological war.

Three Meetings Slated Thursday For Kiwanians

A busy day is planned Thursday for members of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club who are looking forward to all-day festivities.

Beginning bright and early at 6:30 a. m., members will convene at Griggs Dam Shelterhouse No. 2 for breakfast. Food will be cooked and served by the house committee.

At 12 noon the regular round table meeting is scheduled, and at 6:30 p. m. Kiwanians will join the Kiwanikwe ladies at the Hillcrest Baptist Church for a joint meeeting.

For bigger grocery bargains read the food ads in The Hilltop Record.

Yes . . . ready and waiting for stronger hands to take over the heavy tasks which the older folk have carried through the long years of war. . . . Everything is in good shape. Dad has seen to that. The fine heritage created by his own labour and prudence is protected, too, by a SUN LIFE insurance policy which will, should he die, take care of the mortgage and any indebtedness normal to good farming operations. . . . Yes, Dad made a good job of planning for the well-being and security of his family in generations to come.

Briefly Told: George Matson is back at his old trade, that of brick laying . . . Ruth and Jack Miles have moved to their new home overlooking the Scioto, one of the finest along the river . . . Mose and Mildred Williams are vacationing in New York . . . and ditto for Mr. and Mrs. Lou Saunders who are off for two months in California . . . John Burroughs School people are advertising their edifice of education by way of picture post cards . . . Comes June and we hear that the Libby Downing and Dick Ardle engagement has been called off . . . When the Irene Green and John Lewis Matson wedding becomes news this week-end they will round up their honeymoon in Cincinnati where they will live . . . And the Jinx Witherspoon and Bob Gulcher wedded combination will be at home at 3463 W. Broad-st . . . Comes wedding announcements from California telling of the joining of former Hilltopper Dee Ann Powell and Lewis D. Hart who will reside in North Hollywood . . . And from Chambersburg, Pa., the white folded sheets announce that former Hilltopper Dorothy Kavanaugh is wedded to William Galloway . . . And just remember that the guy who keeps rowing the boat doesn't have time to rock it.

Flowers Of The Week

A nice bouquet of Rosebud flowers this week to Larry Scales, well known Hilltopper, who has acted as the spark plug behind the successful American Legion baseball program for the past 22 years. While the job has been a lot of fun to Larry he can also take great pride in the fine program which he has headed up and the community congratulates him as the new season gets under way.

Early June News Bits: Headline in an eastern newspaper: "Aly Kahn Have Rita" . . . Mrs. Wilma Johnson will shove off for the west coast soon to visit her daughter Susie, with the "Brigadoon" cast, which expects to make a movie soon . . . Newsboys have their trials and tribulations as was experienced by Dickie Trott down south of Sullivant, when in his haste to deliver the Record he bumped into a man carrying groceries, and—you guessed it—he broke his eggs and had to chase home to get money to buy the gent more eggs . . . These little merchants are in business for themselves so they will appreciate your cooperation in paying your paper bill when they come to collect . . . Jean Whipple is learning to drive . . . George Schaaf is driving a new green Buick sedan . . . It's hay making time in the countryside nearby, says I, as I clean the hayseed from my back.

HBA Readies Blood Donor Pledge Cards

Pledge cards will be distributed late this week by the Hilltop Business Association for participation in the program of the Regional Blood Center at 30 E. Town-st.

Cards will be available to members of the association and their families and to employes of association members and their families. The cards should be back in the hands of association members and ready for return to the association not later than June 20, Secretary C. H. (Doc) Campbell said today.

One Per Cent a Week

The business association's blood donor program is being launched in co-operation with the Red Cross project to assure the Columbus Blood Center a regular flow of blood supplied by volunteers.

It is to be the pledge of the association to send at least one per cent of its pledged donors to the blood center each week.

Through their contributions of blood, the donors will be assuring themselves all the blood they or any member of their families might require in the event of illness or emergency. Because of the constant scarcity of blood in almost all Columbus hospitals, the insurance that this feature of the donor program offers families of the contributors is priceless.

Volunteers Needed

The Franklin County Red Cross is making an urgent appeal for volunteers to work at the blood center during the summer months to help in the operation of the center as gray ladies staff aides and motor service drivers.

The urgent need now is for gray ladies who act as hostesses, making the donor comfortable and at ease. Gray ladies must be at least 21 years of age.

Drivers in motor service also must be at least 21 years old. They drive doctors and nurses into adjoining counties on day trips with the bloodmobile. Others stand by at the blood center to

Keeps Herself Happy--Keeping 27 Cubs Happy

Have you ever tried to manage 28 active boys and keep them happy and agreeable and still accomplish something? Most women would say, "Not for me," but one Hilltop woman really enjoys it.

She is Mrs. Charles Meddles, 507 Binns-blvd, and she does this outstanding bit of maneuvering at least two times of each week in her capacity as den mother of Den 2, Pack 86 of John Burroughs School.

Most dens have eight to 12 members, but Mrs. Meddles just can't say "no" to a boy who desires a place in her group. They even run to "Mom" Meddles' home for lunch when they forget or lose lunch money.

Mrs. Meddles already had some practice at this sort of thing. She is the mother of three children and four step-children and has worked with children out of the Federal and State Children's Bureau.

Occupies "Spare" Time

She spends all her spare time from her busy home life planning activities for her boys and taking them on trips to such places as the Indian Caves at Delaware, the Ohio State Museum, Columbus Art Gallery, Ohio Penitentiary, city jail and many other city and state offices.

Cubbing isn't all play. Besides their required achievement the boys are learning community responsibility. With the money they make selling stationery they provided small luxuries for Donald Jhensen, a member of their pack, while he was recuperating from polio.

They are registered in a unit as annual subscribers to the Red Cross. They are enrolled in the Columbus Garden Club and raise their own flowers for corsages and plants which they present to their mothers at their annual Mother's Day Tea.

Gave Party for Parents

At Christmas time they gave a party for their parents and served Christmas cookies which they themselves had made. They provided baskets for the needy and made leather-craft gifts for inmates of the State School and the Sun Ridge Rest Home. They sponsored Mrs. Alice Dilsaver at this home until her death in February of this year.

Mrs. Meddles' den originated with Pack 86 in November, 1946, and soon grew so large that Mrs. H. Neil Pence acted as an assistant den mother until May, 1948, at which time Mrs. Homer Ranney assumed these duties.

Mrs. Meddles also served as chairman of the club's successful rummage auction.

Sends Six Into Scouting

Six boys have graduated from cubbing into scouting under her guidance. They are Clyde Wilson, Bernard Ranney, Philip Christ, John Fisher, Scott Pence and Bob Kern. An unusual feature of this process of graduating into scouting came about when one boy, Bernard Ranney, came back to serve as den chief to his former den.

Mike Leach, Bill Kern and Mike Christ are not old enough to be regular Cub Scouts but serve as mascots and were "top men" on the pyramids which the den performed for the scout circus at the Coliseum.

Tonti Petitions Now Circulating

Petitions are circulating this week seeking the candidacy of Alfred Tonti, of Tonti Builders, Inc., 2370 W. Broad-st, for the City Council seat.

Deadline for petitions is Friday. Tonti stated that he would announce tomorrow if he would be a candidate for the position. He is a Democrat.

Councilman Henry J. Koontz has already announced his intention to be a candidate to succeed himself. Councilman Koontz, for the past six years the Hilltop's sole representative, will have his name on the primary ballot. He is a Republican.

Directors Are Appointed For Five Playgrounds Here

All Recreation Areas but Two Open Monday

Mrs. Roy Hastilow, 197 Midland-av, general chairman of the grand opening of five major Hilltop playgrounds scheduled Monday, this week announced names of directors and committee members, who will be in charge of activities during the summer season.

Playgrounds scheduled to open formally Monday are Westgate Park, Holton Park, Glenwood Park, Columbian and Highland Avenue School playground.

Directors selected are Jerry Geroux, Glenwood Shelterhouse; Mack Pemberton, Westgate Park; Howard E. Nicklaus, 962 Fremont-st, Columbian; Jack McAndrew, 655 S. Highland-av, Holton Park. Names of directors to officiate at West Broad Street School and John Burroughs School playgrounds will be announced later.

Members of committees of six Hilltop playgrounds and their sponsoring organization are as follows:

Columbian Playground

West Mound Street School PTA, sponsor. Committee: Mrs. Harold Beard, 635 Woodbury-av, chairman; Mrs. R. W. Self, 612 Hilltonia-av; Mrs. Edward Hensly, 597 Woodbury-av; Mrs. Charles Bachman, 572 Woodbury-av.

Mrs. John Hyer, 604 Columbian-av; Mrs. Lawrence Surrell, 512 Woodbury-av; Mrs. R. P. Ealy, 486 Hilltonia-av; Mrs. P. G. Blakely, 638 Wrexham-av.

Record Carrier Proves Loyalty To 'Last' Ditch

For the cynic who believes the younger generation is going to the dogs and has no feeling of responsibility, here is a ray of sunshine.

Last Thursday, Keith Whitney, 13, of 2286 Homewood-av was working in the metal shop at West Junior High School. When he caught his left thumb in a metal grinder, he was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Just before he went under the anesthetic for amputation of the thumb at the first joint, he had one "last" request:

"Please get someone to carry my Hilltop Record route for me!"

Keith delivers Records on Wrexham and Hilltonia-avs from Floral-av to Mound-st. And he promises he'll be back on the job next Tuesday, come what may.

'HILLTOP FATHER OF THE YEAR'

McComb in New Rose Show Spot

Leo McComb, proprietor of the Rosebud Floral Co., is chairman of the Rose Festival coming up this week-end at City Hall. Anyone who has ever been chairman of an event of that size can understand how Mr. McComb was under the definite impression that he had done a little more than his share.

However, his home community, the Hilltop, decided it would not be quite content to let him off so easily. So, after all the nominations were in, a special Hilltop Kiwanis committee bestowed on Mr. McComb the title of "Hilltop Father of the Year."

That means that at 9 p. m. Friday Mr. McComb will be at the Rose Festival at City Hall (he would have been there anyhow) in a place of honor as one of the five "Community Dads" chosen from various sections of the city to receive a huge bouquet as the Hilltop's official representative for the opening of the three-day show.

Don't anybody ask what a florist is going to do with a gift bouquet!

The point is that from the many excellent nominations received by the Record and the Kiwanis Club, Mr. McComb's name was selected for this first annual award because he has been and is an above-average father and a man who has contributed greatly to his community.

Through hardship and heartbreak, he never has lost his desire to serve his family and his community. Two years ago, Mrs. McComb lost her life in an auto accident in which Mr. McComb was injured seriously. But with the help of his older children, he has kept his family together and has continued his avocation of beautifying the Hill-

Hilltop Graduate At Central Wins $100 Scholarship

Paul Lorimer, 517 Columbian-av, who graduated this week from Central High School, has been awarded a $100 scholarship on the basis of his scholastic record during the past four years.

The scholarship was presented to Paul by the Foremen's Club at a banquet held at the Southern Hotel.

In addition to maintaining the highest point average of any student at Central High School for the past four years, Paul is an accomplished musician. As a clarinet player he is associated with the Columbus Civic Orchestra, the Moose Band, and the Central High School Band and Orchestra. On the basis of his musical ability he was awarded first place in the regional educational music contest in Granville in March, and second place in the state contest in April.

Valedictorian of his class at commencement exercises held June 6, Paul is a past president of Student Council.

Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Lorimer.

BUILDING FUND 'SHOT IN ARM'

Kiwanis Club Gives $500 To Hilltop 'Y'

(An Editorial)

The Hilltop YMCA fund campaign received a heartening shot in the arm Tuesday night with the contribution by the Hilltop Kiwanis Club of $505, of which $5 goes to cover the Kiwanis membership in the local Y and $500 goes to the Y's building fund.

It is this type of annual contribution by major Hilltop organizations which will bring to the community within the next few years a YMCA building which will become the desperately needed community center of which Hilltoppers have dreamed for so many years.

Kiwanis, by its generous gift to the fledgling Hilltop Y, has fulfilled one of its prime purposes—service to the youth of its community. The newest gift is not, of course, Kiwanis' first or only such contribution to the youth organization which already looms as one of the chief community enterprises of the future. The Kiwanis paper sale of 1947 netted the newly organized Y over $2800 and enabled it, in large measure, to get under way.

The local YMCA is near the top of the heap so far as Columbus branch Y's are concerned. Many communities in this city would like to have a branch Y. The Hilltop has a community Y — not because the community simply wanted one, but because it had the imagination and energy to go out and get itself one. That is why the Hilltop Y is held in such high esteem by officials of the downtown YMCA; that is why the Hilltop Y will be high on the list for any help the downtown Y can give in getting a branch building program under way.

Working under the principle that "them that has gits," it would appear to be a fine idea for other organizations on the Hilltop to follow in the path of the Kiwanis Club insofar as they are able. Only by that means can the Hilltop stay far enough ahead of the parade to merit the favorable consideration of the parent YMCA when the time comes around for talking money.

The Hilltop always has been alert enough to recognize a "new frontier" when it comes up against one. Progress comes through mastering those new frontiers as they present themselves.

The Kiwanis Club is to be commended for striking out into this new frontier—perhaps the most challenging this community ever has faced.

70 Japanese Bibles Ready for Kiwanis Shipment

AIDED BY SPECIAL-BUILT HOME

Undaunted Polio Victim Fights On

By Doris Rokeach

Early summer with its warm weather and long sunny days brings a longing to most of us to be out of doors—to swim, to picnic, to play tennis, baseball, or to take long walks in the country.

There is one young woman here on the Hilltop with just such a longing. She lies very quietly in a blue room shaded by exquisite floral drapes. She is paralyzed from her shoulders down.

Less than four years ago, Mrs. Mary Jane Francis Mack was a cheerful housewife, happy with her husband and son whom she adores.

In October, 1945, tragedy came to the little family. Mrs. Mack was stricken with polio. For nearly four months she lay in an "iron lung" at Children's Hospital. After hospitalization in Columbus for 14 months, she went to Warm Springs, in an attempt to regain her health.

There she had all the prescribed treatments—baths, massages, exercise, rest—but to no avail.

She left Warm Springs, not much better physically but much improved mentally and spiritually. From that time on she has been convinced that she will walk again regardless of what the doctors say.

Despite her incapacity, the Hilltop mother manages to lead a fairly normal life. As a hobby she sells magazine subscriptions, greeting cards and stationery. She is able to feed herself and to use the telephone, which is kept near her bed.

Her eight-year-old son, David, a second-grade student at West Broad Street School, keeps his mother entertained after school hours. Lawrence Mack, who is associated with the Big Bear Stores in Columbus, is his wife's chief attendant.

Mary Jane Mack is no newcomer to the Hilltop. Born and raised here, she graduated from West High School in 1927. Her mother, Mrs. Nellie Francis, resides at 28 S. Richardson-av.

Eager to help his wife in every way, Mr. Mack has built a charming home at 178 Algonquin-av with specially built doors, ramps and light switches to enable his wife to move about in her wheel chair.

Contractor for the 1½ story white frame home was William Wahl, 2923 Fremont-st, a friend of the family, who painstakingly planned every detail to benefit the invalid.

Decorative Wedding Ceremony Unites Miss Nancy Frederick and Mr. Joseph Lenihan At St. Mary Magdalene Church, April 30

Mrs. Joseph P. Lenihan

One of the season's prettiest weddings was solemnized in St. Mary Magdalene Church, Saturday, Apr. 30, at 11:30 a. m., when Miss Nancy Alice Frederick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Frederick, 304 Binns-blvd, became the bride of Mr. Joseph Patrick Lenihan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lenihan, 494 Cypress-av, in a double ring ceremony, Rev. Father Raymond Bauschard officiating.

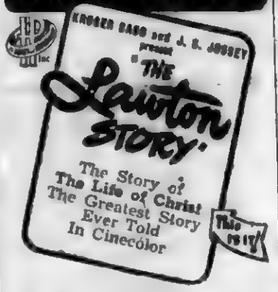
The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a bridal gown fashioned of traditional white slipper satin. The sheer yoke was edged with two ruffles of alecon lace and the long sleeves tapered to points over each hand. The skirt featured an unusual style of alternate ruffles of the same lace and satin falling over a hoop. Lace edged the full cathedral train. Her finger-tip veil of imported silk illusion was held in place by an attractive tiara fashioned of tiny seed pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with two orchids and shower of shattered carnations.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chilcote, matron of honor, wore a colonial gown fashioned of crisp tissue faille in daffodil yellow with matching hats. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations and blue sweetpeas. In her hair she wore a tiny halo of imported silk tulle trimmed with matching fresh flowers.

Miss Eileen Davis, bridesmaid, and Mrs. Eileen Stephenson, bridesmatron, wore gowns identical to that of the matron of honor in delphinium blue with matching halos. They carried yellow carnations and mellon sweetpeas.

Mr. James Lenihan of Barberton, O., cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man. Seating the guests were Mr. Harold Stephenson, Mr. James Chilcote, Mr. Richard Newell and Mr. Robert Chilcote.

A reception for 150 guests was held at the Beechwold immediately following the ceremony. Receiving the guests were Mrs. Vernon Frederick, mother of the bride, in navy blue with pink accessories, and Mrs. Raymond Lenihan, mother of the bridegroom, in aqua with brown accessories. Both wore pink carnation corsages.



Hostesses at the reception were Mrs. Mildred Roberts, Miss Joyce Roberts, Miss Mary Lenihan and Miss Jean Chilcote. Miss Eileen Davis, bridesmaid, sang a selection of wedding music, accompanied by the bride's father.

For a two week wedding trip to Florida, the new Mrs. Lenihan donned a grey suit with peach blossom pink accessories. The couple are now at home at 795 Thomas-av.

Charlene Rolsten, Robert Cassell To Take Vows June 11

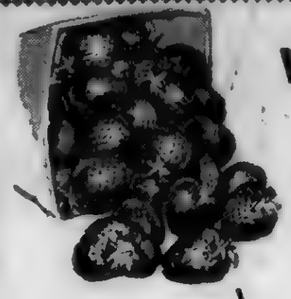
Mr. and Mrs. Chalice L. Rolsten, 90 S. Harris-av, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Charlene, to Mr. Robert E. Cassell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Cassell, 244 St. Ogden-av.

Miss Rolsten is a graduate of West High School and Franklin University, and she is now associated with Donald F. Bowers, M. D.

Mr. Cassell, also a graduate of West High School, is a junior in the college of architectural engineering at Ohio State University, and is a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity. He is also employed by the F. & Y. Construction Co.

For her matron of honor, the bride-elect has chosen Mrs. Howard Young. Her attendants will be Mrs. Howard Boucher, Jr., and Miss Dorothy Lindner.

Mr. Joseph H. Cassell, Jr., will serve as best man for his brother. The ushers will be Mr. Joseph Caligiuri, Mr. Robert Kimes, Mr. John Bill and Mr. Roger Miller.



A half hour of nuptial music will precede the open-church wedding, which is to take place at 7:30 p. m. on Saturday, June 11, at the Glenwood Methodist Church. Rev. Joseph B. Shellhaas will officiate.

Hilltop Brides-To-Be Feted With Showers, Parties Prior To Nuptials This Week-End

Many June brides-to-be are being feted this week with a whirl of parties, showers, teas and luncheons. Among them are Miss Jinx Witherspoon, Miss Irene Green and Miss Charlene Rolsten.

Irene Green

Miss Green, who will become the bride of John L. Matson, 2425 Kenilworth-av, Cincinnati, June 11, at First Congregational Church, will be honored with a dinner at the Willard Restaurant for herself and her attendants on June 10, preceding the wedding rehearsal scheduled for that evening.

Miss Green, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Green, 3046 Crescent-dr, was feted with a crystal and china shower on May 29, given by Mrs. Kenneth Crawford and Mrs. Doris Singer; and two miscellaneous showers, one May 26, at the home of Mrs. W. E. Shapter, and the other June 1, at the home of Miss Eleanor Pfeifer. Mrs. John Ginsler was assistant hostess.

Jinx Witherspoon

A linen shower and tea yesterday climaxed a week of pre-nuptial festivities for Miss Jinx Witherspoon. Guests attending the tea given by Mrs. W. A. King, 1959 Glenn-av, were Mrs. Henry Gulcher, Mrs. J. E. Milhon, Mrs. Joseph W. Agee, Mrs. C. M. Witherspoon, Mrs. Ken Carpenter, Mrs. Anna Perkins Mrs. E. G. Witherspoon and the guest of honor.

Mrs. George Sargeant, 2055 Fairfax-rd, entertained with a miscellaneous shower for Miss Witherspoon on Sunday, June 5. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Louise Sattor, Mrs. J. E. Milhon and Mrs. W. E. Turner.

On June 3 Phyllis McComb, assisted by Miss Virginia Witherspoon and Mrs. C. M. Witherspoon, entertained with a miscellaneous shower for Jinx. Guests attending were Mrs. Virginia Skillman, Mrs. Frank Deyo, Mrs. Francis Long, Mrs. Paul Zubrod, Mrs. Ken Carpenter, Miss Joan Carpenter, Mrs. Robert Michel, Mrs. E. G. Witherspoon, Mrs. Alban Gulcher, Miss Betty Hamilton, the hostesses and guest of honor.

Charlene Rolsten

Miss Charlene Rolsten, who on June 11 will be the bride of Mr. Robert E. Cassell, was honored with a miscellaneous shower June 4, given by Miss Doris Ripple and Mrs. Chester Hoffert at the latter's home, 106 N. Westgate-av.

Guests included Miss Lois Fuller, Miss Margie Jackson, Miss Justine Newman, Miss Nancy Kimes, Miss Linda Kay Hoffert, Miss Bettirae Beard, Mrs. Bernice Long, Mrs. James E. Cassell, Mrs. Ralph Kimes, Mrs. Chalice Rolsten and Mrs. J. H. Cassell.

Legion Auxiliary Will Elect Delegates To Ohio Convention

At the next meeting of Camp Chase Post No. 96, American Legion Auxiliary Unit, June 10, at the post club rooms, 10 S. Burgess-av, at 8:15 p. m., the delegates and alternates to attend the Auxiliary Twelfth District and Department of Ohio Conventions will be elected.

The Twelfth District Auxiliary Convention is to be held July 15 at the Camp Chase Club rooms. The Auxiliary department convention will be held in conjunction with the American Legion Department of Ohio Convention in Columbus in August.

On June 3 Mrs. Ernest H. Brown entertained the executive committee and their husbands at the new Brown home, corner of Palmetto-st and S. Huron-av.

Westgate Church Plans Lawn Fete

Circle 2 of WSCS, Westgate Methodist Church, is planning a lawn fete to be held from 6 to 9 p. m., Thursday, June 16, on the church lawn, Algonquin and Brinker-avs.

Home made cake, ice cream, pop, coffee and hot dogs will be served. General chairman of the lawn fete is Mrs. Charles Moody. She will be assisted by Mrs. Wilbur Wilson, cake chairman; Mrs. Mearl Weaver, poster publicity chairman, and Mrs. William Arthur Harris, Jr., ticket sales chairman.

Ice cream and cake tickets are available from any Circle 2 member for 20 cents. The public is invited.

Honored Queen

Joan Dew

New honored queen of Bethel No. 1, International Order of Job's Daughters, will be Joan Dew, who will be installed Wednesday, June 15, at 7:30 p. m. at the Central YMCA, 40 W. Long-st.

Miss Dew is a student at West High School and will enter school as a junior in the fall.

Kiwanikwe Club Will Celebrate Founders' Day

A Founders' Day dinner will be held by members of the Kiwanikwe Club this evening at 6:30 at the Hillcrest Baptist Church. Special guests at the dinner will be members of the Kiwanis Club and their friends.

Guest speaker will be Rev. H. N. Brobst, pastor of St. Matthews Lutheran Church. Highlight of the evening will be the initial appearance of the Kiwanikwe Ladies' Chorus, who will furnish the musical portion of the program.

Another feature of the evening will be the appearance of Mrs. Robert G. Eichenlaub, who will present dramatically selections from the book "Green Pastures."

A review of the business of the Kiwanikwe Club for the past year will be presented. Martha Hegenberger, president of Kiwanikwe, and Jack Sensenbrenner, president of Kiwanis, will offer greetings to guests.

Also included in the program will be the display of the Kiwanikwe historian book, with clippings and notations of business during the past year.

African Violet Club To Hold First Show

The recently organized Columbus African Violet Society will hold its first African Violet show at the Parkview Hotel, June 11 and 12. The show will be open to the public.

The exhibitions will be made by members of the society and other plant owners.

Between 300 and 400 plants will be exhibited, covering 50 different varieties. There will be several exhibits of new varieties, recently developed, that are not on the market at the present time.

Anyone wishing to exhibit African Violet plants can do so by contacting Mrs. Carles Evans at JE. 5787. All entries must be in by not later than Friday, June 10, so as to provide adequate space. Arrangements have been made to take proper care of all exhibited plants during the two-day show.

Warm-up for West's Class of January '48 Reunion

Paul Bez of Sunbrite Cleaners Near First Hilltop Anniversary

Looking forward to his first year anniversary on the Hilltop is friendly Paul Bez. Gil (as his friends call him) is proprietor of the Sunbrite Cleaners, 2130 Sullivant-av, which specializes in personal attention to garments.

Gil, a comparatively young man in the cleaning business (22), got most of his experience with the Modern Cleaning Co., Bexley, prior to his service with the army during the war. He picked up a few pointers, too, in Japan, where he was stationed with the 25th Occupation Division.

Gil thinks Japanese methods are a little old fashioned. All cleaning and laundering is done by hand, as is the pressing, which is accomplished with flat-irons heated on hand-fired flames.

The young proprietor got his start in the cleaning business when he purchased a truck, which is used now for Sunbrite's daily pick-up and delivery service on the Hilltop. Later he purchased the present business from his friend, J. S. Fairchild.

Gil, who is unmarried, gets a kick out of passing the time of day with his customers. All garments receive his personal attention. Garments normally receive three-day service, but Gil advises that when necessary, one day service is available. Motto of the Sunbrite Cleaners is "Bring them in by 9:15, by 5 o'clock we'll have them clean."

A graduate of Columbus Evening School, he also attended twilight school at Ohio State University and Capital University. His driver, Ed Crawford, assists him with the business.

DeMolays To Install Friday at West Gate

A number of West Side boys will be installed as officers of the Columbus Chapter, Order of De Molay, at the 35th annual installation ceremony at 8 p. m. Friday, June 10, at West Gate Temple, 2925 W. Broad-st.

Stephen E. DeVoe, 827 Bellows-av, will be installed as the new master councilor and John W. Helman, 239 S. Westgate-av, as junior councilor.

Installing marshal will be Donald E. Fell, 41 S. Huron-av, the present master councilor.

Other West Side boys who will be installed are Eugene McGurer, junior deacon; Robert Roller, orator; Wayne Groce, standard bearer; Robert Pike, 3rd preceptor; Thomas Myers, 4th preceptor; George Brittlinger, 6th preceptor; and Jack Gammon, 7th preceptor.

top, and particularly its schools, with floral plantings.

He is the father of six children, five daughters and one son. They are:

Mrs. Mary Morehart of Akron, Mrs. Virginia Woodland of 2424½ W. Broad-st, Robert McComb of 87 Terrace-av and Misses Phyllis, Margaret and Janet McComb all at home.

And, although he's only 49, already he has three granddaughters and a grandson.

Mr. and Mrs. McComb were married in 1919 when he was 19 years old. They moved to the Hilltop in 1922. For many years he was associated with The Columbus Citizen in the circulation department and conducted his business as a florist as a sideline. He has been devoting his full time to his Hilltop business for several years, however.

Mr. McComb was the originator of the Mum Show, now an annual fall event, and he contributed all the mums for the first show.

In recent years, he has made the now-famous mum plantings at West High School and more recently has added plantings at West Broad Street School, Highland Avenue School and John Burroughs School.

Hellmann's is SO right

So good, so many ways—because Hellmann's is Real Mayonnaise. Its golden richness, its double-whipped smoothness can't be topped by any mayonnaise—even homemade. Unlike ordinary "salad dressing," it contains no starchy filler. In salads, hot sauces, sandwiches, soups ... in hundreds of dishes, Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise adds the magic touch of real flavor!

FENCES

Now that the kiddies are spending a lot of time out in the yard, you'll feel much safer if they're protected by a GRAVES CHAIN-LINK FENCE. These high-quality fences are an excellent safeguard against trespassers, as well as an improvement to the appearance of your property. They can be purchased on easy terms and we're prepared to erect one for you immediately.

A West Side Realtor Will Serve You Well

The Hilltop and West Side realtors named below, who are members of the Columbus Real Estate Board, are now holding monthly meetings for the purpose of providing better service to their clients.

This new cooperative plan enables the members to discuss mutual problems and exchange listings, which results in quicker sales; thus, when you list your property with any one of this group, you are automatically placing it with all 17 members—at no extra cost.

When you are ready to sell, avail yourself of the efficient, conscientious service offered by these realtors, who are residents of your own community.

MEET HEADLINE HARRY TOY

Detroit Police Head Battles 'Em All: City Council, Newsmen, Henry Wallace And the Cities of Chicago and Windsor

By JOHN CREECY
Central Press Correspondent

DETROIT—Harry S. Toy, the peppery little attorney who spends the Detroit police department, eats the front pages as often these days that Detroiters have taken to calling him "Headline Harry."

During his brief term of office as police commissioner Toy has feuded with innumerable organizations and groups—including the cities of Windsor, Ont., and Chicago, Ill.

These affairs keep his name almost constantly before the public, but on the rare days when all is quiet at police headquarters, Toy can usually be depended upon to come up with some novel idea or comment that will make news.

Four of his more spectacular inspirations recently have been:

1—A special "stork patrol" of policemen who are trained to pinch hit for the doctor, if an expectant mother doesn't get to the hospital in time.

2—An "escort service" of policemen to insure the safety of any woman who is obliged to walk down a dark street. All she has to do is call headquarters and a patrol car will be sent out to drive alongside her. (She can't ride in the car, however. Snaps Toy: "We're not running a taxi service.")

3—A proposal that policemen be accompanied by dogs while walking beats.

4—A police "suggestion box", into which the public is invited to drop complaints or compliments.

He gained great popularity in juvenile circles when he sided with youthful ball players in a row with the board of education.

THE BOARD issued a rule prohibiting the playing of hard ball on public school grounds. When a group of youngsters protested, Toy sympathetically instructed all policemen to ignore the rules.

He promised that he personally would pay for any resulting broken windows.

THEN FUN BEGAN—Toy swears in Mrs. Hunter as policewomen's chief.

TOY—Sometimes a boomerang.

Effective as this move was from a public relations standpoint, it almost proved a boomerang. Within a few days a delegation of indignant mothers marched on city hall, complaining that Toy's action had resulted in four boys being hurt while playing hard ball, at one school alone.

Toy quickly fixed things up by making an arrangement with the recreation department, by which hard ball was limited to school grounds which were adequately fenced.

During last year's presidential campaign Toy got onto front pages all over the country when he declared that Henry Wallace ought to be shot.

When Wallace denounced Toy for this stand, the commissioner explained: "What I said was that I felt all those engaged in un-American activities ought to be either shot, thrown out of the country or put in jail. If the shoe fits Henry Wallace, let him wear it."

Statements like this have understandably aroused the bitter enmity of Communists and fellow travelers. However, they also have disturbed a number of more conservative groups and individuals who feel that Toy's conception of what is "un-American" is a rather personal one.

Born in Elkhorn, W. Va., 57 years ago, of a Welsh father and Pennsylvania Dutch mother, Toy worked his way through the Detroit college of law, graduating in 1913.

AS A LIEUTENANT in World War I he was almost court martialed for roundly cussing an officer of an Allied country at an embarkation port and taking his machine gun company from England to France in the wrong ship.

Arrested by military police when he disembarked with his men at a French port, he was immediately called on the carpet by an angry superior officer.

"They were going to put my men in a cattle boat," he explained blandly. "The boys thought that was lousy and so did I. So we just got into another boat."

With a good war record behind him he returned to Detroit and settled down to practicing law. In 1931 he was elected prosecutor. The he became state's attorney general and later, supreme court justice. He resigned from the court in 1938 to run for governor, was defeated, and re-entered private life.

He was called back into the public arena on Jan. 2, 1948, by Mayor Eugene I. Van Antwerp. Although the mayor is a Democrat and Toy a Republican, Detroit's city elections are on a non-partisan basis and such alliances are not unusual.

IT WASN'T long before Toy was making things uncomfortable for the city council by demanding that he be given 1,200 more policemen. He claims the present force of 4,200 men is far from adequate. (So far, his pleas have got him just 120 more policemen, plus a lot of rough comments from councilmen.)

Toy also made his influence felt beyond state and even national boundaries. He denounced Windsor, Ont., which is in Canada, just across the river from Detroit, as "a nest of iniquity" where "every form of racket is going on." Windsor officials snapped angrily that Toy was merely trying to spotlight Windsor gambling in order to cover up his own department.

Making similar charges against Chicago, he found an adversary worthy of his mettle. A Chicago newspaper sent a reporter to check up on Detroit. His findings included gambling and drinking establishments within a stone's throw of Toy's own headquarters.

Toy cleared his throat and said, gruffly: "I don't say Detroit is simon-pure—but vice here isn't organized. It's lily white compared with Chicago."

Newspapermen have always gotten along well with Toy, but this amicable relationship was shaken recently when he announced that reporters and photographers would have to take "loyalty oaths" in order to receive press cards.

It was regarded as an affront by most newsmen for several reasons. First was the fact that an overwhelming majority of Detroit newspaper workers have been fighting against Communism for years, and resented any slur on their loyalty. Second was the implication of "licensing" the right to gather news.

Members of the Detroit Newspaper Guild promptly decided they would not ask for press cards, and declared in a resolution: "Guild members will continue to gather news without license or permit from the police department."

JOINING in the protest was the American Civil Liberties Union, which declared in New York: "We can hardly conceive of any action which more immediately strikes at freedom of the press than the one you propose. The security of the nation will not be enhanced by any such arbitrary orders which in effect subjugate journalists to the whims and fancies of local police authorities."

At the urging of other city officials Toy backed away from this hot potato, but soon found himself in another battle—this time he was in the middle of a hair-pulling contest between factions of the policewomen's division.

Fifty of the 83 policewomen signed a petition protesting the policies of their new chief, Mrs. Marian C. Hunter, a Toy appointee. Two of the policewomen who acted as official representatives of the group were promptly suspended.

Up rose the Americans for Democratic action, the Detroit Firefighters' association and the Detroit Federation of Teachers in vigorous protest.

"To dismiss those whom the group selected as their ambassadors or agents is an act of hostility even beyond that practiced between warring nations," said the teachers' group. "Even dictatorships do not shoot the emissary of an enemy power."

The mountain of publicity that Toy gets, even though it isn't all good, has made him a household word, and it is persistently rumored that he may run for mayor next fall.

Mayor Van Antwerp privately has admitted some worry on this score, for publicity means votes, and Toy has proven that in any battle of headlines he is an opponent to be feared.

Glenwood Players Guild Close Season

At the May meeting of the Glenwood Players Guild held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bohanan, the following officers were elected:

President, J. E. Galloway; vice-president, Lawrence Earl; secretary, Ethel Galloway; and treasurer, Lee Harlow.

The Glenwood Players Guild has just closed its current season, and from the plans outlined by President "Jack" Galloway the members of the guild are looking forward to another year of successful dramatics. The guild is planning more dramatic productions, picnics, industrial plant visitations, over-night parties, and regular monthly social gatherings.

The following Hilltop people are members of the guild: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bohanan, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Earl, Mr. and Mrs. D. Knight Finley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Galloway, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gildersleeve, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Harlow, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Moon, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Remington, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sandusky and Annis Turner, director.

Mrs. Roland Has Job On Hands Keeping 2000 Pupils Well At West

It's the job of Gloria Roland, school nurse, to keep 2000 West High students well—and a splendid job she has been doing.

Health and physical education classes implement Mrs. Roland's job in teaching health preservation measures at West High School.

Mrs. Rowland comes to West on Monday and Wednesday mornings and Friday afternoons. A native of Lancaster County, Pa., she attended the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. Then she enrolled at Ashford General Hospital and received her training at White Springs, W. Va.

She studied public health nursing at George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Rowland did her field work in Louisville, Ky., came to Ohio State University, where she received a bachelor of science degree in education and from there she went into public health nursing.

Besides doing public health nursing here, she goes to Olentangy Village for similar work.

When a senior in high school she entered the Daughters of the American Revolution contest, took a test in American history and also on government, and won a free trip to Chicago and an entire new wardrobe; was valedictorian for her class, and was awarded a scholarship in nursing while in high school.

At Ohio State she was a member of the Phi Lambda Theta scrority.

Illnesses are infrequent at West, but she sends home from four to five pupils daily, mostly because of upset stomachs and minor injuries.

Recently Mrs. Rowland conducted a physical check-up of all the ninth and eleventh graders.

SAFETY FIRST

In the midst of the fierce battle for Okinawa there appeared in the areas held by the 7th Infantry Division several neatly lettered signs exhorting the men to be more devoted to their personal health habits.

Whichever way the Liberty Division boys happened to turn, they were faced with such slogans as, "Wear your helmet—not for looks, but for safety!"

Another one was, "Bury all guns—not for looks, but for safety!"

One front line unit aptly expressed their idea of the whole situation with several large signs prominently displayed throughout their war-torn area stating, "Take us home—not for looks, but for safety!"

HE'S 35, IN PRISON 17 YEARS

AFTER SPENDING half his life in prison under life sentence for a holdup murder at Adrian, Mich., 35-year-old Rene DeMeerleer (middle) is free, his "quick justice" arrest, trial and sentence all in one day being changed by U. S. Supreme Court decision to manslaughter, thus making him eligible for parole. The court held he had not been given benefit of counsel. Sentenced when he was 18, DeMeerleer is shown with parents, Alphonse and Helen, on release. (International)

Want to Keep Cool? Here Are the Four Main Rules

Four suggestions that will help you to disregard hot weather were offered today by Dr. Ollie M. Goodloe, Columbus health commissioner. They are:

1. Drink plenty of water.
2. Wear light-colored, loose fitting clothing.
3. Cleanse the skin often.
4. Eat the proper foods.

"The human individual has the most efficient cooling system in the world, if he would only give it proper care," Dr. Goodloe said. "That cooling system is the skin. Treated right, it will keep you comfortable on the hottest day."

Perspiration is the secret. Perspiration brings water to the surface of the skin, there to be evaporated with the effect of cooling the skin.

Must Have Fluids

But perspiration takes place only when conditions are right. You can help create these conditions by drinking at least four to six glasses of water daily. This gives the body sufficient fluid to permit perspiration.

Wear light colored clothing of the open weave type such as cotton or linen. This allows air to circulate about the skin and help the process of evaporation of perspiration.

There's a note of caution to be observed here, Dr. Goodloe pointed out.

Cooling the body too quickly can result in a chill that may lead to a summer cold. When overheated, cool off slowly. Don't turn the fan on and sit directly in the breeze.

Cleanliness Important

Cleanse the skin often in summer. In that way, you remove the dust, oil and waste that may otherwise clog the pores and put down on the skin's ability to perspire.

Watch your diet. Eat fresh fruits and green vegetables. Avoid foods that contain starch and refined sugars, for those fuel foods tend to raise body heat.

Incidentally, tests have proved that by getting hot under the collar you'll feel hot literally as well as figuratively. Keeping your temper in check, just being cheerful and pleasant, will help you feel cooler.

Sufferers from heart disease would do well to remember that heat lowers their fatigue point. They should take life easier and work less when the thermometer goes up.

What Price Strawberries!

By Betty Barclay

Of course, quick-frozen products have, happily, removed the seasonal limitations from many foods. Even so, we never quite get over the thrill of the first strawberries in the market. Like the first robin in the yard, they spell "spring." They are usually no budget item — those first strawberries — but we are tempted to indulge in one purchase. After that, it isn't quite so hard to pass them by until they become more abundant and more budget-wise. You'll want to make those first berries go as far as possible, and here is a way to do it. Combine them with lemon-flavored gelatin, shredded coconut, and whipped cream to make Delmonico Dessert — as delectable a dish as you could hope to serve!

Delmonico Dessert

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin; 1¾ cups hot water; 2 cups halved fresh strawberries; sweetened; ¾ cup shredded coconut, cut; ½ cup cream, whipped.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Chill until slightly thickened. Then fold in strawberries, coconut, and whipped cream. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with additional whipped cream and strawberries, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Note: If desired, 1 box quick-frozen sweetened sliced strawberries may be substituted for the fresh strawberries in the above recipe.

Ohio State Offers Pre-College Counseling to Prospective Frosh

For the June high school graduate, college-bound but uncertain of the course, Ohio State University offers important help.

A "pre-college counseling" program, aimed at helping the prospective freshman select the type of college course he should follow, opens at the university on July 18. It will be administered by the university's Occupational Opportunities Service, directed by Dr. Frank M. Fletcher, Jr., in cooperation with the junior deans and secretaries of the 10 colleges on the campus.

Freshmen who have been admitted to the university will be given their choice of nine different days, over a period of nine weeks this summer, to receive the counseling. They are notified of the counseling facilities through an announcement invitation sent to each. Separate date schedules are set up for each of the five undergraduate colleges.

In addition to individual interviews and tests, the program calls also for the introduction this year of group session. A number of the new students will meet for general orientation information concerning educational opportunities at the university and also hear a representative of the college in which they are most interested.

The students also will discuss the purposes of the tests they are taking and other problems, such as the advisability of part-time employment, extra-curricular activities, etc. The group approach is expected to make it possible to counsel approximately 30 per cent of the incoming freshmen, Dr. Fletcher said.

Let's Act As Big As We Are!

There comes a time in the life of almost every individual or organization to choose between "thinking big" or continuing to "think small." In some cases, the time allowed by circumstance for the decision seems all too short.

It seems to the Record that the time has arrived for the Hilltop Business Association, already bigger in numbers than anyone ever had dreamed possible, to take what may seem to some to be a giant step forward. The Business Association should begin, right now, to act as big as it really is.

The Record believes the Business Association needs a full-time, paid secretary, complete with office and the authority and backing necessary to get more things done.

To those who ask, "How can the association afford to take such a step at the present time?," we will reply with the question:

"How can the association afford NOT to take the step?"

The situation at present simply is this: business men of the Hilltop who are called upon to shoulder their responsibilities in the Business Association are spending far more of their valuable time in handling details of the association's work than they can afford. The association, created many years ago to make things easier for the Hilltop's business men, has become a burden to those charged with its leadership. They are handling time-consuming details which, properly, should be arranged by a full-time secretary whose salary should be paid by the membership of the association as a whole—thus distributing the burden of association affairs on the shoulders of all members.

There is not the slightest disposition on the part of the Record to criticize the present part-time secretary of the association or any of his predecessors. The present secretary, in the opinion of the Record, has done a marvelous job. He can scarcely afford, however, to take the time from his own business, at the salary he receives, to perform all the tasks which would fall to the lot of a full-time secretary.

The activities of the Business Association are many and varied. The contribution of the association to the economic health of the community is almost incalculable.

Either the association will falter by reason of the disinclination of business men to assume the intolerable burden of leadership in the organization—or the association will experience a spurt forward under the leadership of an executive who can concentrate his full effort on the job to be done.

Eloquent Case for Profits In General Motors Report

By John Kelly

Eloquent testimony in behalf of "The Case For Profits" is offered in the 1948 annual report of General Motors. Its record of achievement is but a sample of what has been done by Ford, Chrysler and other leading companies in all branches of industry.

The many recent disputes about whether profits are "too high" and how they might be divided tend to overlook a vital argument. The debaters pass right over the fact that the public at large shares in the benefits of profits used to enlarge and improve production facilities.

General Motors' report affords an impressive example of the result of profits retained to produce more and better products that everyone can use. It covers 40 years of passenger car development and compares the 1948 Chevrolet with the 1928 Buick and the Cadillac of 40 years ago.

Even in terms of inflated dollars, the Chevrolet was lower in price than 1928's Buick or the Cadillac of 1908. Yet, as is shown by statistics embodied in the report, it is much more car by every test. Moreover, the table does not begin to reflect the improvements making for greater safety, dependability and comfort.

In 1910, two years after the corporation was started, there were 10 thousand employes. Today General Motors employs more than 380 thousand men and women. The report calls attention to the fact that 40 years ago a job in an auto plant, while a good job, meant a 60-hour work week. Since then, hours have been reduced to the standard 40 per week with the rate of pay increased.

Safety and working conditions have been greatly improved, with heavy physical work reduced by the use of machinery. Employes enjoy paid vacations and holidays, group insurance, and other job benefits unheard of 40 years ago.

A huge amount of new capital is constantly needed to improve products, reduce costs, and expand both the number of jobs and the amount of the pay rolls. The necessary funds have been provided and attracted by the good earnings of successful organizations over the years.

And Have Not Love

By MARGARET NICHOLS

Copyright, 1948, by Margaret Gorman Nichols. Published by Macrae-Smith Company. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

LOVE in action, Beatrice thought as Hilde told of working nights as well as days. A faith so passionate that the miracle wrought of it would surprise everyone except these two.

Hilde said with a soft laugh, "Other people don't understand. Nina said, 'Why don't you divorce him? He is a burden to you. You could get another man to take care of you.'" She smiled and her dark lashes made shadows on her cheeks. "Divorce Tom? It doesn't make sense!"

Beatrice started the car. "You're coming home with me tonight for dinner. My husband won't be there—there's a meeting he has to attend—so there'll be only you and Marianne and I. You can call the restaurant. You can surely take off one night."

"Oh, no, I couldn't!" Suddenly she looked incredibly gay. "I shouldn't. I shouldn't let you make me weak. But one night—one night not to work and to visit you. Yes, I will do it."

"And there is a Santa Claus, Hilde."

"I knew there is. As long as I live I shall believe in the spirit of Christmas."

Beatrice was thankful that Jenny, the long suffering maid in the Ramey household, opened the door and received Mrs. Ramey's glasses. No, Beatrice said. She could not come in. She had a dinner guest in the car. As she walked down the steps she contemplated Mrs. Ramey's horror were she to hear that Beatrice had her hairdresser to dinner. For Mrs. Ramey gloried in her snobbishness. She had no sympathy for the weak, the humble, the poor. Though professing to be intensely religious, Mrs. Ramey had once told Beatrice that she never prayed. The inference was that God needed Mrs. Ramey.

Beatrice drove slowly down her own street savoring the beauty of the first snowfall. The laden branches of the trees were like great soft white plumes. The smaller trees were frost-tipped, the frost gleaming in the lights that shone from the windows. Here where the snow would remain pure for a time was quiet and deserted.

Hilde spoke. "How lovely it is here. Is this where you live?"

"Yes. The last house is ours, the stone one."

"Yours?" Hilde asked quietly. "It's everyone's, isn't it? I don't know if I can tell you what I mean. It's just that I don't understand how people can be possessive about things. Take the tree on your front lawn, for instance. It isn't really your tree. Trees belong to everyone. We don't own anything, you know, and yet everything is ours to enjoy. When I take a walk with Tom and we see a lovely house, I enjoy it as much as the people who live in it. And when we take a walk in the country on Sunday, Tom and Tommy and I, I love the earth I walk over as much as the people who own it. It's just like Tom says that the beautiful things, the good things of this world are not privately owned. You don't have to buy them and pay for them. We are only guests upon the earth, and life is a very precious gift."

"Your Tom must be an extraordinary young man, Hilde."

"Is it so extraordinary not to want to abuse your natural gifts?"

When they went inside, Hilde went to the fire and held her hands over it. Beatrice left her while she went to the kitchen to ask Frances if Marianne had come in, and to tell her there was a guest for dinner.

"That child's had her bath and her supper and she's sound asleep," Frances said. "You should have seen her when she came in. Wet to the skin. I got them clothes off her in a hurry and I took her supper upstairs to her. And I haven't heard a peep out of her since. You won't be hearin' nothin' from her the rest of this night."

Hilde had turned around, and she was looking at everything in the room when Beatrice joined her. Most people admired Beatrice's taste in her house, or said they did, but to them it was Beatrice's house and exclusively hers. It was not so to this tall girl with short soft curls and deep eyes and gentle ways. For to Hilde, for a little while, this room with its warmth and beauty was hers, too, without malice or envy. It was hers with love, because love was the last thing she would ever relinquish. She made Beatrice think of Libby who denied love. She made Beatrice think of Mrs. Ramey who had everything except love.

It was still early when Hilde said that she must be going home. Since Frances was spending the night as she customarily did in bad weather, Beatrice was free to drive Hilde home.

When she stopped her car before a house in a long row of identical, new, small brick houses, Beatrice noted the crisp white ruffled curtains at the window.

"Won't you come in and meet Tom?" Hilde asked.

"And wake up Tommy? I know children when unexpected guests come in. Only her play in the snow this afternoon put Marianne so soundly to sleep tonight. Not this time, Hilde, but another time I will come in and meet him. I want to meet your Tom. Thank you for asking me."

She saw Hilde run up the steps. She saw the door open and a man eagerly receive his wife in his arms before the door closed.

Turning homeward, Beatrice knew her own spiritual desolation.

Entering her own living room again she knew that not only had Porter been here and left, but also that he had brought a guest—a woman. For two empty glasses sat intimately side by side on a low table, and one ash tray contained two cigarettes with lipstick stains. And neither she nor Hilde had sat on that side of the room nor used that particular table.

She had taken the used glasses and the ash tray to the kitchen and was washing them when Porter came in through the kitchen door. He took off his hat and shook the snow from it. The cold had touched his face giving it a fine warm color.

"I brought Bonnie in for a few minutes," he said.

Bonnie—the name sliced.

"I thought you were going to a meeting tonight," Beatrice said.

He smiled. "You weren't listening. I said I was working tonight."

"Oh."

"Bonnie has been bedeviled by colds. She isn't used to our crazy climate. I told her to take our sun lamp to see if that would help. We just stopped in to get it, and then I took her and the sun lamp back to her boarding house. I thought you were in bed until I saw that your car was gone."

"I had a guest for dinner and I took her home." She turned toward him and said half in jest, half seriously, "I wasn't aware that you were ever concerned for Miss Perkins' health."

He smiled. "Miss Perkins is like you, Bea. Sufficient unto herself. She doesn't need anyone. Bonnie is a girl who needs looking after. She doesn't think enough about herself."

Her thoughts were gathering like storm clouds. She saw him walk past her. When she asked, "Don't you think I need you?" her voice was lost in the greater sound coming from the radio—that of the eleven o'clock news broadcast.

Porter's mother and his stepfather came for the holidays.

Though Beatrice's relationship with her mother-in-law had always been a most amiable one, the unbridgeable gap of generations together with Mrs. Sanger's gentle aloofness and great modesty forbade intimacy. Beatrice had always thought it a pity that Marianne had not had a grandmother whom she could love unreservedly, one who would sew for her dolls, one to whom she could whisper secrets. While Marianne embarrassed Cecily, to Porter's mother the child was such a perfect thing of her kind that Marianne restrained her high spirits and suffered lest she lose her pedestal position in the eyes of her paternal grandmother.

Though appearing frail in body, Katharine Sanger's dark eyes behind her pince-nez attested to her unvanished spirit. She invariably wore black with a touch of soft white about her throat and wrists. Her hair was cotton-white, short, and curled close to her small head. To Beatrice she recalled that almost obsolete word—lady.

Her second marriage to Frank Sanger had been a highly congenial one—Beatrice had never heard her mother-in-law refer to her husband other than as Mr. Sanger. They had met in Florida, and after a courtship that would have left many a younger man breathless, they had married shortly after. Frank's children—he had long been a widower and retired from business—had married and settled in places so conveniently and reputably healthful—Arizona, New Mexico and California—that Porter's mother and his stepfather suffered the cold of Boston only a few weeks of the year.

Though she had never told anyone, Frank Sanger reminded Beatrice a little of Eddie. For Frank Sanger, too, was short and silvery haired and walked with staccato steps. Like Eddie, too, he was a restless little man, eager for new sights and experiences. So much was he an avowed enemy of age that it was he who romped with Marianne before the fire, he who took her to the zoo, he who helped her build a snowman on the terrace. His devotion to Porter's mother was a touching, tender thing to see, and to his insatiable restlessness she deferred with a feminine little laugh. When Beatrice and Porter and Marianne had visited them in Boston before Porter went into the Navy, a woman of long acquaintance with the Sanger family had told Beatrice that Frank's first wife had been a large blustering person constantly storming the emotions of her family with exhortations of being unfailingly right in all things. That observation clarified his overt affection for the dignified little lady who lightly admitted errors in judgment.

Out of their WISDOM

WAS LIT THE FLAME OF Freedom!

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE and Constitution were written by men of wisdom and experience. Thomas Jefferson left a library of 10,000 volumes, and read the books of great thinkers in six or seven languages. James Madison was a student of theology, and was one of the wisest men of the Colonies. Benjamin Franklin possessed a great store of common sense, experience and culled wisdom of the ages, through reading. He is credited with starting America's first circulating library.

Jesus Is Crucified and Buried — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scriptures—Matt. 27:57-61; Mark 15:43-47; Luke 23:26-47; 24:1-6; John 19:33-37.

When Pilate found that the mob would not be satisfied unless Jesus was crucified, he released Barabas, the murderer, to them, and when he had scourged Him, he delivered Jesus to be crucified.

Jesus' enemies struck the Master, and mocked Him; they clothed Him with purple, plaited a crown of thorns and put it on His head, and bowed before Him, pretending to worship.

After that they took off Jesus' purple robe, put His own clothes upon Him and led Him out to cruelty Him. And they compelled Simon, a Cyrenian, to carry the cross.

After Jesus was dead and taken from the cross, a rich disciple, Joseph of Arimathea who had begged for His body, laid Him in his own tomb.

Adventists Reach Fund Drive Goal

Community gifts and personal contributions of the members to the recent Seventh-Day Adventist drive for mission and welfare support totaled $4352, Richard T. Minesinger, local pastor of the Eastwood Seventh-Day Adventist Church, 26 N. 21st-st, reported today. A goal of $4000 was set this year for the local church in its annual ingathering campaign, conducted during April and May.

"The members of the local church wish to thank their friends and neighbors for their loyal support of this annual church program," Pastor Minesinger said.

Among the projects to be carried out are: equipping of the surgery department of a sanitarium-hospital in Rio de Janeiro; supplying of medicines to be dispensed by a mission motor launch fleet to natives along the Amazon; enlargement of an African leper colony; establishment of a school in Hiroshima, Japan; and home mission and welfare work in this country.

Keith Dancers In Final Rehearsal For 'Bon Voyage'

On Friday, June 17, at West High School, the pupils of the Keith School of Dancing, 15 N. Westmoor-av, will present their ninth annual revue, entitled "Bon Voyage."

"Quanta Le Gusta" will be the cue for the opening number and dancing pupils will have a chance to display their talents.

"Campus Capers" gives the baton groups a chance to show many intricate twirls.

"Oriental Fantasy" will feature Anita Lawler singing an aria from "Madame Butterfly," accompanied by the Rickshaw Girls.

"Introduction to Spring" opens with the falling of the first petals and finishes with the June Bride and Spring Brilliants numbers.

"Holiday in Rio" takes the audience to a Mexican arena where Toreadors and snappy Latins can be seen at their best.

Keith Miller, well-known Hilltop accordionist, will present several numbers.

Accompanists will be Mrs. Herold B. Gillivan and Dorothy Hammond.

The Keith School of Dancing will be closed during the summer months as Miss Lovewell will leave for Colorado to study at the Perry-Mansfield School of the Theatre in the Rocky Mountains. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Gillivan and her daughters, Mary Ann and Clara Jane.

Fall classes will be resumed Sept. 12.

Concordia Lutheran Church Graduation Slated June 17

The first graduation exercise in the history of Concordia Lutheran School will be held Friday, June 17 at 8 p. m. at the school, as announced by Principal Arthur L. Witt. The commencement speaker will be Mr. W. J. Gernand, superintendent of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Schools in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and West Virginia. A reception will follow.

Concordia Lutheran School is concluding its third year. It was opened in the fall of 1946 with an enrollment of 13 pupils in grades 1 to 6. The enrollment at present is 41 including the pupils from Kindergarten through grade 8.

Church Picnic Planned Sunday

INFLATION? — NO!

With many necessary commodities the buying power of your dollar has shrunk to a shadow of its former self but used in the purchase of your family burial estate it commands full value as past experience proves that the value of your family plot only goes up in price. Visit Sunset and invest in a lifetime of peace of mind. Where you buy the best for less.

THIS great bridge spans the Delaware River and joins the cities of Philadelphia and Camden. Over it passes a never-ending stream of humanity. The bridge has done much to promote commerce and industry between the two cities and the states of which they are a part. Over it pass also tired business men and women, going home from the strenuous grind of every day life in factories, shops and offices.

Bridges have many worthy functions. One day each of us must cross that imaginary bridge which connects our world of today with the hereafter. We are laying the foundations of that bridge by our every day living, and we must build it well.

Belief in the hereafter and obedience to God's commandments help greatly in easing life's burdens and make us strong enough to discharge our responsibilities in life in a manner that will do us credit in our own eyes, before men and in the sight of God.

Someone suggested that we should live each day as if it were to be our last one on earth. The Bible suggests the same thought when it points out that no man knoweth the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh. Regular attendance at church and Sunday School will help us to build our bridges of life on sound foundations.

Family, Broken Up 34 Years Ago, Reassembling; Final Reunion Near

Barely recovered from a recent reunion with her brother, Orval Peacher, whom she hadn't seen for 34 years, Mrs. Mabel Shaner, 235 N. Eureka-av, is looking forward to seeing another brother 1915.

Orval and his sister, Mabel, were separated in that year when they were placed in the Clay County Orphanage in Indiana. Mabel was sent to live with Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Vaughn of Vincehnes, who reared her. Orval was reared by Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schlagel of Clay City, Ind. Here their contacts ended.

All six members of the Peacher family have been found since Orval's retirement from the army in 1946.

Mrs. Shaner, her husband, Charles, her brother, Orval, and his wife will leave some time in July for a visit with their other brother, who is residing in Montana.

By C. C. Hartley

Could You Call These The Good Old Days?

Dwight Campbell of 332 N. Warren-av, has discovered a copy of the Reading, Pa., Gazette and Democrat dated Apr. 16, 1870 and a backward glance at those "good old days" makes interesting reading matter.

Nearly three columns of ads on the front page included such services as those of attorneys, carpenters and jewelers as well as merchandise such as lumber, fertilizer, plaster, safes, boots and liquors.

Big news of the day was a breach of promise suit against a minister. Almost equally as important was the story of arrival of the first martin.

An Indian raid in Texas wasn't nearly so exciting in those days as the story of a cat trying to suffocate a baby.

Anything "good" about those days might be reflected in the grocery ads which listed apples at 30 cents a peck, butter at 35 cents, eggs 25 cents a dozen, and ducks at a dollar a pair. Round steak was 20 cents a pound and choice beef roasts could be bought at 18 cents a pound.

An editorial stated that "woman sufferage is rapidly becoming a question of the hour."

Belvidere Swamp Doomed

Residents of the Belvidere, Wrexham, Lechner-av area appear, finally, to have won their fight for the elimination of the swamp condition which has existed in the center of the area for a number of years.

City Council last night, acting under an almost-forgotten state law, ordered the owner of the property on which the swampy area lies to fill the hole within 30 days. Unless the owner of the property acts within the specified period, the city will fill the hole and charge the owner for the work.

Action Unanimous

Councilman Henry J. Koontz told the Record that the old statute on which Council's resolution is based was unearthed by City Service Director Elmer Keller. Mr. Keller informed Mr. Koontz of the existence of the law and the councilman immediately had the resolution drawn up and introduced in Council.

Council's action last night was unanimous and it was signed immediately after the meeting by Mayor James A. Rhodes.

Residents of the affected area have complained of the swamp as a nuisance for years. It is perhaps 150 feet across from a hole about 15 feet deep and which a Columbus peat moss company has been digging humus for sale to gardeners. Residents of the area have complained of a stench emanating from the bog in which some water always stands. They also have felt that the swamp's presence constitutes a hazard to small children playing in the area.

Residents Visit Council

About 20 residents paid a visit to Council about two weeks ago to present their case against the nuisance. The City Department of Health has been active since in investigating their complaint.

The state law on which the resolution is based provides that if a property owner permits any hole or depression on his property within the limits of a municipality to collect water which lies stagnant, the council of the municipality may order him to fill the hole or depression within a specified period, according to Mr. Koontz.

The fight for the elimination of the swamp has been led in recent months by the Hilltop Community Council of which Russell L. Carter, proprietor of the Broadview Linoleum and Tile Co., is president.

2 from Hilltop Will Attend Girls' State Opening at Capital Saturday

Sue Glass

Lavonne Beard

For the third consecutive year, the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Ohio, will sponsor Buckeye Girls' State. From the Hilltop Sue Glass and Lavonne Beard will join other Ohio girls to participate in this democratic program.

Sponsored by the Blue Star Mothers, Columbus and Franklin County Chapter 6, Sue was chosen on the basis of her scholastic and activities record at West High School, where she will be a senior student in the fall. She is vice-president of the Photoplay Club and program director of the Spanish Club. She is also an accomplished dancer and sings with the Hoge Memorial Church choir. As a dancer Sue is a member of the Stella Becker Dancers, a ballet group, and is a member of the Beckerettes, a chorus line.

Both the girls are 16 years old and are good friends. Lavonne, who will also be a senior at West High, is primarily interested in law. She was sponsored by the Camp Chase Post Auxiliary unit, and intends to attend Ohio State University after her high school graduation. Sue has chosen Miami University and expects to study merchandising when she graduates.

Lavonne, who is interested in music, is a member of the Columbus Girls' Choir, the West High Choir and the West High Trio. She is treasurer of the Latin Club and is a member of the Y-Teens, Dramatic Club and L Society. The girls will go to Capital University, scene of Girls' State this year, next Saturday. They will reside on campus for the week-long program.

Speakers at Girls' State will include Dr. Harold L. Yochum, president of Capital University; W. A. Schneider, mayor of Bexley; Judge Myron B. Gessaman, Columbus; Mrs. F. M. Quinn, Columbus; Chief Justice Carl W. Weygandt; Justice Charles B. Zimmerman; Lt. Gov. Gerald Nye; Finance Director H. Defenbacher; Senator Margaret Mahoney; Judge Constance Keller; Congresswoman Frances Bolton; Mrs. Christine Conaway, dean of women, OSU, as well as American

2 Camp Chase Post Ball Teams Launch Season

By Dave Miller

Camp Chase's two American Legion baseball teams this summer are playing under a new and good-sounding system.

Coaches Tim Sweeney and Ray Burke and Manager Homer Burke, have organized two teams, the A and B squads, with the former entered in the North Leagues and the latter in the local West League. The reason for this is the fact that the two teams won't have to play each other. Drawing from both the public and parochial schools of the West Side, the coaches expect to send to the field two exceptionally strong nines for this summer's play. The A team will be the varsity, the B more or less

Work and Play -- Mostly Work -- Facing West High Teachers During 'Vacation'

By Myron T. Seifert

School teachers, too, welcome a vacation or change from 10 months of pedagogical duties—and West High teachers are no exception.

When pressed for statements the Cowboy pedagogues expressed varied opinions as to summer plans:

E. T. Stone, chemistry teacher, is taking a trip through Michigan and also is going to paint houses. Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Kittel will trek to state parks in Indiana early in the summer and hope to take another trip later if possible, outside of that just "things and stuff" to do—and a vast list of "musts".

Arthur Buchanan plans to paint three houses, take a trip to Vermont or Michigan and work at Seiller's on Saturdays.

W. D. Campbell, art teacher, plans to take his 11th, and last, camping trip to the Adirondacks.

O. C. Montgomery will be at home and go to the farm during the day. Calvin Park will make and resilver mirrors for commercial purposes.

Pauline Sparrow will attend school at Columbia University, finishing work for her M. A. degree. John Thompson will do "Lincoln Library distribution" for Frontier Press Distributing Co.

Margaret Campbell, Latin teacher, just wants to work in the garden and perhaps take an auto trip east. C. Michel will stay at home and do odd jobs that he was unable to do during the school year.

E. M. Kaylor will spend most of his summer on his farm.

C. S. Kennedy is going to do construction on a gasoline service station, a dwelling house, make plans for a business center, and take several small week-end trips.

Harold Washburn will build houses and David Randall will manage the Hilltop Swimming Pool. Wayne House hopes to go to school. Mary Murphy will spend part of her time at Lake Erie and part at the farm.

Jane Thomas plans to spend a month or so in the Northwest, California, Grand Canyon and points west.

Leone Glenn, French and Spanish teacher, is sailing June 15 on the DeGRASSE; will visit friends in Paris and do some sight-seeing; visit her cousin in Geneva, Switzerland, for a few days, then take a tour of northern Spain, starting at Biarritz, France, to San Sebastian, Burgos, Valladolid, Madrid, Toledo, Barcelona, and then to Carcassonne, Lourdes.

$1000 Prize List Is Set Up For '49 Hilltop Bean Dinner

Merriman Names Chairmen for Annual Civic Outing Scheduled for July 27

Plans for the Hilltop's biggest annual celebration, the Bean Dinner, were beginning to shape up rapidly this week with the announcement of a merchandise prize list in excess of $1000 and the appointment of chairmen for the various activities.

The event will be staged, as usual, at Westgate Park. The date is July 27. Festivities are scheduled to get under way at 1 p. m. and continue through the afternoon and evening. A dance is scheduled in the evening.

Any merchant who is a member of the Hilltop Business Association, which sponsors the Bean Dinner, will be glad to explain the revised system of prize distribution which has been adopted by the association this year. The auction system, employed at last year's Bean Dinner, has been abandoned in favor of the new plan, according to J. P. (Jack) Merriman of Seiller's Department Store, general chairman of this year's event.

One of the outstanding features of the 1949 Bean Dinner will be a merchant fair in which various Hilltop stores will display choice items of merchandise in booths set up on the grounds. Individual prizes will be offered at many of the booths during the day, including prizes for children who attend the big outing. The merchant fair will be under the general direction of Don Rice of Westgate Electric Co.

The midway concessions will be handled this year by Joe Briggs of the Joseph M. Briggs Insurance Agency.

The bean tent itself will be managed by Franklin Sparks of the Sparks-Kent Super Market while the soft drink concessions will be in charge of Harold Fox of the Fox Food Shop.

E. O. Melvin of 107 S. Warren-av, will be grounds chairman and Elmer J. Hegenberger of Shank & Saunders will handle the duties of finance chairman. Publicity is in charge of C. Carlton Hartley, publisher of The Record.

2 Suspects in Valleyview, Hilltop Burglaries Nabbed

Two men suspected of the June 2 burglary of a grocery at Valleyview-dr and N. Eureka-av, in which the store was virtually stripped of beer, wine and food, were arrested late last week in West Virginia and were returned to the Franklin County jail Saturday.

One is Raymond Grambo, 30, formerly of Valleyview-dr. He was one of the two men acquitted last March by a jury in County Criminal Court on charges they were the "bantam car" bandits that terrorized a Bexley surgeon and his wife in their home.

The other is Charles Marchand, 21, formerly of N. Eureka-av, also under indictment here on a charge of burglary of a grocery on N. Hague-av, four months ago.

Deputy Paul Stormont returned both men on burglary charges filed by the Valleyview grocer, W. L. Burtschin, 2413 Valleyview-dr.

Grambo also is wanted by the state as a parole violator. He is on parole from the Ohio Penitentiary where he was sentenced in June, 1946, on a manslaughter charge in connection with the Death of Dewey Morris, 43, of McKinley-av, in a fight.

Burtschin reported the following were taken from his store:

Two cases of wine, 15 cases of beer, 100 pounds of sugar, 65 cartons of cigarets, 11 cards of razor blades, $65 worth of meat, one case of oleomargarine, potatoes, five large rolls of cheese, 25 pounds of lard, canned goods, cakes and a radio.

Grambo and Marchand were arrested at Wayne, Wayne County, W. Va.

West Gate Council To Elect Officers

West Gate Council No. 129 R & S M will hold its final meeting of the year at 7:30 p. m. Friday. It is election night and officers for the coming year will be elected and installed. All companions are cordially invited.

A report of council activities for the past year will be given, and the new Illustrious Master will have some information on his plans for the coming year.

C. Milo Alford, the present Illustrious Master, wishes to thank all companions for their support during the past year, in helping the council enjoy a very prosperous year. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Playgrounds Opened For 1949 Season

The Hilltop and West Side summer playground season got off to a resounding start yesterday at five playgrounds in the area. Two others, West Broad Street School and John Burroughs School playgrounds, are to be opened for the summer season next Monday.

Parades and contests were the features of the season opening at the five playgrounds operated by the Columbus Recreation Department of which Nick Barack is director. Playgrounds which opened yesterday were Glenwood, Westgate, Holton, Columbian and Highland Ave.

Three playgrounds are to have assistant supervisors this summer. Glenwood will have two assistants: Betty Rush, 215 Sycamore-st, and Richard Kuntz, 485 Hilltonia-av. Westgate will have two assistants: Dorothy L. Lightner, 189 N. Hague-av, and Neil Proctor, 261 Columbian-av. At Holton Park, Jean Stonecipher, 1528 Northwest-blvd, will be the assistant director.

Several improvements at the city playgrounds in the area have been made this year, including some remodeling at the Glenwood shelterhouse and black-top tennis courts at Holton Park.

Counting on a Big Crowd for Kiwanis Night Tonight

BALL GAME MEANS CAMP FOR BOYS—M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner (center), president of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, doesn't have to give these boys a sales talk on the Kiwanis night baseball game between Columbus and Indianapolis at Red Bird Stadium tonight. The boys are Gary (left) and Glenn Bradford, 841 Harmon-av. They attended Kiwanis Camp last year and hope to be among 140 boys to spend a week in the Hocking Hills again this year. Whether they can or not depends on the profit the combined Kiwanis clubs of Columbus can make on tonight's ball game. Every penny of profit from tonight's game will go toward sending boys to camp. Any Kiwanian can supply you with tickets. Pre-game festivities start at 7:30 and a 30-minute fireworks display will follow the game.—Columbus Citizen Photo.

Juanita Johnson And Mr. Campbell To Wed In July

The approaching marriage of Miss Juanita Johnson is being announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Johnson, 179 S. Harris-av.

Miss Johnson will exchange wedding vows with Mr. Walter M. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Campbell, 997 Linwood-av, on July 2, at St. John the Evangelist Church. A wedding breakfast at the Southern Hotel will follow the ceremony.

The bride-elect is a June, 1947, graduate of West High School. She is employed at the Farm Bureau, Inc., as a secretary and bookkeeper. Mr. Campbell is a graduate of Aquinas High School and is employed as a grinder at the Timken Roller Bearing Co.

Gillen-Forbes Vows Exchanged In Open Air Ceremony Sunday

Climaxing the Festival of Roses Sunday afternoon at City Hall Miss Sherry Gillen, 18, and Pfc. Howard Forbes, 23, were united in marriage in a festive open-air ceremony.

More than 600 witnessed the ceremony, performed by Lt. Co. I. T. May in front of a rose-decked altar sheltered by a white canopy on the south side of City Hall.

The bride, dressed in formal-length bridal gown, was escorted to the altar by her father, Mr. Floyd Gillen of 2389 Apple-st. Following the ceremony the new couple left for a week's honeymoon trip to Lake Breeze Hotel, Buckeye Lake.

The Rose Wedding was sponsored by the Columbus Allied Florist Association, which had turned the wedding scene into a garden of flowers and shrubs.

Pfc. James Funk of Columbus, served as best man. Mrs. V. P. Valek, attended her sister as matron of honor.

Jinx Witherspoon Married

Mrs. Robert Gulcher

Before a candlelit altar decorated with cascades of white gladioli, Miss Jinx Witherspoon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Witherspoon, 172 Lechner-av, became the bride of Mr. Robert Gulcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alban H. Gulcher, 4032 Riverside-dr.

The double ring ceremony was an event of June 10, at 8:30 p. m. at the Glenwood Methodist Church. The bride's uncle, Rev. Arthur W. Witherspoon officiated.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride wore a gleaming white satin gown, styled with self-covered buttons from the tightly fitted bodice to the high neck line, and cap sleeves with long gauntlet, coming to points over the hands.

The cascading bustle extended into an extremely long cathedral train. Her silk veil of imported illusion was held in place by a double halo of white satin and orange blossoms. Completing her costume were two white orchids centered on a white prayer book.

Attending the bride were Miss Joan Carpenter, maid of honor, a cousin of the bride; Miss Virginia Witherspoon, Miss Phyllis McComb, Mrs. Robert Michels, and Miss Joan Heischman, bridesmaids. All attendants wore tissue taffeta gowns, fashioned in rainbow colors, with tightly fitted bodices and cap sleeves. All wore gold necklaces, a gift of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Witherspoon wore a formal length blue chiffon gown trimmed with blue lace. A purple hybrid orchid completed her costume.

Mrs. Gulcher, mother of the groom, wore a formal length rose crepe gown, and a purple hybrid orchid.

Alban F. Gulcher, served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Mr. Glen Roberts, Mr. Richard Houk, Mr. William Hagans, Mr. Paul Zwiebel, and Mr. Wendell King.

Ruthie Turner, who attended the bride as flower girl, wore a white satin formal gown, and carried a white satin basket filled with rose petals. Bruce Witherspoon attended the couple as ring bearer. Danny Milhon carried the minister's book, which was covered with white satin.

A reception at the church immediately followed the wedding.

For her wedding trip to Mammoth Cave, Ky., and Cincinnati, the bride wore a natural linen suit with navy calf accessories. Her navy picture hat was adorned with yellow roses.

The new Mrs. Gulcher is a graduate of West High School and the Columbus Art School. The groom is a graduate of West High School and the Merchant Marine Academy at Kingspoint, N. Y. At the present time he is attending Ohio State University, where he is enrolled in the college of electrical engineering.

After June 18 the couple will reside at 2483 W. Broad-st.

Sylvan-av Residents Honor the Chambers With Farewell Party

Neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Alex K. Chambers, 301 S. Sylvan-av, honored the couple with a surprise farewell party, June 7, on the lawn of the John Shuman home, 273 S. Sylvan-av.

Flowers and a gift were presented to the Chambers, who will make their new home at 524 Whitethorne-av, after June 23.

A buffet supper was served by Mr. and Mrs. Shuman with the assistance of neighbors.

Guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Oren Snodgrass, Mrs. J. F. Boehm, Rose Boehm, Mary Boehm, Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Kaple, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. DeMers, Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. James Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rockefeller and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Boyd and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Youngs, P. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Denrau, Mrs. J. Horky and family, Mrs. Edward Dodson, Karen Shuman, Dick Shuman and Johnnie Shuman.

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

In response to the demand for a more comprehensive form of children's insurance, the Sun Life of Canada announces the new Junior Adjustable Assurance, a policy which:

1. Permits regular small payments which will be greatly to the child's advantage when he reaches 21.
2. Starts assurance coverage at the early ages when the premium is at minimum rates. Premium never increases.
3. Covers expenses incurred through death in childhood.
4. Is flexible, permits a wide choice of valuable options and a considerable increase in face value (actually to five times the original amount) at age 21, without medical examination.
5. Ensures protection should the child later become uninsurable.

Let me show you what this plan can do for your son.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A BIG-SHOT in the Grand Rapids furniture mart took his wife to a cocktail party, and once he had lost her in the crowd, proceeded to down about fourteen martinis in a row. Then he spied his wife across the room. "Better go home, Darling," he called to her. "I think you're getting drunk. Your face is all blurry!"

Saxe Commins was pacing up and down in front of his class explaining that the suffix "stan" in a name indicates the place of. "For example," pointed out Commins, "Afghanistan is the place of Afghan, and Hindustan is the place of Hindu. Now, can any of you little boys give me another example?"

Little Andy Stern was on his feet immediately. "I've got one," he cried. "'Umbrellastan'—the place of umbrellas."

Household Hint

If your pillows need washing, laundry services say they will come out nice and fluffy. The feathers are not removed from the cases. If your pillows are flattened from long usage, however, it may be worthwhile to have them professionally renovated and more feathers added if necessary.

Odd Fact

Because some of the people living near his church in Springfield, Mass., complained of being disturbed by the church's carillon, the rector mailed them advance notices of the Easter music programs so that they could arrange to be away from home during the daily concerts.

New Ways to Serve 'Franks'

By ALICE DENHOFF

THERE are many good ways of serving the frank other than in a bun.

Suitable for any season of the year is a hot potato salad with frankfurters, a dish that requires a minimum amount of preparation. While the potatoes are cooking in their jackets you can prepare the rest of the ingredients in time for the final tossing and reheating. The inclusion of hard-cooked eggs and tangy celery seed makes this dish exceptionally flavorful.

For 5 c. of diced potatoes, cook 8 medium-sized potatoes in their skins until nearly tender. Peel and dice. Over the potatoes sprinkle a mixture made up of ½ tsp. celery seed, 2 tsp. sugar, 1½ tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper. Dice 5 strips bacon; fry until crisp. Remove and cook ½ c. chopped onion in fat until tender. Add the bacon, onions and one chopped, hard-cooked egg to the potatoes, mixing carefully. Add ⅓ c. vinegar and ⅓ c. water to the bacon fat in the skillet; heat. Pour hot liquid over the potatoes then reheat over a low burner or in a moderate oven. Serve in individual casseroles or in one large one topped with 8 hot frankfurters, in all. Garnish with parsley and slices of hard-cooked egg.

To cook the frankfurters with unbroken skins, drop them in simmering water and cook about 8 min., taking care not to let water boil as this will split casings and let the good juices escape. Serves 4.

Franks and Potatoes

Another good combination of franks and potatoes is to stuff the red bots with whipped potatoes. For a well-flavored potato "stuffing" combine the fluffy spuds with one of these seasoners: Grated fresh onion and a little celery seed; chopped watercress and chopped mint leaves; a little grated snappy cheese and a few chopped nuts; a couple of tbsp. of finely-chopped green pepper pre-cooked in margarine, or the use of tomato puree in lieu of milk in whipping the potatoes.

A BOY AND HIS DOG

As a father, I'm fond of kid stories, such as this one about a boy of 8 who had a dog, Laddie, whom he loved very much.

The other day when the boy came home from progressive school, his mother said:

"Darling, I've sad news. I want you to be brave. Laddie has been run over and killed."

To mama's surprise, nothing happened (says Joseph Brown, the writer, who told me the story). The boy moped a little. Later, he walked into the yard, saw the dead dog, and began wailing and hollering.

"What's the matter?" cried his mother. "I told you Laddie was run over and killed, didn't I?"

"Laddie?" the boy moaned. "I thought you said 'Daddy.'"

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

A tailor in Milwaukee assures economical service: "Pants pressed, 15c per leg, seats free." . . . In a Phoenix, Arizona, bar: "Your wife can only get so mad, so why not stay a little longer?" . . . Dairy in Daly City, California, displays this slogan on its delivery wagons: "You can whip our cream, but you can't beat our milk." . . . When the British Ministry of Health arvised a specialist to remove the shingle with his name on it, the doctor showed his distaste for socialized medicine by substituting a new sign: "Dr. 2108" . . . (Sign on newlyweds' car in Flint, Mich.) "AT LAST." . . . (Sign on an undertaker's window) "We arrange everything but the date."

CHAPTER NINETEEN

USUALLY the visits of Porter's mother and stepfather were uneventful and methodical. Usually they arrived at exactly the same time they had arrived the year before, and departed four days hence at precisely the same time in late afternoon that they had departed a year ago. It had long been customary for Beatrice to invite Mrs. Sanger's friends in to tea one afternoon, and for them to have dinner at the club one night.

Their visit this year, however, was not to be without event.

At dinner the first evening Frank Sanger had turned to Marianne and asked, "And do you think you're getting everything you want for Christmas?"

Marianne had regarded her father broodingly. "I'm not getting what I want."

Porter's mother asked with a twinkle, "What is it that you want, darling?"

Marianne pressed her lips together before she spoke. "A dog," she said. "I want a dog."

Beatrice looked at the child incredulously. "I haven't heard you say you wanted a dog."

Porter glanced unhappily at his daughter. "She told me," he said. "She asked for a puppy."

His mother said, "And why shouldn't she have one, Porter? All children should have the experience of having a dog, and especially an only child. You have the space for it to run, and there's little traffic here. I'm in agreement with Marianne if Beatrice doesn't mind the trouble. She should have a dog. They're wonderful friends and playmates. And may I remind you, Porter, that you had two in your boyhood?"

"I know," he said. "I like them, too, and I'm glad she feels that way about them. But I told her I couldn't get her one now. Not now. Not at this time."

His expression told Beatrice that he wished they would not pursue the subject any further.

And then Marianne repeated words she did not understand.

"Daddy told me that everything was too uncertain now."

Beatrice did not speak. She was afraid that her voice would pass out of her control. The words drummed again . . . He said that everything was too uncertain now.

She saw his mother note Porter's lowered head. She saw the brief exchange of anxious glances between the older couple before Mrs. Sanger, mistress of diplomacy, said soothingly, "Of course your father is perfectly right, dear. One should never get a puppy in winter. Spring is the best time. The best time of all would be after school has closed, because then you could be with the dog all day. You have so little time now. Have patience, and wait. You'll get your dog."

"Oh, do you really think so?" Marianne asked plaintively. "Gee, I hope so. I want a little black dog more than anything in the world. More than anything! He'll go everywhere I go and sleep in my bed. He'll be so cute. What shall I call him? He has to have a name." She clasped her hands. "I can just see him! Gee! But I won't believe it. I won't believe it until he's really here."

Half audibly Mrs. Sanger said, "Oh, dear, I've never heard Marianne want anything so fervently."

Beatrice invariably enjoyed the afternoon she had Mrs. Sanger's friends in to tea, and could not understand why most of her contemporaries shunned the company of older women. She herself found their mellowness and contentment delightful, their conversation wise and tolerant and humorous. And on this annual occasion she took particular pride in her house and table appointments. Frances liked nothing more than a party, so that when the afternoon came the house was at its best with silver gleaming and crystal shining beneath the tapering, ivory-colored candles. With the memory still too sharply clear of the exuberant friends of his first wife, Frank Sanger sought refuge in a movie.

Mrs. Ramey came, of course. Beatrice went for her and brought her. And as she entered her living room with Mrs. Ramey, she was aware of the brief quiet that fell upon the talking, laughing women gathered in little knots here and there. Why must she do this to people, Beatrice thought as Porter's mother came graciously forward. It was as though a cold draft had blown upon their old bones making them lose the continuity of their chatter about their garden clubs and grandchildren and church activities.

When Beatrice had been making a list of the women Mrs. Sanger wished to ask, Mrs. Sanger had said, "And Mrs. Ramey, of course, dear. It means less to me that she is Jessie Ramey than the fact that she is the wife of Porter's boss." Beatrice smiled and said, "Do you know that she once told me that you are one of the few people she considers an 'equal'—whatever that means. All the others she considers hopelessly middle class. Yet once a year in the spring she has an afternoon party and invites the hopelessly middle class."

"Poor deluded soul," Katharine Sanger replied. "She lives on an island of ignorance."

And now Porter's mother was summoning all the grace at her command while Mrs. Ramey was sharply scrutinizing the house for flaws. Later she would doubtlessly say, 'I don't know why you put the flowers on the low table, Beatrice. They're easily knocked off, and flowers are frightfully expensive these days.'

"You're looking extremely well, Jessie," Mrs. Sanger said. Indeed Mrs. Ramey did look uncommonly well today.

"I've never felt worse in my life," Mrs. Ramey retorted. "Will you bring my tea in to me, Beatrice?"

"Yes, Mrs. Ramey." Like an obedient child. Yes, Mrs. Ramey . . . Yes, Mrs. Ramey . . .

"Isn't Marianne here?" Mrs. Ramey demanded.

"No. She's visiting a school friend. Porter will pick her up on his way home."

With greater sprightliness than usual, Mrs. Ramey crossed the room and sat down and tapped her foot impatiently against the polished floor.

No, Beatrice thought with anger. Mrs. Ramey did not merely sit in a chair. She was enthroned upon it as if she expected the other women humbly to surround her.

"I can't stay long," she said to Beatrice. "I'm extremely sorry if my going early will take you away from your guests, but you know I never stay long. Do bring my tea, Beatrice. No lemon, no sugar, nothing, my dear."

"Yes, Mrs. Ramey."

"And do turn on a light. One can't see what one is drinking in here. Oh, another new frock, Beatrice? Whatever do you do with the old ones, my dear?" She smiled. "But then of course you never allow your clothes to become old." Her eyes turned upward to Beatrice. "You need a great deal of money, don't you? Your tastes require it. You're an exceedingly fortunate girl, do you know it?"

Beatrice felt the pulse in her temple beating. "I know I must bring you your tea, Mrs. Ramey. I know that you like it very hot."

"That's a good girl," Mrs. Ramey said and went on tapping her foot impatiently.

Beatrice saw the other women, many of whom were older than Mrs. Ramey, and some of whom had infirmities of which Beatrice knew, go to Mrs. Ramey and speak to her. Eventually all of them went to her, while Mrs. Ramey sat enthroned upon the chair, her cane like a weapon beside her. Yet they left her in a way that suggested polite escape, and after the last one had spoken to her, Mrs. Ramey said that she must be going. Beatrice knew that the moment her car was out of sight Porter's mother and her friends would come together in friendly little groups again. The gloom in the presence of dictatorial power would be gone and they could enjoy themselves again.

When Mrs. Ramey was sitting beside her in the car she said, "Did you hear Leila Parsons, Beatrice? She's painting in water colors and oils. Painting—at her age!"

"She said she'd wanted to paint for her own enjoyment all of her life, but hadn't had the time with the four children to raise."

"I never heard of anything so ridiculous in my life. It's an utter waste of time. Of course if she could sell her work that would be different altogether."

"I'm afraid I can't agree with you," Beatrice said.

Mrs. Ramey smiled and nodded complacently. "My dear Beatrice, you and I are always in complete agreement."

Words of the Wise

Happiness is the goal of every normal human being. As it is given to few men to die happy, the best that man can hope and strive and pray for is momentary happiness during life, repeated as frequently as the cards allow.

"Criss Cross" Now At Old Trail Theatre

"Criss Cross," now playing at the Old Trail Theater, brings together in an underworld triangle Burt Lancaster, Yvonne DeCarlo and Dan Duryea. The story deals with the violent rivalry between a hoodlum, played by Duryea, and an ex-husband, played by Lancaster, for the love of Miss De Carlo.

The locale is Los Angeles' old downtown quarters. Lancaster and Director Robert Siodmak are teamed for the first time since "The Killers," the star's initial picture. Stephen McNally and Richard Long head the supporting cast.

Season Will Open Thursday on Bass

The Ohio black bass season opens Thursday for the state's streams and a few lakes not included in the liberalized waters where closed seasons, bag limits and minimum legal lengths do not apply.

Although most of Ohio's streams have been below normal for the spring spawning season, which is protected by the closed season, the hatch of young bass has been good. Heavy rains and high water of the past several spring seasons has retarded bass production by washing out the nests and in some cases because of the low temperature of the water, the nesting season was prolonged into July.

The bass season in the Lake Erie fishing district which closed May 25 will not open until June 30 at midnight.

2 Camp Chase Post Ball Teams Launch Season

a farm team to the varsity.

The season was scheduled to get under way here Sunday, but rain postponed the A team's game, with the B able to get in five innings, losing to Southway Post, 8 to 0.

In addition to their Legion League play, members of both teams will be eligible for play in the senior and intermediate Knothole leagues. The personnel, however, of the two squads will not necessarily be the same as the A and B Legion teams because of the different age limits.

Tim Sweeney is in charge of the varsity, with Ray Burke at the helm of the B team, with Homer Burke acting as the manager of both teams.

On the A team, only three boys will be lost from this year's team for next season's competition. They are Outfielders Bob Wilson, Jerry Solinger and Tom Wright, making it a bitter fight on the B team for the three replacements.

At first base, Sweeney has Jerry Johnson, who played baseball in junior high, and varsity basketball last year, his first year in senior high at West. Johnson didn't go out for baseball at West this past year.

Friend at Second

Russ Friend, who is expected to play second base for West next season, is handling the keystone bag for the "A's" this year like he owns it. At short-stop is Jimmy Vincent, little seventh grader at West Junior, who was the first 7B in the school's history to win a varsity letter in baseball, which happened this past season. Chuck Leibensperger, who played with West Junior two seasons ago, but didn't play for West this past year, is at third with Jack Wihl, an eighth-grader from St. Aloysius, as the utility infielder and sometimes a pitcher.

Bill South, who won one game while pitching 17 innings for West in his sophomore year this past season is the No. 1 pitcher for the A team, with Jack O'Donnell, from Aquinas, and Wihl the other twirlers.

Ben Nye, sophomore from Aquinas, is the first-string catcher, with hardly anyone else bothering him. The first-string outfield has already been mentioned. They were Solinger, Wright and Wilson. The former two played with West this past year. Solinger, who played as a regular, batted .293, and Wright .107. Other outfielders include Irven Denune, Al Shade and Jim Kimball. The latter played regular outfield for West Junior this past season in the seventh-grade.

Coming Ball Players

The B team, headed by Ray Burke, entered in the West League with Southway Post, Green Cabs and Watson Fords, is expected to show some coming ball players.

The pitchers include Chuck Hagerdorn, Bob Thornton and Jim Lang, with Jerry Fry and Ken Garber listed as catchers. At first, John Masdea, star basketball player from Aquinas, is expected to fill the bill with either Bill Nye or Ellis Easterly taking second. Hagerdorn, Lang or Easterly are the shortstops, with the deciding of the position depending on who will be pitching.

Dick Orr or Dan Rich, both from West Junior, will cover third base. In the outfield, Burke has Joe Manicho, Raymond Harper, Ronnie Carver, John Vincent, Ralph Burke or John Sheehan.

The fact that a lot of young material is included in these two teams makes it easy going for possibly the next two years for the threesome of Ray Burke, Tim Sweeney and Homer Burke. Other teams in the North League, the loop in which the A team is entered, are Worthington, Linden and North End.

The loop, which started Sunday, will end on July 10, with of course, the team's playing two rounds.

Household Hint

Don't worry about boilovers on the top boilers of your gas range. Just wipe them with a cloth dampened in warm water. When the range has cooled, you can do a more thorough cleaning.

Hilltop YMCA Activities

GIRLS' CRAFTSHOP

Craftshop for all girls of high school age will be opened every Thursday afternoon at the Hilltop Y. Such crafts as soap sculptoring, charcoal sketching and feltcraft are being offered to beginners. The leader of this group is a young lady from Columbus commercial art circles.

HILLTONIA AREA MOVIES

Arrangements are being made for the Hilltop Y to present movies in the Hilltonia district. A local church is offering the use of its facilities for the showing of movies to the neighborhood children. The movies will be held on Fridays and will be free.

All children in this area are invited to attend. More details will be published in the next edition of the Record.

GRA-Y HOBBY SHOP

Thursday mornings have been set aside for the craftshop activities. With a large supply of plastic rings, crosses, hearts and ducks the Y hobby shop plans to keep its Gra-Y members busy this summer.

In the very near future the hobby shop is including in its program woodwork-bookends and various knick-knacks are to be turned out by Gra-Y members.

GRA-Y MOVIES

Movies are scheduled for the Gra-Y members every Saturday morning at 10. All Gra-Y members are invited to attend. Movies are free.

GRA-Y RED BIRD GAMES

All members of the Gra-Y clubs are urged to contact the Hilltop Y regarding the Red Bird night baseball games. The Hilltop Y is planning to take Gra-Y members to various night games at the Red Bird Stadium.

GRA-Y SWIMS AND TRIPS

Plans are in the making for swims at the Central YMCA and for hikes and trips for the summer months.

TEEN-AGE MOVIES

Movies are scheduled for the Hilltop Teen-Age group every Friday evening at 8. Movies are free and all the youth in the neighborhood are encouraged to attend.

What's Good About It?

The following philosophical bit from a trade magazine is worth passing along:

Dear Editor: This was "blue Monday" morning. I dragged myself kitchenward to start the coffee and find out from the radio what kind of sweather Arthur Godfrey would promise his faithful listeners today. My eye fell on a wall motto a friend had given me:

"Today is the Best Day of the Year."

I wondered, what was good about today? Yet, I found myself turning back to read, as the bacon grew crisp and brown:

"Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year. He is rich who owns the day, and no one owns the day who allows it to be invaded with fret and anxiety. Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities, no doubt, crept in. Forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; begin it well and serenely, with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense. This day is too dear, with its hopes and invitations, to waste a moment on the yesterdays."

After reading those words of Ralph Waldo Emerson, how could I help being glad of the privilege of greeting today, of having work to do and a glad new day to do it in, of having loved ones to smile at across the breakfast table?—Mrs. O. M. Brosinger, Wisconsin, to Editor of Farm Journal.

Skidmore School Building Is Sprouting Wings

CONSTRUCTION JOB—Here is a view of the front of Skidmore School on N. Hague-av showing construction of the south wing to the present 8-room building. A similar extension is being built on the north side of the county school. Accommodations for about 160 pupils will be added by the project.

Work Moves On Skidmore School Job

Work is well under way on the Skidmore School addition, Roy Percy, estimator for Krause and Pagura contractors, said Wednesday.

Two stories on the north side of the building are up and the first floor on the south side is nearing completion.

The original $73,847 project calls for two-story, two-room brick and concrete extensions on both north and south sides of the present eight-room building.

Fireproof Roof

Work has been progressing more slowly than might have been expected, Mr. Percy advised, because careful construction is necessary to make a good foundation for the fireproof concrete roof and floors which will be installed. The rainy weather of the last few days has not hampered construction, he advised.

School children returning to Skidmore in the fall will find the new extensions completed. Krause and Pagura expect the job to be done by Sept. 1.

Outside rest rooms will be a thing of the past this fall, when students will have, for the first time in the school's history, inside toilet facilities. A complete new plumbing system will be installed as a part of the original improvement project.

Work will be started within 30 days on the roof, Mr. Percy said. The north extension is expected to be completed first. Fred Pagura of Krause and Pagura is in charge of construction work.

To Accommodate 160

At the end of the spring term, Skidmore School had an enrollment of 280 children. The new extension is expected to accommodate approximately 160 students, which will greatly alleviate overcrowded conditions at the school.

Other contractors are: Fayette Electrical Co., 1233 N. Wall-st, electrical work; Columbus Heating and Ventilating Co., heating; and Grif M. Lewis, 176 S. Westgate-av, plumbing.

Sullivant Merchants Hilltop Entry in Sr. Knothole Loop

By Dave Miller

Two West Side baseball teams are representing the Hilltop area in the Knothole League this season. The team in the senior division is the Sullivant-av Merchants and the intermediate team is the Broncos.

The idea of the intermediate team was started by West Junior Baseball Coach O. D. Lehman, and an intramural assistant, Ed Baker of 2109 Sullivant-av. Baker was the coach of the winning team in Lehman's Junior High Intramural Baseball League during the recent school months.

Since Lehman is entering the navy for temporary duty during the summer, Baker is put in full charge of the team, and has done quite well for the team. Lehman helped in issuing old West Junior uniforms.

Age Limit Changed

Since Bob Burgett, City Knothole director, changed the age limit from 13 to 15 for the Intermediate division, the result will be that the Broncos will have one of the smallest teams in the loop, Lehman says, however, that winning doesn't mean so much; important thing is that they will get a lot of experience throughout the contests. He also said that the Bronco team will, without a doubt, make up next year's West Junior baseball team.

Baker works with the boys every day, and pretty well has an idea as to who will be the first nine.

Bob Thornton, gangling eighth-grade pitcher-outfielder, who earned a letter with West Junior this past year, is expected to do most of the pitching, with Right-handers Bill Popp and Sam Zavastky as capable replacements. Thornton, when not pitching, will play the outfield because of his good hitting.

The catchers include Bill Haire or Jimmy Hughes, with Haire getting the nod due to the fact that Hughes will probably play shortstop. On first, Lefty Bob Witting is expected to earn the spot there with Haire also capable of playing the initial sack.

Battle for Keystone Spot

John Morrison and Jimmy Johnson are battling it out for second base, and at this writing, neither has cinched the job. Hughes will fill in at shortstop, and when catching, probably Johnson can fill the spot. On third, Baker has kept little Dave Krebs, a little but good hot corner man, with Tommy Ongaro an outfielder, also ready to step in if necessary.

In the outfield, Herb Brown, Ongaro and Charles Lewis are expected to take the first place ranks with Bob Black and Jan Sullivan ready to fill in.

The season is scheduled to start next Thursday and Baker reports that the team will do all right behind the fast-ball pitching of Thornton, and good hitting by Brown and Ongaro. Baker's team was undefeated in the intramural league. The other team coaches were Jack Six, Ronnie Krems, Dave Wahrer, Ted Collins and Ted Biddison.

October Mum Festival Backed By Kiwanis; Plantings Start Now

W. Broad Yards To Show Blooms; Plants Are Free

Plans for the first annual Hilltop Mum Festival to be held in mid-October under the sponsorship of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club and Leo McComb, chrysanthemum fancier and proprietor of the Rosebud Floral Co., were announced today.

The festival will be held at the same time as the annual Mum Show at City Hall.

As a part of the Hilltop festival, it is planned to decorate the front yard of every home facing Broad-st from Central-av to Derrer-rd. Six mum plants will be given free by the Rosebud Floral Co. to every resident of W. Broad-st who requests them.

Available Saturday

The free plants will be available at the firm's greenhouse at 351 Burgess-av beginning Saturday. They will be available ONLY to W. Broad-st residents. Recipients of the plants will be asked to sign an agreement that they will place the plants in a suitable location until they are ready for blooming and then move them (if they have been grown in any other location than the front yard) to a position where they will aid in the decoration of the street as a whole.

Mr. McComb suggests that the mums will grow faster and stronger in a location which gets plenty of light and air. When mums are in bud, he explains, they will bloom more quickly if moved to a shaded location. For these reasons, he suggests that the persons living on the south side of Broad-st [illegible] their back yard gardens, where they will receive a great deal more sunlight during the summer months, and then replant them in their front yards, three on each side of the yard.

Must Plant Before Fourth

Residents of W. Broad-st are urged to call at the Rosebud Floral Co. as soon as possible to pick up their plants. They will be wrapped in wet moss and will stay alive at least three or four days in their wrappings. All the plants, which will be small, rooted cuttings, should be planted in the gardens of Broad-

Kiwanis Night Is Hailed As Huge Success

Kiwanis Night at the Red Bird Staudim Tuesday was an unprecedented success considering the weather and the fact that it was the first such affair ever undertaken by the United Kiwanis Clubs of Columbus, according to Jack Sensenbrenner, president of Hilltop Kiwanis.

Slightly more than 8000 persons braved threatening weather and then sat through several driving showers. The first heavy rain came just about the time many would-be spectators would have been leaving their homes, and probably out hundreds — perhaps thousands — from the total attendance.

But, despite the weather, more than 2000 tickets were sold at the gate, and Mr. Sensenbrenner said there was no doubt that enough profit had been realized to assure that the full complement of 140 boys could be sent to the Kiwanis Camp in the Hocking Hills this summer.

Mr. Sensenbrenner said Kiwanis was especially grateful to the Southway Legion Post Drum and Bugle Corps and to the Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and other youth organizations for their contribution to the program even though their demonstration started just as one of the heaviest downpours of the evening occurred.

Oh, yes! For the sake of the record, the Birds lost to the Indianapolis club, 9 to 6. As a result of the victory, the Indians went into first place in the American Association.

West's Faculty Adopts Plan Of Student Service Points

By Myron T. Seifert

Scholarship was given a shot in the arm, in the opinion of many West Senior High teachers, when the faculty agreed to recognize "service points" in academic achievement, in addition to a pattern already established the past several years at the school.

A faculty committee of five, consisting of Pauline Sparrow, Leona Glenn, Wayne House, Rufe Glass and Orrie Lehman, has been making a survey of the situation. The committee made recommendations to the faculty as a whole, which acted favorably on the committee's report, and proceeded to make it a part of the service-rating system at West High.

A minimum of 10 service points are needed in qualifying for the National Honor Society. Character, scholarship and leadership are considered in national honor appointments.

Service points also are used in awarding Rotary luncheon recognition. This is an honor restricted to qualified seniors, who are invited as guests of local Rotarians annually to a banquet at a downtown hotel.

Scholarship Points

Hereafter, a student may earn one service point for "making the team" in the state scholarship competition. An additional point will be awarded to the student placing in the district in the annual scholarship program.

Three points have been allocated for the student who qualifies for state honors in the scholarship competition.

Finally, the new program includes, one point each semester for any student making the honor roll, A and B grades.

Evaluation of other services to the school, followed hereto-fore, embraces a wide variety of activities. Broken down the plan follows this pattern and is also continued in effect.

The service rating is pro-rated by the following list of appraisal values of services.

Student Council credits: President, four points per semester; vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, three points each; chairman of committee, two and one-half points; members, two points.

Senior Class Credits: President, three points; vice-president, secretary and treasurer; and committee chairman, two and one-half points each; committee members, one or two points.

Home Room Credits: President, two points; business manager, two points; secretary, two point; civic chairman, one point; welfare chairman, one point.

Major Clubs — "Y" Society, "Y-Teens" and Hi-Y: President, three points; vice-president, secretary and treasurer, two and one-half points each; chairman of committee, two and one-half points; committee member, one or two points; members in good standing one point per year.

Other Clubs: President, two points; vice-president, secretary, and treasurer and committee chairman, one and one-half points; members in good standing, one point per year.

Major Sports: Football, basketball, baseball, and track, one or four points per season.

Minor Sports: Wrestling, golf, tennis, swimming and cross country, one or two points per season.

Managers Senior managers four points per season; Junior managers, three points per season; Sophomore manager, two points per season.

Other Athletic Assistants: Monitors, two points per season; cheer leaders, one or three points per semester, canvas crew, one point per semester; athletic field helpers (football, baseball and track) one point.

Athletic Ticket Committee: Gate Sales, two points; publicity, one point; door chairman (basketball), one point.

Special Fields: A—Debate and Speech: Squad A, one to three points per semester; squad B, one or two points per semester. B—Dramatics: Complete Stage Plays: Leading characters, three points; minor characters one to three points; stage assistants, costumes, make-up properties, pub-

Hilltop Woman Returns to Native England for Visit; Travels Alone

Mrs. Maryann Crompton, 78 years young, of 79 S. Eureka-av, who has been a resident of the Hilltop for 28 years, recently arrived in her home-country, England, for a four-month visit with her brother and other relatives and friends in Bolton, Lancashire.

While there she will also visit her niece in Scotland. In Bolton, she is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taylor, former residents of the Hilltop, who returned to England several years ago.

Mrs. Crompton is traveling alone, quite an accomplishment considering her age, but she is a veteran traveler, having made a number of trips to the Peace River District, Alberta, Canada, during the last few years.

Mrs. Crompton has crossed the ocean several times, the last time being approximately 20 years ago. According to word received, her crossing on the S. S. Veendam, Dutch-American Line, was pleasant.

Mrs. Crompton makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Lucy Sumner, at the S. Eureka-av address.

PROPERTY OWNERS MEET

The Property Owners' Association of Franklin County, will meet at 8 p.m. Friday in City Hall Council Chamber. It will be the last meeting for the summer.

HBA Picnic Set Next Wednesday Near Zanesville

Members of the Hilltop Business Association and their families will picnic next Wednesday afternoon and evening at Moxahala Park, located five miles south of Zanesville and Route 22.

The picnickers will be the guests of Tim Nolan, owner of the park and a member of the association.

Mr. Nolan is turning the amusement park over to the association for the affair. Ball games, swimming, boating, dancing and the various rides at the park will be available for entertainment.

About 200 are expected to sit down to the basket picnic meal in the evening. Ice cream will be furnished by the association, according to C. H. (Doc) Campbell, secretary of the organization.

Hilltopper Escapes With Minor Injuries After 45 ft. Plunge

Vince L. Commiskey, 22, of 2911 Crescent-dr, escaped with only minor injuries Tuesday after his car plunged over a 45 ft. embankment on U. S. Rt. 40.

Commiskey was treated for cuts on his left leg at Bethesda Hospital, Zanesville, where he was taken after his car broke through a guard rail six miles west of Zanesville and fell 45 ft.

Commiskey said he swerved his car to avoid hitting a truck. He was en route to Columbus when the accident occurred.

She Spent 68c And Made $30

Mrs. Allan Coss, 286 S. Burgess-av, ran a four-word ad to sell cherries. She had a two-line classified ad in two issues of the Record, which cost only 68 cents and made $30.

BACK FROM CALIFORNIA with glowing reports of their trip are Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Graves, 107 N. Roys-av. The Graves spent two weeks in the sunshine state and confess that the climate lives up to its repute. While in Los Angeles they visited Mr. Graves' mother and spent a few days at Big Bear Lake. Before returning to the Hilltop, the Graves spent a few days in Ogden, Utah, visiting Mr. Graves' brother, who is a high school teacher, there.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD BUCHANAN, 145 N. Chase-av, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sachs, 170 Cassady-rd, were a little surprised this week when they learned their children eloped to Newport over the week-end. The two Miami U. students, Marilyn Sachs and Harold Buchanan, will be in Oxford this summer. Harold is enrolled in summer school there.

MULBERRIES ARE in season again. And contrary to most reports they do make good eating. Hazel Marx, a former Record employe, passed the word along that mulberry pie is slightly less than scrumptious. Here is the recipe she uses.

3 cups mulberries
2/3 to 3/4 cups sugar
2 tbls. flour
2 tbls. lemon juice.

Wash and clean berries. Do not stem. Blend sugar and flour. Line pan loosely with dough. Sprinkle ¼ of sugar and flour mixture in pan. Sprinkle remaining flour and sugar mixture with lemon juice on top of pie. Dot with shortening. Place upper crust on pie with slits for escaping steam. Press edges firmly together. Bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes until crust is lightly browned. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and continue baking for 20 to 30 minutes.

If you're having trouble picking your mulberry bush, Hazel advises that a canvas spread about the tree is the simplest method of catching berries when they fall.

PLANNING elaborate wedding ceremonies this week-end are two pretty brides-to-be, Emalene Fansler and Norma Jean South. Norma will be married June 18, at St. Aloysius Church to Charles Garish.

Emalene will exchange vows June 19, at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church with Leonard Machles of Cleveland. After a short honeymoon, they will leave for Lake George, where both will be employed for the summer.

Kemp-Dellinger Exchange Vows In May

Mrs. Zail H. Kemp

GLENWOOD METHODIST CHURCH was the scene of the wedding of Miss Dorothy Dellinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Dellinger, Galloway, and Mr. Zail H. Kemp, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Zail H. Kemp, 230 S. Westgate-av, on Sunday, May 22, at 3:30 p. m. with the Rev. Joseph B. Shellhaas officiating.

The church altar was decorated with two double seven-branch candelabra and gladioli with palms and ferns, making an impressive background. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Clyde D. Moore and Mrs. Joseph Galloway of Columbus, presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a period gown of white bridal satin, fashioned with a pointed bodice. Chantilly lace outlined the neckline and bordered the pointed sleeves. The old-fashioned hoop skirt was caught up in orange blossoms to reveal an underskirt of Chantilly lace. A tiara of orange blossoms held her Chantilly lace mantilla in place. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a single strand of pearls, and carried a white orchid on top of an ivory-back prayer book.

Mrs. Richard Anthony, the bride's twin-sister, acted as matron of honor. Her gown was of spring green marquisette designed with a shirred yoke and an off-shoulder bertha draping softly over the puffed sleeves. The basque bodice complimented the extremely bouffant skirt which cascaded over an old-fashioned hoop and matching ruffles on the skirt draped softly to form a back interest. Her open crown bonnet was made of imported matching Chantilly lace. Her large bouquet was of yellow tea roses.

As flower girl, little Suzanne Rings preceded the bride to the altar attired in pink net, consisting of tiny rows of ruffles from the top to the bottom of the skirt. Her pink velvet sash was caught up with flowers and she carried a small arm basket filled with blue delphiniums.

Mr. R. Allen Anthony was best man for Mr. Kemp, and seating the guests were Mr. Raymond Dellinger, brother of the bride, Mr. Leroy Mathews, Mr. Alvane Maxwell and Mr. John Howard.

Mrs. Dellinger wore a navy blue dress with navy and rose accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of pink tea roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy blue dress with rose accessories and wore also a corsage of pink tea roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. Hostesses were Mrs. Raymond Dellinger, Mrs. Richard Calland, Miss Ada Purdum, Miss Virginia Herbert, Mrs. Chester Herbert, Mrs. Howard Windle, Mrs. Robert Minnicks and Mrs. Paul Embrey.

The bride is a graduate of Hilliards High School and Office Training School and is employed as claims secretary for the Shawnee Insurance Company.

Mr. Kemp is a graduate of West High School and Ohio State University and is now associated in the business office of Ohio State University.

After a two-week trip to New York City and other points in the East, the couple now resides at 2574 Sullivant-av.

Rehearsal Dinner To Climax Parties For Miss Thomas

Miss Norma J. Thomas, who will be the bride of Lewis M. Trout, 460 S. Richardson-av, June 26, at the Hilltop Church of Christ, will be honored with a rehearsal dinner, June 25, at the Beechwold, given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Vernon Thomas.

The bride-elect will be feted with a shower Friday given by Mrs. Robert Tong and Mrs. Harry Crawford, and on June 14, she and the prospective groom were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Speckman.

Miss Thomas, a teacher at the Miamisburg school for the past year, was honored with a shower given by the faculty at the close of the school year. She was also feted with a shower given by the Loyal Women's Sunday School class of the Hilltop Church of Christ, on May 27.

Bouquets of Spring Flowers Form Colorful Setting for Irene Green - John L. Matson

Mrs. John Lewis Matson Citizen Photo

An arrangement of white gladioli, lilies, woodwardia trees and southern smilax, illuminated by softly glowing tapers in seven-branch candelabra, formed the setting Saturday, June 11, at the First Congregational Church, for the marriage of Miss Irene Green to Mr. John Lewis Matson. Rev. Kenneth Clingon officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Green, 3046 Crescent-dr, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John O. Matson and the late Mr. Matson of Pleasant Lake, Ind.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of traditional white slipper satin fashioned along classically simple lines.

Her fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was held in place by a satin tiara of crushed satin in two tiers that enfolded a row of netted lilies-of-the-valley.

Stephanotis and white hybrid-delphinium centered with a white orchid formed the semi-colonial bridal bouquet.

Her five attendants were Miss Betty Hansen of Chicago, maid of honor; Miss Jean Ewing of Chillicothe, Miss Eleanor Pfiefer, Miss Doris Singer, and Mrs. John Ginsler. Mr. Frank Brush of Detroit, served as best man. Seating the guests were Mr. A L. Chaffin of Dayton, Mr. H. L. Cross, Mr. R. L. Gross of Cincinnati and Mr. Bill W. Curlis, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception for 200 guests was held at the Beechwold Restaurant. Mrs. Joseph D. Salzberger and Mrs. Harry O. Marsh acted as senior hostesses while Miss Ustine Newman, Miss Marjorie Jackson, Miss Joanne Griffiths, Miss Dolores Acker, Miss Sally Hutt and Miss Marjorie Hendricks, sorority sisters of the bride served as junior hostesses.

After a two week's honeymoon through the East, the couple will make their home at 2432 Losantiville-av, Cincinnati.

Buffet Dinner Held

Requiem high mass will be sung for Mr. Boyhan at noon Saturday in St. Aloysius Church. Burial will be in Mt. Calvary Cemetery. Friends may call at the residence after noon today.

Charles E. Grumman

Funeral services for Charles E. Grumman, 61, of 233 Brehl-av, will be held at 10 a. m. Friday in the Wylie S. Shroyer Funeral Home.

Mr. Grumman, an interior decorator, died Tuesday as he was about to drive a newly-purchased auto from a lot of Berlin-Wolfe, Inc., 1386 W. Broad-st. He apparently suffered a heart attack.

He was a member of York Lodge of Masons, and Scottish Rite. A native of Cambridge, he had lived here 26 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annabelle Grumman; and a sister, Mrs. Florence Everett, and a brother, W. H. Grumman, both of Columbus.

Friends may call at the funeral home. Burial will be in Walnut Grove Cemetery.

Mrs. Nellie J. Landers

Funeral services for Mrs. Nellie Jane Landers, 71, of 181 S. Roys-av, will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the residence.

Mrs. Landers, who died yesterday in her home, was a member of Royal Neighbors, Liberty Council, Daughters of America, and of the auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. She was the widow of Thomas Landers, an engineer for the New York Central Railroad.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Stanley Lappe, of the S. Roys-av address; two grandsons, one great-granddaughter, and two sisters, Mrs. Hendrickson, Ward and Mrs. Della Hartley.

Friends may call at the residence. Burial will be in Green Lawn Cemetery by the Wylie S. Shroyer Funeral Home.

Sullivant Merchants In Knothole League

In the senior league entry, K. E. McClelland, prominent Hilltop sportsman, will be the head coach of the Sullivant-av Merchants, with each player having the name of one of the 17 sponsors on Sullivant-av.

For pitching, McClelland will have Dale Cline and Bob Wilson. The catchers are Eugene Morris and George Schmidt, the latter two mentioned were on the West High baseball team this past season, Schmidt an outfielder and Morris a catcher.

Larry Persons, with his good hitting and better-than-average fielding, will no doubt hold down first base, with Dick Will at second, Dave Bill and Jim Ealy are still battling for shortstop at this writing, with Jack Vincent and Lester Saas scrapping for the third base spot to round out the infield.

In the outfield, Chuck Cline who bats from the left side, and hits a long ball, will be in left, with Jim Saas covering center, and Dick Sype, a southpaw thrower, in right.

The Sullivant-av Merchants have played a couple practice tilts with the Green Cabs, another Senior Knothole entry here on the Hilltop.

Two Clubs Added For Gra-Y Ball; Schedule Is Set

The Gra-Y Softball League, augmented by the addition of two teams from John Burroughs School will begin the second half of its season Monday morning at 9 o'clock at the Westgate Park Diamonds.

Games will be played at 9 a. m. and 11 a. m. each Monday and Tuesday during the remainder of the summer season. YMCA officials emphasize that ball players must furnish their own transportation to and from Westgate Park.

The two new entries in the Gra-Y League are the Wolverines and the Blackhawks. Their entry into the league makes it a seven-team loop.

The Flaming Arrows, with a 4 and 0 record, led the league in the first round. The schedule for the remainder of the season:

Blessed Event On Way? Fix It For Sunday, Pop!

Who will be the lucky man to become the father of the first baby born on Father's Day, next Sunday?

It will be a doubly lucky day for him since the Father's Day committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will present that fortunate father with a check for $150 or its equivalent in baby merchandise.

Hospital maternity wards in the city have been alerted by the Jaycees to keep accurate timing of all new babies born after Saturday midnight.

Members of the committee, of which Gordon Mead is chairman, will make a careful check of hospitals on Sunday morning and will then make the presentation to the lucky father.

Sterling silver spoons were presented by Jaycees to 17 fathers wh completed the six-lesson Red Cross Baby Care class last Tuesday evening. Sponsoring this class was part of their Father's Day promotion.

Hellmann's is SO right

Rich as only real mayonnaise can be—Hellmann's fine, full-bodied flavor makes it so good so many ways! Satisfying "as is" with salads or as a spread for bread. Creamy-rich in sauces for meat, fish, vegetables. There's no starchy filler in Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise . . . it's all mayonnaise! Its flavor is always right. Flavor that can't be topped by any other mayonnaise—even homemade!

It's Happy CIRCUS TIME Again!

Acts Are Mostly the Same but the Glamor and Spirit Of the Big Top's Show Is Always Fresh and Youthful

THERE HAIN'T NO SECH ANIMULE!—Pop-eyed kids stare in wonder at a pair of Hamas, who ignore it all.

JEEPERS, KIDS, THE CALLIOPE!—Youngsters get close-up of the whobbled music maker's gilded glories.

By CHARLES W. WHITE
Central Press Correspondent

ONCE AGAIN the circus trains are rolling, the big top goes up at the edge of town with the help of thousands of early-rising boys, and the steam calliope chortles its nostalgic melody down Main Street.

All the birds, beasts and barkers are there, and the Star Spangled Banner still waves! One-night stands are the rule in hundreds of cities where young and old will flock to the circus this year, and there isn't much left of that venerable institution, the circus parade—but it's still the circus! It's still the circus complete with trundling, lugubrious looking elephants, with flashy bands, with death-defying aerialists in spangled tights and with marvellous horses that can almost talk. In other words, completely glorious.

Writers have been thinking up things to say about circuses for about a hundred years, now, and it is hardly to be expected that anyone will add anything really new on the subject at this late date.

However, the circus itself, this entire amazing panoply of medieval buskery and Twentieth Century Diesel-powered science, renews itself every spring as surely as the dandelions, and it's something new and wonderful for every one of the millions of kids who will work, borrow, beg or sneak under the tent to see the circus this year just as their grandfathers did.

Antiquity of the circus tradition is well known—they were doing this, or something very close to it, in Shakespeare's time.

It is a fine and rare art, a proud specialty in show business, and there are lots of circus performers who wouldn't leave the big top for the best that Broadway has to offer.

One is the Great Con Colleano, satin-clad tightwire dancer, who was born of a circus family in Australia and starred in nine different acts before he was old enough to vote.

Con prefers circus work to any other kind of public appearance, he says, and if he had his life to live over again would probably skip-it-and-trip-it under the big top just the same.

There's the Zacchini family, two cousins and seven uncles including Donaldo and Sylvania, who were the first two people to get themselves shot out of a cannon in a "double" act in the world. You can shoot a Zacchini out of a cannon any time, but you couldn't drag him away from circus life.

"You've got to keep your mind on your business. You can't relax in a cannon," says Donaldo, 22, and most people would be willing to concede the point.

Even when you have a less dangerous job than being shot out of a cannon, circus life can be rough—so rough that most aspirants to theatrical honors are afraid of it. However, that is one of the things that make circus people proud of their jobs. They are just that way, it would seem.

"The only things I'd like to have is a bathtub," Louise Childers, a dancer who is training to be an aerialist, says. The dancing girls—in case you didn't know—have to perform their ablutions in pioneer fashion, using the bucket every evening including Saturdays. They ought to be entitled to go without on Sundays, maybe.

Nevertheless, Miss Childers says she "absolutely loves it."

"I even enjoy walking around in the mud," Louise says. This, despite the fact that dancers often lose their shoes and have to run out under the big lights distressingly barefoot.

The steam calliope used in this circus, by the way, is 110 years old. It is the same one used in President Truman's inauguration this year, and Jack Crippen claims to be one of only three men left in the United States who can play one.

Camp Chase Post Auxiliary Names Parley Delegates

At a meeting of the Auxiliary Unit of Camp Chase Post No. 98, American Legion, last Friday, the delegates and alternates to represent the unit at the 12th District and Department of Ohio Auxiliary Conventions were selected.

The delegates are: Mrs. Mary Fiscus, Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. Lillian McVay, Mrs. Edna Johnson and Mrs. Martha Finneran. The alternate delegates are: Mrs. Alga Kinnen, Mrs. Helen Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Esther Scales, Mrs. Mildred Myers and Mrs. Peg Phelps.

Mrs. Fiscus, the unit president, announced the following as a nominating committee to select candidates for the unit offices for the year 1949-50: Mrs. Scales, chairman; Mrs. Mary Thompson, Mrs. Edna Beilar, Mrs. Finneran and Mrs. Esther Weidner.

Before she was 15 years old, Charlotte Bronte wrote 23 novels.

Summer Lovelies

By Betty Barclay

SUMMERTIME is the right time for fruit desserts so as to get the full benefit and enjoyment out of the array of tempting fruits and berries that will be coming along now in quick succession.

Fruits and berries are delicious served plain, but some members of your family may feel that fruit alone isn't really a dessert. That's when a recipe like this Fruit Tapioca comes to the rescue. It is almost as easy to prepare as a dish of fruit or berries. You use packaged tapioca pudding, you see, which means that in little more than five minutes you have a wonderful, tempting dessert ready to chill and serve with its seasonal fruit topping.

Fruit Tapioca

1 package prepared vanilla tapioca pudding; ½ cups fruit juice and water; 1 cup cut or crushed fruit, well drained and sweetened if necessary; 1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Turn pudding mixture into saucepan. Add fruit juice and water and mix well. Cook and stir over medium heat util mixture comes to a full boil. (Mixture will be thin. Do not overcook.) Add fruit and lemon juice as needed for tartness. Cool, stirring once after 15 to 20 minutes — mixture thickens as it cools. Chill. Serve plain or with cream. Makes 5 servings.

A West Side Realtor
Will Serve You Well

The Hilltop and West Side realtors named below, who are members of the Columbus Real Estate Board, are now holding monthly meetings for the purpose of providing better service to their clients.

This new cooperative plan enables the members to discuss mutual problems and exchange listings, which results in quicker sales; thus, when you list your property with any one of this group, you are automatically placing it with all 17 members—at no extra cost.

When you are ready to sell, avail yourself of the efficient, conscientious service offered by these realtors, who are residents of your own community.

Planning a Drive? Here Are Some Ideas

YOU CAN'T GO WRONG following the new signs on six scenic routes that radiate from Bainbridge, Ohio. The thoughtfully-planned loops lead past historic shrines, mountainous lookout spots, natural wonders, over a skyline drive, and through the valley of the largest creek in the World. Shown here are a sample of the many spots to be seen. Upper left: Barrett's Mill with its covered bridge and nearby waterfall. Upper right: the legendary Great Stone Face at Paint Creek Valley. Lower left: scene in one of the Seven Caves showing unique pushbutton illuminating system. Lower right: Bainbridge's famed "Cradle of Dental Science". Not shown are: Paint Creek Falls, Rapid Forge Bridge, Slep Mound, Kilvert Mound, Rocky Fork Gorge, Skyline Drive, Fort Hill, and other interesting spots. Detailed information and maps can be secured from the Bainbridge Progressive Association, or the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission, 402 State Office Building, Columbus, Ohio.

Odd Fact

A soldier stationed at an Air Force base in Texas has to have army shoes specially made for him because his feet are too small to fit any regular army issue shoes.

Everyday is Sundae

By Betty Barclay

AT least it would be for the youngsters, if they could enlist your cooperation in providing the mouth-watering combinations of ice cream and toppings that parade under the name of "sundae." And why not, when it's so easy to make your own sundaes at home! That isn't going to complicate your life half as much as you may think. You buy the ice cream and keep it in your freezer or in the freezing unit of your refrigerator. Then you make, and keep on hand, several toppings — chocolate sauce, crushed berries, mixed fruits, and for a really "super" butterscotch sauce, use packaged pudding as suggested here. Wonderfully quick over puddings as well as ice cream, you can also "fancy it up" a bit, if you like, by sprinkling with shredded coconut or chopped nuts.

Butterscotch Sauce

1 package prepared butterscotch pudding; ⅝ cup granulated sugar; ¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed; ⅝ cup milk; 3 tablespoons butter.

Combine pudding powder, sugars, and milk in saucepan. Mix well. Place over low heat and cook until all the sugar is dissolved, stirring constantly. Continue cooking until mixture comes to a full boil. Boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat and add butter. Serve warm or cold on pudding or ice cream. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

Like the Autumn? Here Are Hints On How to Stay Alive to Enjoy It

Increased summer activity around the home means added effort to reduce the appalling number of home accidents.

Safety authorities suggest an immediate check of these accident sources around your house:

Store storm windows and other winter equipment safely. Poor storage is one of the big reasons for accidents and fires.

Repair broken outdoor furniture, broken porch floors or steps, railing and fences.

Clean up glass, nails and other objects. Make sure the children's sand pile is sifted and free of such hazards.

Check the window screens. Make certain that weak frames and wire are strengthened and screens held securely to keep children from falling out.

Put garden tools, insecticides, weed killers and the like out of reach in a safe place when finished using them.

Have guards on all electric fans and keep them placed out of reach of children.

Open windows increase the possibility of gas pilot lights being blown out. Make sure curtains cannot blow across a gas flame.

DESIGNED FOR YOU!

Congress to Do Nothing About Threatened Deficit?

Berlin Air Lift Has Cost Each of Us $1 Per Month

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—There is a strengthening belief on Capitol Hill that Congress may do nothing about the threatened governmental deficit for the 1950 fiscal year.

A high Democratic leader who has been pressing for action on President Truman's four-billion-dollar tax increase request commented: "There seems to be little enthusiasm in Congress for increasing taxes."

Washington

The leader, who is close to the White House, indicated he did not believe there would be any effective cut in the president's 42-billion-dollar budget, and that Congress might adjourn without doing anything at all about the deficit.

In that event, he pointed out, if expenditures exceed revenues, the government will have to engage in deficit financing during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1. This would increase the monumental 251-billion-dollar public debt.

Mr Truman forecast a deficit of 600 to 700 million dollars, but congressional tax experts have predicted it might go as high as three billion dollars.

One out, short of higher taxes or decreased spending, remains. Congress could adopt the proposal of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (R), Arkansas, requiring corporations to speed up their tax payments. This would bring in 4.6 to 4.8 billion dollars to provide temporary relief.

* * * *

● OPERATION VITTLES' FINALE—When the Berlin Air Lift is finally stopped, it will save every man, woman and child in the United States about a dollar a month. In addition, the end of "Operation Vittles" will mean that:

1—The Military Air Transport Service, from which hundreds of planes were siphoned from the very start of the operation, will get enough planes back to re-establish in full its post-war routes in the Pacific and Continental Divisions.

2—The Navy will get back the 20 tankers diverted from regular operations to the "Sea Lift" which delivered a total of 121 million gallons of gasoline to the Air Lift.

3—Marine and Navy officers, men and planes reassigned from the Pacific will go back to their posts, strengthening the United States in the vital Far East.

4—The Army and Air Force, both calling loudly for trained men, will be able to take hundreds of Air Lift personnel for placement in combat and training units.

High ranking officers in all three services agree that the Berlin blockade, possibly designed to weaken the Allies, has had the exact opposite effect on American armed forces.

Movable Wings for Planes

● NEW TYPE WARPLANE—America's top aviation designers are working on a supersonic fighter plane with a revolutionary "adjustable" wing that may conquer the problems of flying faster than sound.

The United States, in two short years starting from scratch, has learned enough about supersonic flight to be able to build a vast force of war planes if an emergency arises, but—

The toughest knot to be unraveled was how to land a supersonic plane, which had to have sweptback wings to fly faster than sound, without spinning in at low landing speeds.

The answer is a wing built around a spar which runs from wingtip to wingtip. The pilot will be able by "push button" methods to sweep the wings back for high speed and forward for safe landings.

The wings also will be adjustable upward to provide a greater "bite" in the thin air of high altitudes.

ENLISTS IN NAVY

Raymond Wesley Weil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce R. Weil of 401 Dana-av, was sworn into the U. S. Navy Friday at the old Post Office Building Navy Recruiting Station. Raymond attended Central High School and before enlisting in the regular navy was employed by Arnold's Pharmacy. He left Columbus on the 11 o'clock train Friday night for the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif., where he will receive his recruit training.

WILL BE INSTALLED

Octa Darby, 34 S. Central-av, and Edna Coll, 171 Eureka-av, will be installed as officers of the Disabled Veterans Auxiliary on June 20 at Memorial Hall. Mrs. Ruhama Chappelear will be the installing officer.

Recruiting Sergeant Is Hilltop Resident

Out recruiting Hilltop men for the Army Air Force is T/Sgt. John R. Diehr, now stationed at the old Post Office building.

Sgt. Diehr has lived on the Hilltop at his present address, 187 S. Hague-av, for almost two years. A resident of the North Side prior to his service in the Air Force during the war, Sgt. Diehr, spent three years in England with the 8th Air Force. Following his discharge, he re-enlisted and was assigned to Columbus.

His wife is a war bride from England. The Diehrs have two children.

CHAPTER TWENTY

IT WAS NOT until after the last guest had gone, and Beatrice and Porter's mother were alone together in the living room that Mrs. Sanger said circumspectly, "Mr. Sanger and I are leaving tomorrow and we won't be east again until summer. Beatrice, is Porter overworked? No, perhaps it isn't that because it doesn't seem to be physical. But it is perfectly obvious that he is living under some sort of emotional burden and struggling with it inside himself."

Beatrice nodded. "Yes, it is. It has been so for a long time. He seems to be living tentatively now, when once he lived so ardently in the future. We were going to Paris, and we were going to build in the country so we could have horses. We were going to do all sorts of things in a wonderful time to come. Now he seems to live each day for what it is as if—as if there isn't any future. For awhile he was in a terrible state of wrath and anger that has been replaced by a kind of smouldering resignation, as if he has encountered some blockage in his way that he can't get around."

She stopped short. She had not meant to say so much. Certainly she had no wish to worry his mother, or to unburden herself of what was truly her own problem. The estranging wall was between Porter and her. It was their marriage in crisis, their home in peril. For Porter's attitude toward his mother had been the same as it had always been—gallant, good-humored and respectful.

Katharine Sanger said, "Forgive my saying so, Beatrice, but I often think that Porter has been too successful. He spiraled professionally too fast. I have seen it happen before. Those men are always discontented, always looking for new fields to conquer. I am not profound, but I have lived long, and only an imbecile would fail to gain some perspective. Men like Porter are always crying within themselves—Give me more. More! Relaxation they never know. Ambition can be as poisonously intoxicating as alcohol. It has ruined fine men who have used it badly and let it usurp the place of love in their lives."

Beatrice pressed her lacy handkerchief into her hand. The unshed tears made her throat ache. "He has always been ambitious."

"Always," Mrs. Sanger replied with emphasis. "When he was a boy we had so little money after his father passed away. Porter had a paper route. He wanted a bicycle just as Marianne wants a dog. He saved every penny he made, and when he bought the bicycle he didn't buy a secondhand one or a modest new one. He bought the largest, brightest, most expensive one with all the gadgets on it that money could buy. He was the poorest boy in the neighborhood with the finest bicycle."

"A millionaire—or a bum," Beatrice said. She hated the dry flatness of her voice.

"Surely there is a compromise between them," Mrs. Sanger said firmly. "Surely Porter will make it or . . ."

The bell rang. Beatrice went to the door and opened it.

Frank Sanger whispered sheepishly, "Have they all gone?"

On the morning of the following day when they were leaving, Frank Sanger said, "I have an idea, Beatrice. You know I've never seen the Ramey plant, and I wondered as you drove us to the station if you'd allow enough time to stop there and let me look over the place."

The older couple were at breakfast. Porter, having told his mother and stepfather good-bye last night after a pleasant evening at the club, had already been gone two hours.

"If it isn't too far out of your way," Mrs. Sanger injected.

"It doesn't matter about that," Beatrice told them. "In fact, it is only a little out of the way."

Mrs. Sanger glanced at her husband. "I am not at all certain you should, dear. Mr. Ramey is an eccentric man."

Frank Sanger grinned. "You mean I might waste a couple minutes of his time? What a man! What does he get out of life anyway? Granted that my visit won't put any cash in his pockets—so what? He won't throw me out. I've always wanted to see Porter's office."

"It isn't much to see," Beatrice said with a smile. "Mr. Ramey doesn't believe in coddling his employees with air conditioning and rugs on the floor."

Mrs. Sanger said, "Well, just a short call, dear. Just to satisfy your curiosity. I don't want Beatrice to tire herself today for us. Libby is having a party this afternoon."

"Ah, Libby," Frank Sanger sighed. "Wonderful girl, that Libby. Alive and full of fun. Can't understand why someone hasn't married her long before this."

Katharine Sanger looked thoughtful. "I thought Libby looked harassed and very nervous, Beatrice."

Later Beatrice realized that it was because she had such a busy morning that she did not think of seeing Bonnie Watson until Mr. and Mrs. Sanger and their luggage were in the car and she was driving through town. Marianne had deliberated between accompanying them or playing with her new toys. The new toys, however, had won and she had waved at them through the window.

She was going to see Bonnie Watson to whom Porter had given a gift not of his wife's knowing. Fearing the source of his anger, Beatrice had not asked him what he had bought his secretary for Christmas.

She wished now that the drive to the plant were longer so that she might have more time to contemplate meeting the girl. Yet time would only be fuel to loathsome suspicions. Why would he not tell her? For what was he waiting? To know, Beatrice thought, to know so that her imagination would not go off on wild, baseless tangents. Was not suspicion the beginning of distrust, the seed of hate? Hating him whom she had loved so long was as inconceivable to her as that the dawn would not come another day.

She must not think about it so much, she told herself. Soon it would begin to show like an illness one could not conceal until death. A cascade of emotions weakened her. It's all linked, she thought wretchedly. The mind, the spirit, the body. When one was damaged, the others were also maimed, their functions crippled. I want to cry, she thought. I've been wanting to cry for a long time. That's why my tears are so near the surface. But there is no place where I can go where no one will see me. Why didn't I cry with David that day in the park? What is David, and what is he to me? To hide my face above his heart and cry, feeling his compassion warming, reassuring. Oh, David . . .

"We've had a swell time," Frank Sanger was saying. "We always do, Bee."

"Beatrice does things so beautifully, and with such ease," Porter's mother said.

"Thank you," Beatrice replied. You say that, she thought, while I feel like a feather in the wind. Where is the rich contentment I once knew? A gift of the gods, like so many of those gifts I didn't realize until I lost them. Where is the bright promise of tomorrow? The ripe, golden middle years that some people dread, and which I've anticipated with Porter? The wish, the only wish in the center of my existence, has been that Porter and I should love each other throughout our lives.

The car was climbing a hill. When it reached the top, Beatrice said, "Below the hill at the left is the Ramey plant."

Smoke spiraled from the low flat buildings, many of which had been erected in haste after the declaration of war. Beatrice's brows furrowed when it occurred to her for the first time that the gray buildings behind the high wire fence bore a close resemblance to pictures she had seen of a penal colony. The guard walking to and fro over the dirty snow added reality, though the man was probably just trying to keep warm.

Frank Sanger chuckled like a child about to do a daring and forbidden thing. "Do you suppose they'll let us in?"

Katharine Sanger said, "Places like this are so colorless, so grim. You'll have to go in, Beatrice, but I'll wait in the car if you don't mind. It's warm and I have the robe." Her laughter came in little light ripples. "No wonder Porter has loved coming home to all the beauty you have made for him, Beatrice, after this all day."

Frank Sanger patted his wife's gloved hand. "Thank you for indulging me, dear. Are you sure you'll be comfortable while I'm inside?"

"Of course. I like Beatrice's car. One of the suppressed desires of my youth was to have a car like this."

Beatrice followed the building, Porter's stepfather following. She went up the concrete steps, holding to the iron railing, and opened the door into Porter's office.

A MESSAGE FROM HOTPOINT, Inc.

THE TRUTH ABOUT ELECTRIC APPLIANCE PRICES

Are prices too high? Are you getting the new features and quality you expected in post-war appliances? Are you getting your money's worth?

IF YOUR family has been thinking of buying a new appliance for your home, you may be a little confused by conflicting stories about prices and values today.

The fact is, there is no investment you can make at this time that gives you more real value for your money than a good electric appliance.

For example, the cost of living is up more than 70% over 1939 (U. S. Government statistics) but the increase in price of such appliances as electric ranges, refrigerators, washing machines, water heaters and dishwashers averages only a little more than half that!

To be specific, we have a brand new 1949 model 6 cubic foot refrigerator that you can buy right now for $189.75—only $10 more than the same kind and size cost in 1939—and it's a lot better and has many improved features. When you consider that the dollar today is worth only 60 percent of what it was in 1939, this new, vastly-improved post-war refrigerator actually costs a lot less.

Compare this with the price increase in automobiles, houses, or almost anything you buy —up from 50 to more than 100 percent.

We think you'll agree that the appliance industry has done a great job of building new and better products, while still maintaining the low prices you want.

We have accomplished low prices and maintained highest quality by careful planning. For example, Hotpoint has completed the industry's greatest post-war expansion program. Our new factories now give us far more efficiency than pre-war facilities.

Our modern electric range plant—now producing the new "pushbutton" ranges and many other beautiful new models—is the largest and most modern in the world. The same is true of the new Hotpoint dishwasher factory which puts this wonderful new appliance, that eliminates the meanest job in the home, on a mass production basis for the first time.

Yes, if you are thinking of buying a new appliance, we can see no reason for you to wait. Frankly, at today's new low prices you will get the greatest dollar-for-dollar values the appliance industry has ever offered in all its history.

In making your selection, however, be sure to look them all over, feature by feature, compare values, and ask friends who know from experience—because, even though the industry is offering good values, you want to be sure to get the appliances that give you most for your money.

We think you'll point to Hotpoint as your choice, for we honestly believe our appliances are as fine as technical facilities and human skill can produce—and priced as low as any other make of comparable quality.

We make a lot of things—everything for the complete electric kitchen and home laundry—so we can't afford to lose you as a future customer when you buy any one of our products. Our growth depends on your coming back to buy more of our appliances. You'll never buy a poor appliance with our name on it, and no one will give more honest value for your appliance dollar than Hotpoint.

"You can look to Hotpoint for the finest — first!" That's no idle statement. We mean it. So, we back it up with the greatest dollar-for-dollar value in quality appliances ever offered —right now!

Jesus Rises From the Dead

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 16:1-8; John 21:1-17; I Corinthians 15:12-19.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Early on Sunday morning, after Christ's burial in Joseph's tomb on Friday, came the three Marys to embalm His body with spices and ointments, but found the tomb was empty.

As the women stood before Jesus' tomb, two men in shining garments stood before them and said, "He is risen: remember how He spake unto you when He was yet in Galilee"?

Jesus first appeared to Mary Magdalene, and she went and told them that had been with Him, as they mourned and wept, but they did not believe her that He was alive.

Afterwards Jesus appeared to the eleven disciples and told them to go into the world and preach the gospel to every creature.

DO NOT SELL YOUR BIRTHRIGHT OF LIBERTY...

For POLITICAL MEDICINE dressed up as "Social Security"—but which in reality would turn out to be lower standards of medical practice; less health; regimented patients; doctors and dentists hampered by red tape; regimented workers, nurses, druggists, employers and hundreds of thousands in health fields.

The shifting sands of Federal and State politics is no place for the administration of personal medical service, in freedom-loving America. . . . In all countries where COMPULSORY Health Insurance Taxes are levied on workers, the quality of medical service suffers, non-medical bureaucratic rules and regulations harass both doctor and patient.

Any such system of Political Medicine as is proposed by bills now in the hands of Congress, would pull more than three BILLION dollars a year out of workers' pay envelopes, turn it over to a "Medical Dictator"—and give you exactly the "mess of pottage" pictured.

America now has the highest level of health on earth, and your doctor and his fellow physicians are doing everything possible to improve every phase of medicine, and extend its benefits to all mankind.

Ask your Doctor about the pre-paid Medical and Hospital Plans in your community. Such VOLUNTARY health insurance is available to 100,000,000 Americans.

Youth Hostel Trip To Yellow Springs Is Planned Sunday

Bicycles and enjoyment are the order of the day when the Buckeye Trails sponsors a Youth Hostel trip to Yellow Springs, Ohio on Saturday, June 18. Upon arrival, the group will make a tour of the points of interest there.

The hostel at Yellow Springs was recently the scene of one of American Youth Hostel's unique "work- holidays" when hostelers paint-up and clean the shelter in preparation for future occupancy. It will accommodate six girls and 10 boys.

Although the ride is not one of the more strenuous ones, because of the distance of Yellow Springs from Columbus, the hostelers plan to return by train Sunday evening. The group will leave Saturday morning at 6:30 from the corner of Grodale-blvd and Grandview-av. Reservations should be made immediately by calling Buckeye Trails president, Ann Gustin, at UN. 7069.

Briggsdale And Brown Road

By Mrs. Harry C. Downing

Daily Vacation Bible School will begin next Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the Briggsdale Methodist Church. Icne Smith and Barbara Havda, from the Youth Home Missions in Indiana will act as leaders.

They are to be assisted by Betty Smith, Mrs. Doris Friend, Mrs. Harry Hampson and Mrs. Steward Gibboney. Boys and girls of all denominations are invited to attend classes for the two weeks beginning June 20 and ending July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shilling, 1740 Harrisburg-pk, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Borror, Ashville, spent last week traveling through the Smoky Moutains.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dyer, Grove City, were Monday evening callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alkire, 1992 Harrisburg-pk.

Mr. and Mrs. William Eisenbach, 2278 Big Run-rd, returned home recently from a 10-day fishing trip in Michigan. They spent Sunday with Mr. Eisenbach's parents in Pandora.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Willcox and sons, Bobby and Jimmy, 2082 Eakin-rd, visited relatives in Zanesville, Sunday. On Monday evening callers at their home were Mary Brown and Mrs. Anna King and son, David of Cambridge.

The Briggsdale WSCS met Thursday afternoon at the church. The Jackson Chapel WSCS held its regular meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Carrie Swartz.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Mary Delores Izzo and Mr. Richard Rubadue. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Izzo of Zanesville, former residents of Briggsdale, is employed at the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Mr. Rubadue is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Rubadue of 222 Cypress-av and is connected with the State Auditor's office. The wedding will take place late this summer.

Children's Day was observed in the Briggsdale Church Sunday morning following Sunday School.

The new pastor, Rev. Edwin S. Jones and family, expect to move into the parsonage Friday. Rev. and Mrs. Jones are the parents of a year-old child. Rev. J. Arva Shirer, retiring pastor and Mrs. Shirer will reside at the Masonic Home in Springfield where he will act as chaplain after Aug. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Summers, 720 W. Mound-st, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Winifred, to Mr. Jack Rea, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Rea, 1072 Geneva-av. The wedding will take place July 1 in the Bellows Avenue Church of the Nazarene.

Mrs. Elta Kcehler, 3601 Dudley-st, Grove City, was hostess to a number of friends Monday noon when she entertained with a chicken dinner. Guests included Bertha Grehl, Mrs. Ruth Ollinger, Mrs. Mary Wendel, Mrs. May James, Mrs. Wanda Long and son, Craig, Mrs. Mayme Ewers, Mrs. Mary Guiton and Mrs. Flossie Alkire.

As the lighthouse charts the course of the ship at sea, so does Christ point the way, by teachings and example, that leads to safe destinations and contentment in life.

The lighthouse shown here is the world famous Barnegat light off Long Beach Island, N. J. It has guided generations of voyagers away from dangerous shoals and into safer waters to their ultimate landings.

Without this lighthouse, some of the many ships sailing these waters might have grounded with the resultant loss of life to hundreds of passengers. Without religion and the church, millions of mortals who have found safe passage in life might well have foundered on the rocks of human frailties.

"I am the light of the world," taught Christ, pointing out that if any man entereth in by the gate, he will receive everlasting life. The way of life and the commandments of God are taught in our churches and Sunday Schools. Our houses of worship are the lighthouses that will help mankind in his pursuit of salvation.

Regular church attendance will build a stronger and better America. God has promised to bless the nation which follows His way of life. Christian living, and the light that it offers, will dispel the darkness of despair and defeat.

"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

SHOOTING VICTIM GETS A ROSE

HOLDING A ROSE presented by "Butch" as a peace offering, 10-year-old Janet Elaine Walters (left) forgives Charles Lee "Butch" Lindsay, 8, who accidentally wounded her with his father's pistol. "Butch" found the gun hidden in a clothes closet in his Los Angeles home. Thinking it unloaded, he jokingly pointed it at Janet, saying, "I'm going to kill you." A .38 caliber bullet pierced the flesh of Janet's left thigh. (International Soundphoto)

Have An Herb Window Box

By ALICE DENHOFF

SINCE the delights of home-grown herbs enhance almost all dishes, tuck a few herb seeds into a garden corner this Spring, or, as we have advocated before, get busy with an herb windbow box (lots of fun for city apartment dwellers).

Among the herbs that thrive in the home garden are mint, thyme, sage, marjoram, summer savory and sweet basil. Each adds its distinctive piquancy to dishes.

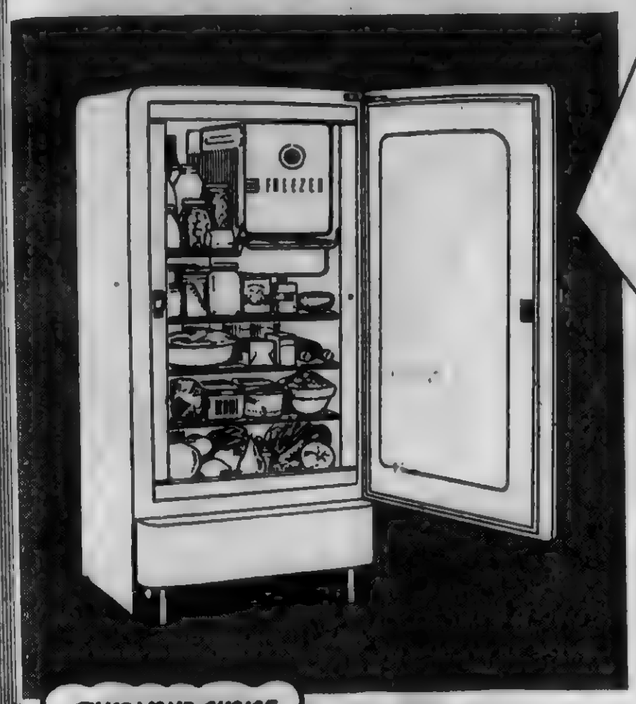
Get the knack of herb seasoning in tested recipes, then branch out and "spike" other dishes to suit yourself. But do be sparing, better too little than too much. The herb flavor must never predominate.

In Meat Sauces

Sage is a "natural" with pork. Thyme is delicious in meat sauces. Sweet marjoram adds spice to veal and lamb, to hash, meat pies and casseroles. Mint, of course, is unbeatable with lamb. Summer savory is delicious in meat balls, perking them up no end, and sweet basil is fine with meat and tomato sauce. During the summer, use herbs fresh. In fall, dry them and store leaves in air-tight jars.

Two rules will guide you on use of herbs: (1) use no more than two herb-flavored dishes in one meal; (2) a pinch of herbs between thumb and first finger is generally enough for any dish serving four people. Remember, seasoning is easy to add, but hard to remove.

A nicely-seasoned sausage loaf adds up to an inexpensive, nourishing and satisfying main dish. Mix thoroughly, then shape into a loaf, one lb. each sausage meat and hamburger. Also ½ c. fine bread crumbs, tsp. salt, tsp. pepper, tsp. sage, 2 eggs well beaten and ¼ c. milk. Bake uncovered, in 350 F. for about an hour. This may be served with cream sauce. Serves 8 to 10 nicely.



Good Lamb Dish

If the larder yields enough for 8 slices of lamb then you've got the foundation for a good dish. Mix 2 tsp. cornstarch with ½ c. lamb gravy. Add ½ c. each currant jelly, orange juice and minced mint leaves. Cook until slightly thickened, stirring occasionally. Heat 8 slices of lamb in sauce and serve.

To make superb beef stew, cook cubes of stewing beef with a small amount of pickling spices. You'll have every diner puzzling as to the origin of the fine flavor. And try adding tsp. dried marjoram to roast or stew lamb. Make fluffy meat loaf with any left-over ground meat. Extend the meat with bread cubes soaked in milk or tomato juice. Flavor with oregano, an abundant Mexican sage that doubles well for true sage or marjoram. Serve with tomato sauce.

And, for a final tip, put your fresh celery leaves in a paper sack and place on radiator or in a cooling oven to dry. Fine for flavoring soups, stews and pot roasts.

Zestful Sale Bill

Occasionally one encounters an oddly phrased advertisement in a publication, so written to attract attention. Once in a great while a newspaper ad is inserted upside down, also to arouse curiosity. And of course, English as written and spoken in these United States 50 or 100 years ago appears strange indeed today.

One such unusual advertisement was a sale bill printed in the Feb. 11, 1910 issue of the Bremen, O., Derrick, to publicize a farm sale to be held by one Milo Rader at his place near Lancaster. Excerpts from the bill follow:

"If the Lord is willing and the creeks don't raise, the undersigned will have a public venue, Tuesday, November 14, 1909, at the hut where I have

Ohio Morticians Advance Spears To Higher Office

Jerry Spears, Sr. (above), head of the Jerry Spears Co. at 2693 W. Broad-st, was elected first vice-president of the Ohio Association of Funeral Directors at the organization's convention last week in Cincinnati.

The action, taken at the group's 69th annual session, advanced Mr. Spears from the position of second vice-president, which he has held during the past year. Mr. Spears also was chairman of the membership committee last year, and two years ago he was treasurer of the state group.

Mr. Spears also has been active in the association's legislative program to raise the educational standards of his profession in which the prerequisites have been set at two years of college training plus one year at embalming college and one year's interneship.

Mr. Spears is a member of the association's speakers' bureau and has represented his organization before several theological seminaries and liberal arts colleges as well as before embalming colleges. On Mar. 30, he gave the commencement address at the Pittsburgh Institute of Mortuary Science and will appear again July 11 for a two-hour instruction session.

Junior Shaidnagle of Massillon has been elected next year's president of the association which has a membership of 916, representing the entire state. During Mr. Spears' tenure as membership chairman, the group's membership increased by 119.

Traffic Victim—One Year After

Battle for Judy Wolfe's Life Won, But Struggle for Health Goes On

By Doris Rckeach

For Bill and Mrs. Wolfe, 336 N. Sylvan-av, the long tortuous weeks of watching their seven-year-old daughter's struggle for life are over. But the period of watching her full recovery has continued now for more than a year.

Watching Judy run and play, she seems like any other happy young girl. Only on close observation can the slight limp in her walk and the straightforward glance of her stationary eye be detected.

Struck at Broad-st and Sylvan-av on her way to the West Broad Street School, Judy was rushed to Mt. Carmel Hospital Apr. 28, 1948, near death. There she lay for 30 days paralyzed and unconscious. Suffering head and leg injuries, physicians feared she would never walk or talk again.

Brother Gets Credit

Recalling the grim days after the accident, Mrs. Wolfe says that Judy's four-year-old brother, Bruce, was the one to return her to consciousness. He cried when Judy wouldn't talk to him. Watching her brother's sobs, she smiled and tried to speak.

Judy's recovery was similar to the experiences of a new baby. She learned to walk by first learning to crawl. Even today she needs assistance when walking up and down stairs.

The most anguishing blow to Judy was that her pretty, auburn hair was shaved. For a long time she refused to wear any feminine clothing, saying, "They cut my hair like a boy's, and now I'm going to be one."

Aided By Tutor

Seven months after the accident Judy had made great strides toward recovery, and in September Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe hired a tutor, who coached Judy for a month. In October she was sent to the Open Air Elementary School, where she completed the first grade this spring.

Bill and the Mrs. haven't stopped treatment for Judy. The 28th of this month she will undergo the third operation on her eye. The doctor hopes to relieve the nerve, so that it may once again change position freely.

ON ROAD TO RECOVERY — Head is little Judy Wolfe as she rode her tricycle one day last week in front of her home at 336 N. Sylvan-av. With her is her mother, Mrs. William Wolfe. Judy's life hung in the balance for many weeks early last summer after the was struck by a car in W. Broad-st and Sylvan-av.

Simpson Is New Masonic Head

William Simpson, 260 S. Ogden-av, was elected high priest of Ohio Chapter No. 12, Royal Arch Masons, at the annual election of officers last week in the Masonic Temple, 34 N. Fourth-st.

Other officers named are Walter L. Bonnell, king; Charles P. Clark, scribe; A. O. Thomas, re-elected treasurer; T. T. Vollmann, re-elected secretary; J. Fred Moehl, captain of host; Glenn D. Morris, principal sojourner; Charles W. Graham, royal arch captain; Paul E. Bradley, John S. Adams and Fred R. Asay, masters of third, second and first vells respectively; Harry C. Colburn, senior steward; C. R. Cook, junior steward; A. C. Bauer, guard, and Emmery Bender, temple trustee.

CASH REGISTER STOLEN

Burglars took a combination adding machine and cash register containing $30 from Schwan's Garage, 2603 Sullivant-av, early Sunday, police reported.

Mum Festival Plants Ready For W. Broad Residents

Over at the Rosebud Floral Co., 351 N. Burgess-av, they're busy packing little bundles which, when October rolls around, are going to make W. Broad-st one of the showplaces of the country.

Those little bundles contain six mum plants each. They are being given free to every resident of W. Broad-st from Central-av to Derrer-rd. The blooms these plants produce will decorate the front yards of the "Main Stem" during the Hilltop Mum Festival being sponsored by the Hilltop Kiwanis Club.

The free mum plans (free to W. Broad-st residents only) became available last Saturday and will be available at the greenhouse until July 1.

Leo McComb, proprietor of the Rosebud Floral Co. and chairman of the Kiwanis Mum Festival committee, urges, however, that W. Broad-st residents pick up their free plants as soon as possible. The sooner they are planted, he says, the better results will be obtained.

Culture Tips Ready

Mr. McComb has prepared a mimeographed list of suggestions for the care of the hardy chrysanthemum plants which are being distributed and each W. Broad-st resident who requests data on mum culture will be given a copy. The instruction sheet points out that, although the plants look small now, they are of the proper size to bloom this fall and are the same size plants Mr. McComb is planting in his fields now for large autumn clumps.

Here are a few of the suggestions:

Allow at least 18 inches between plants. They will fill the space.

Don't plant them under a street light. It causes the mums to bloom late.

When planting, spade at least, 12 inches deep and work well-rotted manure or peat moss into the soil. If neither is available, mix about two or three tablespoons of fertilizer with the soil.

Mr. McComb suggests that the mums be planted in back yards where they can get air and sunlight and where they can be cultivated until they are in bud. After they reach that stage, the plants can be moved to any location where they can be seen from W. Broad-st, whether it be under a street light, under trees or evergreens, because the shade or excess light will not harm them.

Plant Anywhere

Just as mum plants are lifted and replanted at City Hall for the Mum Show, so can those raised by the home owner be lifted and planted wherever the mass of color is wanted. Only requirement in the lifting is that a ball of dirt must be taken up with the roots.

Mr. McComb and the rest of his Kiwanis committee wish all W. Broad-st residents the best of luck with their plants in the hope that W. Broad-st next fall may be the beauty spot of America.

Hilltopper Is First Dad's Day Dad

ROBERT F. GALENTINE, 226 S. Richardson-av, was awarded $150 as the city's first new dad on Father's Day. Gordon Mead, 435 Vermont-pl, representing the Junior Chamber of Commerce, gave Galentine the check Sunday at Mt. Carmel Hospital. His wife, Mrs. Katherine Galentine, gave birth to Robert F. Jr., at 15 seconds past midnight to qualify Robert, a Jeffrey Manufacturing Co. employe, for the award. (Journal Photo)

Ice Boxes And Screens Are Selling Fast These Days

Believe you us, folks, now's the time to sell those surplus summer season articles, whether it be an electric fan, lawn furniture, motorcycle, convertible, lawnmower, or what have you?

Last week Mrs. A. R. Fox, 347 N. Roys-av, sold 20 window screens through a Hilltop Record ad. An alert East Side reader bought the screens soon after Mrs. Fox received her Record.

Still another advertiser, Mrs. A. J. Tanner, 2730 Grace-st, ran an ad for a Vitalaire ice box. Result: The first of eight callers took the box.

It's easy to place a Record want ad. Just dial RA. 1125.

Modification of Side-Street Parking Ban Sought on Hilltop

Council Suggests Move to Permit One-Side Parking

The deplorable lack of parking space available in the W. Broad-st shopping area is causing many a furrowed brow among Hilltop business men and, as a result, the Hilltop Community Council has come forward with a suggestion that the present ban on side-street parking be modified to alleviate the situation to a degree.

The Community Council is seeking the active support of the Hilltop Business Association in a move to modify the present stringent curb. At present, parking is prohibited on north-and-south streets intersecting Broad-st from Broad-st to the first alley north and the first alley south of Broad-st.

The Community Council's suggestion is that parking be permitted on one side of each cross street in the present restricted area.

Russell L. Carter, president of the Broadview Linoleum and Tile Co. and president of the Community Council, describes the complete ban on parking as outmoded and antiquated in view of the present parking crisis in the Hilltop business area.

The present parking restrictions were put into effect some time ago in an effort to prevent bottle-necks when motorists attempted to enter Broad-st from the side-streets or enter the side-streets from Broad-st. The Community Council feels, however, that free access to the side-streets would be allowed the motorists if parking were restricted to one side of each side-street.

The parking situation, Mr. Carter points out, was only passable a couple of years ago when, suddenly, 80-foot bus-loading zones robbed each block of Broad-st of still more valuable parking space.

The result has been, Mr. Carter says, that many persons who would prefer to shop on the Hilltop are continuing on to the downtown area where at least parking lots sometimes are available.

The only apparent alternative to its suggestion for parking ban modification, the council feels, is to make all north-south streets one-way thoroughfares, permitting parking on one side only all the way to Broad-st. This the council does not wish to recommend because of the inconvenience it would cause householders living near the business area.

HBA Basket Picnic Set for Tomorrow

All roads will lead to Zanesville tomorrow for Hilltop Business Association members and their families as they head for the organization's annual basket picnic to be held tomorrow afternoon and evening at Moxahala Park, five miles south of Zanesville on Route 22.

The picnickers will be guests of Tim Nolan, owner of the amusement park and a member of the association. The various rides at the park as well as ball games, boating, dancing and swimming will entertain the picnickers.

Kiwanis Scholarship Awards Are Presented

By Myron T. Seifert

Much of Hilltop's natural beauty can be attributed to the thinking, planning and activity of 35 civic-minded, interested women who take great delight in improving the flower gardens about the Hilltop.

Recently the club improved the gateway to Glenwood Shelter House, W. Broad-st, by planting six Taxis Yews on both sides of the sidewalk. Other shrubbery, including many flowering crab trees, through the effort of the local club, adorn the Hilltop park area.

Former Mayor Floyd Green and the late Ray Hauntz, both Hilltoppers, assisted in the planting program, sponsored by the Highland Garden Club, in adding landscape beauty to the Glenwood Park grounds.

A house isn't a home unless it has a garden and the task of home beautification often falls to the women.

Therefore, it is not at all unusual to discover in the community a group of women whose chief aim is to make us more garden-conscious, thereby stimulating that ever-lagging element in our natures called aestheticism.

Organized In 1938

On Apr. 5, 1938, a group of 14 garden-minded women met at the home of Mrs. W. R. Hamilton, 1390 N. Hague-av, and organized a garden club. Mrs. C. E. Sharp was the first president; Mrs. E. D. Myers, vice-president; Mrs. Ray Hauntz, treasurer; Mrs. J. T. Nutting, secretary; and Mrs. James M. Shepard, corresponding secretary.

Because this community is situated on high land, the name, Highland Garden Club, was adopted.

Interest in the work of the club grew apace and it was soon found necessary to restrict membership. A waiting list was formed.

Meetings are held on the third Monday of each month throughout the year except during August.

Special events on the club's calendar include guest day, Christmas meeting and the annual luncheon.

July Check On Defective Cars Planned

The annual police traffic safety check will be conducted all through the month of July under the sponsorship of the Ohio Chiefs of Police Association and the State Highway Patrol.

This year's safety check slogan will be "Check Up-Fix Up-Wise Up-Before You Smash Up!"

George Mingle, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, announced that the 1949 traffic safety check program would run through July. Control points will be set up and county and state officers will go over cars to see that horns, brakes, windshield wipers, lights, tires, steering gears and mirrors work.

If the car is found in good shape, the inspectors will put a red and white approval sticker on the windshield. If it is found defective, the owner will get a card showing what must be done within 24 hours.

Last year the Ohio police and State Highway Patrol checked 622,705 vehicles and 114,857 were found to be defective.

Details of the program were worked out last week.

Sullivant Merchants, Camp Chase Nines Meet Thursday

Hilltop's representatives in the Senior Knothole League, Sullivant-av Merchants No. 1 and Camp Chase, are scheduled to collide in the opening fray of the loop's season at 6 p. m. Thursday at the Westgate Park diamond No. 4.

Other league games scheduled for the same time on other diamonds will pit Green Cabs No. 2 against Grandview Outdoor Store at Westgate Park and Wyandotte vs. Scott Krause News Agency at Sunshine Park.

In the Intermediate Knothole League, the season will be launched at 1 p. m. tomorrow. At that time, Camp Chase will meet the Columbus Air Conditioning club at Westgate park, H. & H. Hardware will tangle with the Sullivant-av Merchants No. 2 at Sunshine Park while the Broncos take on the Hilltop Gra-Y at Westgate Park diamond No. 4.

At 3:30 p. m. tomorrow, the Junior Knothole League begins its action with a single game in the western part of the city. That game will find Camp Chase playing the Hot Shots at Westgate Park.

(Entries in the Junior League will be accepted until Thursday.)

In addition to the above-listed leagues, midget leagues also will be formed at eight playgrounds, including Westgate and Sunshine [illegible]

At present, 67 teams have entered the various Knothole leagues throughout the city with 24 teams in the senior division, 33 in the intermediate group and 10 in the junior class. The championship games in each division will be decided in the annual program at Red Bird Stadium in August.

Glenwood Methodist Church is Scene of Two Decorative Ceremonies

MRS. JOHN A. BROWN

(Citizen Photo)

The former Miss JoAnne Krause, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Krause, 321 S. Richardson-av, became the bride of Mr. John A. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva S. Brown, 2709 Elliott-av, Sunday, June 12.

MRS. ROBERT R. EDWARDS

The former Miss Frances Benner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith A. Benner of Jackson, became the bride of Mr. Robert R. Edwards, son of Mrs. O. F. Edwards, 30 N. Eureka-av, on Sunday, June 12.

Two Couples Speak Vows in Beautiful June Ceremonies At Glenwood Church

GLENWOOD METHODIST CHURCH was the scene Sunday, June 12, of two decorative wedding ceremonies, one at 1:30 p. m., the other at 3:30 p. m.

Before an altar decorated with white gladioli and greenery, Miss Frances Benner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith A. Benner of Jackson, O., became the bride of Mr. Robert F. Edwards, son of Mrs. O. F. Edwards, 30 N. Eureka-av. Rev. Joseph Shelihaas officiated at the 1:30 p. m. service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown trimmed in lace and styled with a sweetheart neckline. A tiara of pearls held her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a white prayer book adorned with a white orchid and stephanotis.

Following the wedding of Miss Benner to Mr. Edwards, Miss Jo-Ann Krause, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Krause, 321 S. Richardson-av, exchanged vows at 3:30 p. m. with Mr. John A. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva S. Brown, 2709 Elliott-av.

Escorted to the altar, decorated with white delphinium, ferns and palms, Miss Krause wore a gown of candlelight satin styled with a sheer neckline edged with seed pearls and a full skirt ending in a cathedral train. A satin band trimmed with alencon lace and pearls held her veil of imported lace illusion. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis and orchids.

Attending Miss Benner at the 1:30 p. m. ceremony were Miss Martha Benner, of Xenia, a cousin, who served as maid of honor; Miss Meredith Evans of Jackson and Miss Mary Lou Woomer of Liverpool.

Best man at the Benner-Edwards wedding was Mr. William Brown. Ushers were Mr. Donald Waggenman, Jackson, Mr. Robert Painter, Mr. Robert Zetty and Mr. Joseph Leach of Sharonville. Following the wedding a reception was held at the Alpha Rho Chi fraternity house. The bride is a graduate of Ohio State University and is employed by John Quincy Adams, architect. Her husband is a senior in the college of architectural engineering at Ohio State.

Attending the new Mrs. Brown were Mrs. Carl Smith, matron of honor and Miss Marianne Brown, bridesmaid. Mr. David Brown served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Mr. Jack Morris, Mr. Harold Buchanan and Mr. George Brown. The bride is a graduate of West High School and is with the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. Mr. Brown is also a graduate of West and is a student in the College of Law at Ohio State University.

Modern Poetry

SILENT HILLS

Silent hills seem lonesome,
Locked at from afar;
Only when you creep up close
You see them as they are,
With happy fields their faces
Upturned against the sun,
With brooks in hidden places,
That leap and laugh and run,
And birds in song amusing
The dapper morning star,
Though silent hills seem lonesome,
Looked at from afar.

REMEMBRANCE

I treasure most the constant thought of you
Securely held against my aching heart,
I pray each day our every dream come true
To thread my nights and days as we're apart,
Your lingering smile has eased a stinging smart.
The solace of your touch lives on and on,
Immutably the years plan their own chart,
For night has come and now the day is gone,

Calendar

The Bethany Bible Class will meet at the home of Mrs. Ella Gillian, 1994 Floral-av, Thursday, June 23, at 1:30 p. m. The Bible study will be Matthew, Chapter 16.

The JRB Class of Glenwood Methodist Church will hold a picnic in the church basement the evening of June 21. Picnic will be pot luck.

Full well I know your love will bring the dawn.

THE LIMITED URGE

When middle age and added pounds arrive,
A woman lives with brooding and distress,
And finally decides she must survive
On carrot juice and shredded water cress.

She measures and she weighs, and for a while
Lets Beauty be the queen and she the slavey,
And then, completely bored with this denial,
She calls for mashed potatoes, steak and gravy.

A diet, stuck to, makes a round one flatter,
But sticking to it is another matter.

'Thatchers' Daily Doings' To Recount European Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Thatcher, 2900 Crescent-dr, are now on a tour of Europe before Mr. Thatcher takes office, late this summer, as treasurer of Franklin County.

For a number of years, Mr. Thatcher has made it a practice to compile a daily log of his activities. The Record believes it will be interesting to the Thatchers' many friends to publish the log he is writing of their trip. The account begins with last May 1, several weeks before the Thatchers sailed, and tells of the frenzied last-minute preparations for their trip:

Newton A. Thatcher

Sunday, May 1

Until some time next August we shall not be in Hilltop Lutheran Church for regular services. Today was our last service until we get back from England.

Chloe McGlinchey and Dr. Grace Stewart called for us here at home as soon as they were out of their church and could drive out here. They took us to the Faculty Club at Ohio State University for a going-away luncheon. The club is a Sunday noon gathering place for faculty members and their families so we met many of our acquaintances during and after the dinner.

I know it isn't exactly polite to talk about eating all the time, especially in these times when eating is not too pleasant a process in many places. However this is the time when friends want to give going-away dinners which we want to attend even though it means enlargement of the waist line as a result. Ocean liners being noted for their fine meals, we also wanted to go sparingly in preparation for the week starting May 19 but what can we do when the local invitations come? At the Faculty Club we had baked ham with pineapple, corn, peas, tomato salad, rolls, coffee and ice cream.

Over two weeks ago we had accepted an invitation to dinner at Dan Lane's for today, along with the Goldslagers. The luncheon this noon was scheduled afterward because it was the only time available to Miss McGlinchey and Miss Stewart.

After we had spent an enjoyable two hours in the club rooms at the university Miss McGlinchey drove us to Dan Lane's before going on to an afternoon tea she was to attend.

At 5:30 Rev. DuVal and his family (he is pastor of Trinity Methodist Church where Dan attends) arrived and in a few minutes we were seated around the dining table to take part in a going-away dinner which Mrs. Lane had prepared for us. At 7:30 we were attached to derricks and lifted from our places after a banquet which would have been a credit to the finest hotel chef. Can't you hear the satisfied groans of the participants? Here is what was served, in part, as I can not remember all: olives, celery, onions, cheese, salami, anchovies, Italian soup, Italian spaghetti with meat balls, chicken, sweet potatoes, salad, pickled peppers (sweet and hot), fried chicken, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake. Shades of Ye Olde Groat!

For the rest of the evening, between further groans of too-good dinners, all kinds of parlor tricks and games were indulged in until the 9 o'clock departure time came when the younger generation had to be taken home to get some sleep between then and school time tomorrow.

Monday, May 2

At home with Violet today now that there is no office to beckon me. While Violet has been cleaning the garage this morning I have again worked on these pages. We have stopped long enough to read newly arrived letters from Maudie, from Kitty Bartlet and from Frances Davis. Mrs. Davis says that while we have been having chilly Easter weather here they have been having 90 and 100 degree weather out there in Arizona.

Jack Brittain came out this afternoon and stayed for supper. He still has not heard whether he will get passage on the Caronia.

Tuesday, May 3

With only two weeks more to go before we start rolling toward New York it looks as though we are going to have a full time job getting ready and keeping up with the invitations of those who want to have a farewell meeting with us.

Today Violet has been ironing. Out in the back yard a chance workman, looking for odd jobs, has been spading up all the flower beds and clearing out the spring growth of long grass and weeds. We had been wondering how we would get this done with all the other things we had to do, then yesterday this man came around.

My day has been taken up with miscellaneous errands and engagements. This morning I stopped in to see Mom and to get from her the things she wanted me to take on an errand downtown.

From Lazarus I walked back to the State Liquor Control Department to meet Phil Goldslager as the two of us were going to the American Legion Headquarters for a noon luncheon of the Young Democrats Club at which Mr. Fleckner, liquor control director, was the speaker.

After the luncheon when Phil had gone back to work (poor soul) I went to the paint store to get some DDT paint with which to paint our screens to help keep out mosquitoes and the like during our absence this summer. I also had to get a can of paint and a brush with which to give our newly acquired rubbish can a presentable color in its exposed position at the back of the house. Across the street I acquired another package, this time some typing paper for use along our summer routes when I write back home to those who want to hear from us.

To break a May 3 heat record established in 1905 the temperature today has climbed to over 90 degrees and that made the running of errands downtown a perspiring job, especially when walking from one end of the area to another. From the paper store I walked, and perspired, clear down to the Southern Hotel where I went to the County Democratic Headquarters. Here I waited till Jack Brittain came in. Jack and I then walked to the Court House for three more errands. Jack had to go to the Probate Court in his first step to settle Grace's estate. I went to the Auditor's office to file my official bond and now I have fully qualified to assume the new position next September. The third stop was at the Treasurer's office where the present Chief Deputy wanted me to approve some printer's proofs of tax bills and other forms which will be used when I take over the office but which must be ordered now.

The errands completed, Jack drove me back home. Here we took Violet into the car for a drive into Upper Arlington. We stopped at the grocery and the bakery in Arlington for some food shopping, then went to Jack's house, Violet prepared supper which was set out for consumption on an outdoor table. We stayed the rest of the evening enjoying the summer breezes and sounds from Jack's porch and garden.

Kiwanis Anniversary Banquet Thursday

Hilltop Kiwanians will meet at 6:45 p. m. Thursday for an anniversary banquet at Hillcrest Baptist Church. Guest speaker will be Rev. Philip E. Auer, pastor of the Peace Lutheran Church, Galion. Rev. Auer is past governor of the Ohio Kiwanis District and international trustee and international vice-president of Kiwanis International.

Ladies' night will be observed at the dinner meeting. Rev. Auer will induct new club members.

At noon the regular round table meeting will be held at Schmelzer's Restaurant.

NEW PRESIDENT

Mrs. Mae G. Wolfe, 1091 Harrisburg-pk, national treasurer of the Army-Navy Union Ladies Auxiliary, was elected president of the Army-Navy Union Department of Ohio at the closing sessions of the 31st annual encampment Monday in the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Odd Fact

A suit for 46 cents was brought against the New York Subways Advertising Company by a man who wanted to recover money lost in subway vending machines.

And Have Not Love

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

A GIRL sitting at a typewriter turned with the suddenness of alarm. Obviously struggling for composure, she arose and looked at Beatrice and Frank Sanger with both fear and animosity in her face.

A slim girl of delicate bone structure wearing a full skirted black suit with a crisp white blouse. A girl whose soft dark hair was cut in a bang across her forehead. Her windblown look was instantly attractive. She had a beautifully expressive mouth, warm and young, a mouth given to smiling easily. Her smile would make appealing little crinkles beside the brown eyes. Yet sometime, somewhere, she had been hurt and broken, for there was a look about her of emotional convalescence that came to one who had to learn a new reverence for life. It was a part of her feminine charm, and that charm was undeniably enormous.

It was at such a moment that one wanted a mirror to look at oneself, Beatrice thought. Only then could she see herself as Bonnie Watson was seeing her now—hatless, wearing a three-piece suit of beige wool.

And then she thought, I have seen this girl before! But where I do not know. So long ago, as if I knew her in another life.

Since the girl seemed loath to speak, whereas Miss Perkins had garrulously guarded Porter like a dragon emitting fire, Beatrice said, "I am Beatrice Farish. I believe you're Miss Watson."

"I thought you must be," Bonnie Watson said in a low, well bred voice. "Yes, I am Miss Watson." And after she had met Frank Sanger she said, "Mr. Farish is not in his office. He's in the engineering department, but I can call him there and tell him you're here."

"Thank you," Beatrice said.

In a few minutes Porter came in. Beatrice was satisfied that he knew she was not the instigator of this inopportune call.

"You know me—the old tourist," Frank Sanger said. "I didn't know when I'd have this opportunity again, and I've wanted to see this place for years. It's famous, you know."

Porter smiled that old smile of his—swift and charming.

"I know you, you mean," he said good humoredly. "Okay. Come along. But we can hit only a few high spots with your time so limited. I'd like you to see what we're doing with plastics. Are you coming, too, Bee?"

"No, thank you. I'm afraid I'd be a hazard."

For a split second his eyes sought those of Bonnie Watson with a message. A warning, Beatrice thought. How well they understood each other. He was telling Bonnie to be cautious, Beatrice thought. And where have I seen her before?

When the men went out together, Beatrice heard the childish excitement in the older man's voice.

When she sat down, Bonnie Watson brought cigarettes. Beatrice took one, and when the girl held a lighter to it, Beatrice saw that her hand was trembling.

"My stepfather-in-law is often seized with ideas of this sort," Beatrice said. "Please don't let me disturb your work."

Sitting again in the chair before the typewriter Bonnie Watson said, "I'm . . . I'm out of work at the moment. That is, I . . . I'll have to wait for Mr. Farish to come back before I can go on with the report. Meanwhile, is there anything I can do for you?"

The girl was confused, Beatrice thought. Bonnie Watson had not made up her mind whether or not she wanted Beatrice to like her. For her attitude teetered between a niceness that was not ingratiating, but rather hospitable, and a resentment that came from fright. Beatrice did not believe that she could not continue with the typing until Porter came back. There was a reason why Bonnie Watson did not want her, Beatrice, to see her at her work.

Beatrice said, "Thank you, no. We'll be going soon." When her eyes fell upon a picture of Marianne on Porter's desk she said, "I must replace that old picture of our daughter with a newer one. That one was taken when we first went to California during the war."

Now the girl looked dreadfully ill at ease. "Mr. Farish often speaks of her. She must be adorable."

So that's it, Beatrice thought. That's where we met before—in California some time during the war. That means that Porter knew her long before she became his secretary.

Beatrice looked at her directly. "I have a feeling I have seen you before, Miss Watson."

"Really?" She shook her dark head negatively in quick, nervous little shakes. "No, I'm sure you are mistaken, Mrs. Farish. I mean . . . I wish we had, but I don't think it ever happened."

A poor actress. You cannot conceal from me the fact that you know that I know we have met before.

Bonnie Watson said, "I'll fix the shade. The glare is in your eyes."

An excuse to turn her head away from what?

Beatrice thought, I do not know, and I will not accuse you and judge. I will not be unfair to you, or unjust to Porter, and I will not let my mind become an instrument for indignity.

Beatrice spoke kindly, "Do you like it here, Miss Watson?" How could she speak unkindly to this troubled girl?

When Bonnie Watson turned away from the window there was something about her that seemed to say, Look at me. I am not at all what I seem to be. Even these surroundings are alien to me—this office, the cold and dreariness outside these windows, the dirty snow—I have lived with sunshine and laughter and love. Can't you see it? Don't you know it?

The girl said, "I've been lucky enough to find a nice room with a good family."

"Then you haven't always lived here?"

"No. I came from the west, and the south before that. We, that is I, moved around a lot. And Mr. Farish has been wonderfully kind and patient with me, and I do appreciate everything."

"And I am glad for this chance to meet you," Beatrice said. "While Miss Perkins was the quintessence of efficiency, I always half expected to find myself being swept into the wastepaper basket."

The girl nodded and smiled. "I know. It's hard for me, too, to fall in line with this strict, all business policy. I've never been anywhere where the human element was so wanting. That doesn't apply to Mr. Farish though."

The telephone rang twice, and then Bonnie Watson left the office with a sheaf of papers in her hand.

Beatrice drew her coat around her for warmth. She felt lonely and cold. But Mr. Ramey believed that efficiency was sacrificed if his employees were comfortably warm at their work. She closed her eyes, and opened them only when Porter and Frank Sanger came in.

"Where's Bonnie?" Porter asked anxiously.

"She left with some papers," Beatrice told him. I will not probe, she thought. It is the time for truth. "She seems a nice girl, Porter."

"She is," he said. "She's an exceptionally fine girl."

He went out with them to speak to his mother, and when Beatrice was at the wheel he went around and stood beside the car.

"I won't make it to Libby's on time," he said. "There's a meeting called for four thirty, and you know they never break up on time. You go ahead, and I'll meet you there."

"I'll wait for you."

"No, I'd rather you didn't. I don't want to spoil your fun, Beatrice."

She did not start the car until he had disappeared into the building. And then as she happened to glance up, she saw him and Bonnie Watson standing together at the window.

Opening of Bass Season Spoiled By Muddy Water

Muddy water in most of Ohio's streams kept bass fishermen at home for the opening of the black bass season last Thursday.

Bass fishermen who prefer stream fishing are simply killing time until the water returns to normal after early summer rains which blanketed most of the state last week.

The bass season for Lake Erie fishing will not open until midnight June 30.

Reports reaching Division of Conservation headquarters in Columbus indicate that fishing was only fair for the state as a whole during the early part of June due to low water in the streams and below normal levels of most of the lakes. Fishing is expected, however, to be good following recent rains.

Creel census takers of the Division reported good fishing in only two lakes the first week of June. At Seneca Lake in Noble County fishermen averaged .97 fish per hour consisting of 62.6% crappies and 32% bluegills. At Leesville Lake in Carroll County the average per hour was 2.3 made up of 64% bluegills and 31% crappies.

Fishermen, particularly in northeastern Ohio, are looking forward to the annual opening of the walleye pike season at Pymatuning Lake on July 1. Two years ago opening day provided one of the biggest catches in the history of the lake but last year's opening day, because of the cold wet weather, was only fair although a number of from 9 to 12-pound walleyes were taken.

Fifty children were placed for adoption in 49 homes (twins were placed in one) in 1948 by the Family and Children's Bureau, a Red Feather agency.

DEATHS

John A. Whelan

John A. Whelan, 76, of 78 S. Wheatland-av, died Sunday in his home after a year's illness. He formerly was employed as a mechanic by the Otis Elevator Co.

A brother, Martin Whelan, and a sister, Margaret Whelan, both of the Wheatland-av address, survive.

Services under direction of Jerry Spears Funeral Home will be held at St. Aloysius Church Wednesday at 9 a. m.

Burial will be in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Harold E. Woolson

Funeral services for Harold E. Woolson, 62, of 211 N. Terrace-av, were held at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday in the Jerry Spears Funeral Home. He died Saturday in Mt. Carmel Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Woolson operated a grocery in the Westgate section until he retired in 1942.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Mildred W. Woolson; two daughters, Martha and Virginia Woolson, and one son, William Woolson, all at home; and two brothers.

Burial was at Mt. Vernon in Moundview Cemetery.

Ivor Hart

Services were held Saturday for Ivor Hart, 3621 Harding-dr, whose death June 15, was attributed to suicide. Arrangements were completed by the Born Funeral Home. Services were held at Hilliards Methodist Church and burial was in Wesley Chapel.

Mrs. Ollie Conner

Funeral arrangements are being completed by the Jerry Spears Funeral Home for Mrs. Ollie Conner, 75, of 840½ Kerr-st, who died this morning. A Hilltopper most of her life, Mrs. Conner formerly lived with her husband and five children on S. Warren-av.

A member of the Burgess Avenue EUB Church, she is survived by four daughters, one son, 14 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Mrs. Virginia Emmons

Funeral services for Mrs. Virginia Emmons, 93, of 160 N. Wayne-av, who died in her home Thursday, were held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday at the Floyd Born Funeral Home. Rev. Joseph Shellhaas officiated. Burial was in Sunset Cemetery.

She is survived by two sons, Richard Emmons of Columbus and Russell Emmons of Dayton; two grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Garden Club Aids Hilltop Civic Beauty

an authority in his or her field, is provided for each meeting.

Each season one or more garden tours are arranged by the chairmen of tours.

The Highland Garden Club is an affiliate of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs.

The hope of every garden club member is that, in the not-too-far distant future, they may have a permanent structure to house the Garden Center, where any person, whether or not a member, may go for information on garden problems.

Club members hope that more and more people in the community will become garden-minded and that the following verse, which is the motto of the local club, will be generally adopted:

"Plant lilies and lilies will bloom;
Plant roses and roses will grow;
Plant hate and hate to life will spring;
Plant love and love to you will bring
The fruit of the seeds you sow."

The roster of Hilltop gardenlovers includes Mrs. A. C. Allen, 3021 Crescent-dr; Mrs. Arthur Buchanan, 145 Chase-av; Mrs. Ray Cave, 603 Crescent-rd; Mrs. H. M. Eaton, 418 S. Roys-av; Mrs. H. R. Gibson, 83 Eldon-av; Mrs. E. H. Gildersleeve, 238 N. Ogden-av; Mrs. W. R. Hamilton, 2945 Palmetto-st; Mrs. Ray Hauntz, 44 Binns-blvd; Mrs. W. H. Kight, 3144 Wicklow-rd; Mrs. Robert C. Kirkpatrick, 229 S. Huron-av; Mrs. J. H. Kramer, 2499 W. Broad-st; Mrs. D. H. Latham, 3034 Olive-st; Mrs. Floyd A. Martin, 1969 Sullivant-av; Mrs. D. L. McCready, 273 S. Powell-av; Mrs. R. J. Miller, 119 Binns-blvd; Mrs. Clyde D. Moore, 230 Binns-blvd; Mrs. W. I. Monahan, 2915 Olive-st; Mrs. E. D. Myers, 2034 Fairmont-av; Mrs. Charles C. Munro, 329 S. Harris-av; Mrs. Harry J. Mrs. Bertha Daarud's Piano Pupils in Promotion Class striven to exist for the past six years.

THESE PIANO PUPILS of Mrs. Bertha Daarud, 404 S. Eureka-av, were presented in a recital Thursday evening at the Hilltop Church of Christ where they presented their promotion numbers and were awarded the Two-year Attendance Certificate and the class pin. Seated, left to right: Daniel Bolfs and Donald Johnson. Second row: Ronald Dixon, Dicky Trott, Stanley Huff, Judith Keckley and Judith Fisk. Back row: Elaine Corriveau, Nancy Miller, Sonya Sieng, Alice Day, Margaret Chambers, Carol Lewis and Marilellen Russell. Daniel Bolfs is the youngest pupil. He entered the pre-school class when he was five.

Mrs. Daarud's two-year promotion class in January of this year was composed of Marvin Ruhlen, Thomas Lewis, Gail Wills, Nancy Steckman, Ro e Marie Pinkerton, Nancy Borrer, Janice Bolfbaugh, Lynnette Ripley, Charles Lewis, Frances Purley, Lois Ann Moran, Price Stiffler, Harriet Herron, Patty Barnes, Donald Hessler and Charlot e Hunter. This group was heard in a recital June 13 at the Hilltop Church of Christ.

"The following property to wit: Two milch cows; one is a roan shorthorn, five years old and fat, the other is a yaller cow named Friday.

"Also two colts six months old; one is a dark bay and the other a light bay. Mothers of these two colts died when they were mere infants leaving them alone in a cold, cruel world.

"Farming implements, household goods, iron kettle, two lard cans and the 'lard' only knows what else Milo might have to sell. Come and see.

"Trouble begins at 10 o'clock A. M., God's time.

"Caution! People having any tears to shed will please report to Auctioneer Col. T. A. Miller, who is to do the crying for the whole push.

"J. H. Fults and Ed. Coplin, clerk and clerklet. Banner Friend and By Stewart will appear also with a fine lunch counter."

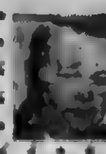
Are Appliance Prices Too High?



We, like most other individuals who occasionally buy new appliances, have wondered about present day prices.

Last Thursday the Record reproduced, through the courtesy of Better Home Center, a statement from one of the country's largest appliance manufacturers. While this message deals directly with their particular product we do feel that it was very general in its application to many other products that are now on the market. At least, we had a new understanding of today's prices in appliances after reading this message.

The national quota for the Spring Opportunity Drive, May 16-June 30, is $1,040,000,000—in Series E Bonds.

BEHIND THE SCENES in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

THOSE WEDDING RUMORS DUE TO ARISE OUT AGAIN

HOLLYWOOD — Look out for those Greer Garson-Buddy Fogelson rumors again!

The Texas oil tycoon has laid it on the line for a set of 24 silver dinner plates (antiques). Ostensibly they are for his Forked Lightning ranch in New Mexico but it just happens that they would go perfectly with the silver buffet on wheels that Buddy was supposed to have bought for Greer. They came from the same Rodeo Drive Beverly Hills shop, too.

Garson

And, on top of that, a good friend of Buddy's denies vehemently that all is over between the Texan and M-G-M's favorite redhead.

AFTER WAITING all these years to get married, James Stewart is going to treat himself to a deluxe honeymoon. He and Gloria McLean plan to stay three months in the Hawaiian Islands, then return and take a leisurely motor tour. Jimmy can do it because he is tied up for just one more film commitment after he finishes "Arrow" for Twentieth Century-Fox.

THE BARBARA PAYTON-Bob Lowery romance blew up in a big fight and she is reported seeing New York on the arm of Ben Hecht.

Furthermore, when Universal-International asked her to come back, she refused and the studio cancelled her contract. Movie companies aren't taking any nonsense from players these days.

EVERYBODY on the "Bagdad" set is talking about the anonymous letter Maureen O'Hara received. Postmarked "Topeka," the missive reads:

"You've been kissing sissies in the movies too long. Why not find out what a real man is like? I'm riding the rails out the first of July. You are going to give me a kiss or else. I have your address, your phone number and know where to get you.

"Signed: A-No. 1 King of the Boes."

AVA GARDNER IS MUSSED BY TWO WAVES AT BEACH

LINDA DARNELL tells me she and Pev Marley are looking at lots in Bel Air and will build a home. Nothing to the rumors of her illness, she insists. . . . Ronald Reagan showed up at Ciro's with Jean Spangler, who was a dancer in the recent Slapsy Maxie's burlesque revue. . . . Night club sight-of-the-week was the girl at the Mocambo who wore a helmet-shaped hat that covered half the front of her face. It had holes cut in it for her to see through. . . . Guy Poling and Barry Brannen were a new twosome at the Mocambo. And Lee Anderson was showing the sights to the Sacha Lautmans. (Lee says he was resident artist for three years at the Vatican.)

THE WATER WELLS may be running dry on Joel McCrea's 2,500-acre ranch but oil has been discovered on adjoining property and one of the big companies wants to pay Joel $1,500 a month for the privilege of his land.

"My kids object," says Joel with a grin. "They say they don't want the ranch cluttered up with oil wells."

AVA GARDNER is bruised from head to foot after being knocked down and battered by two waves at Laguna beach. . . . How ironic! German actress Hildegarde Neff, who came to this country for David Selznick and stayed a year without making a picture, has signed for Twentieth Century-Fox's "The Quartered City" and will make the film right back in Berlin where she started. . . . Mrs. Ed (Archie) Gardner spent a sleepless night until a capsized and unidentified yawl was found not to be Ed's. . . . Since the picture, "Hellfire," Marie Windsor is hot as a pistol. One studio offered two and a half times her regular salary but she and her agent, Bill Shiffrin, didn't like the script and turned it down. . . . Frank Morgan is pressuring M-G-M for permission to take a boating trip to Alaska next month.

Odd Fact

A bill to ban popcorn and peanuts from motion picture houses was recently proposed in Oregon, the bill's nine sponsors contending that they object to watching movies to the accompaniment of crunching noises from members of the audience.

Mrs. Bertha Daarud's Piano Pupils in Promotion Class

THESE PIANO PUPILS of Mrs. Bertha Daarud, 404 S. Eureka-av, were presented in a recital Thursday evening at the Hilltop Church of Christ where they presented their promotion numbers and were awarded the Two-year Attendance Certificate and the class pin. Seated, left to right: Daniel Bolfs and Donald Johnson. Second row: Ronald Dixon, Dicky Trefz, Stanley Huff, Judith Keckley and Judith Fisk. Back row: Elaine Coulson, Nancy Miller, Edwa Sipes, Alice Day, Margaret Ann Chambers, Carol Lewis and Marjellen Russell. Daniel Bolfs is the youngest pupil. He entered the pre-school class when he was five.

Mrs. Daarud's two-year promotion class in January of this year was composed of Marvin Ruhlen, Thomas Lewis, Gail Wills, Nancy Steckman, Rose Marie Pinkerton, Nancy Borrer, Janice Burnbaugh, Lynnette Ripley, Charles Lewis, Frances Hurley, Lois Ann Moran, Price Stiffler, Harriet Herron, Patty Barnes, Donald Hessler and Charlot e Hunter. This group was heard in a recital June 13 at the Hilltop Church of Christ.

Are Appliance Prices Too High?

We, like most other individuals who occasionally buy new appliances, have wondered about present day prices.

Last Thursday the Record reproduced, through the courtesy of Better Home Center, a statement from one of the country's largest appliance manufacturers. While this message deals directly with their particular product we do feel that it was very general in its application to many other products that are, now on the market. At least, we had a new understanding of today's prices in appliances after reading this message.

The national quota for the Spring Opportunity Drive, May 16-June 30, is $1,040,000,000—in Series E Bonds.

BEHIND THE SCENES in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

THOSE WEDDING RUMORS DUE TO BING OUT AGAIN

HOLLYWOOD — Look out for those Greer Garson-Buddy Fogelson rumors again!

The Texas oil tycoon has laid it on the line for a set of 24 solid silver dinner plates (antiques). Ostensibly they are for his Forked Lightning ranch in New Mexico but it just happens that they would go perfectly with the silver buffet on wheels that Buddy was supposed to have bought for Greer. They came from the same swank Beverley Hills shop, too.

Garson

And, on top of that, a good friend of Buddy's denies vehemently that all is over between the Texan and M-G-M's favorite redhead.

AFTER WAITING all these years to get married, James Stewart is going to treat himself to a deluxe honeymoon. He and Gloria McLean plan to stay three months in the Hawaiian Islands, then return and take a leisurely motor tour. Jimmy can do it because he is tied up for just one more film commitment after he finishes "Arrow" for Twentieth Century-Fox.

THE BARBARA PAYTON-Bob Lowery romance blew up in a big fight and she is reported seeing New York on the arm of Bob Neal.

Furthermore, when Universal-International asked her to come back, she refused and the studio cancelled her contract. Movie companies aren't taking any nonsense from players these days.

EVERYBODY on the "Bagdad" set is talking about the anonymous letter Maureen O'Hara received. Postmarked "Topeka," the missive reads:

"You've been kissing sissies in the movies too long. Why not find out what a real man is like? I'm riding the rails out the first of July. You are going to give me a kiss or else. I have your address, your phone number and know where to get you.

"Signed: A-No. 1 King of the Bozo."

AVA GARDNER IS BRUISED BY TWO WAVES AT BEACH

LINDA DARNELL tells me she and Pev Marley are looking at lots in Bel Air and will build a home. Nothing to the rumors of her illness, she insists. . . . Ronald Reagan showed up at Ciro's with Jean Spangler, who was a dancer in the recent Slapsy Maxie's burlesque revue. . . . Night club sight-of-the-week was the girl at the Mocambo who wore a helmet-shaped hat that covered half the front of her face. It had holes cut in it for her to see through. . . . Gay Poling and Barry Brannen were a new twosome at the Mocambo. And Lee Anderson was showing the sights to the Sacha Lautmans. (Lee says he was resident artist for three years at the Vatican.)

THE WATER WELLS may be running dry on Joel McCrea's 2,800-acre ranch but oil has been discovered on adjoining property and one of the big companies wants to pay Joel $7,500 a month for the privilege of his land.

"My kids object," says Joel with a grin. "They say they don't want the ranch cluttered up with oil wells."

AVA GARDNER is bruised from head to foot after being knocked down and battered by two waves at Laguna beach. . . . How ironic! German actress Hildegarde Neff, who came to this country for David Selznick and stayed a year without making a picture, has signed for Twentieth Century-Fox's "The Quartered City" and will make the film right back in Berlin where she started. . . . Mrs. Ed (Archie) Gardner spent a sleepless night until a capsized and unidentified yawl was found not to be Ed's. . . . Since the picture, "Hell-fire," Marie Windsor is hot as a pistol. One studio offered two and a half times her regular salary but she and her agent, Bill Shiffrin, didn't like the script and turned it down. . . . Frank Morgan is pressuring M-G-M for permission to take a boating trip to Alaska next month.

Odd Fact

A bill to ban popcorn and peanuts from motion picture houses was recently proposed in Oregon, the bill's fine sponsors contending that they object to watching movies to the accompaniment of crunching noises from members of the audience.

Drive 45 Instead of 65 to Triple Your Chance of Surviving Crash

The faster you drive, the harder you hit!

That's the sober warning being emphasized by safety authorities during the Fourth of July holiday and the summer vacation period.

If you have an injury accident while driving at 45 mph, the chances of someone being killed are one in 16, the National Safety Council says. Boost your speed to 65 and the chances of someone being killed are one in six.

The jump from 45 to 65 almost triples the chance of death.

If it were possible to maintain a steady speed of 65 in a 400-mile drive, you would only save two and one-half hours over a steady speed of 45 mph. Higher speeds increase driver fatigue and nervousness, slow down reaction, create more driving strain.

For Holiday Appetites

By BETTY BARCLAY

Holiday appetites are ravenous appetites, particularly on a summer holiday where swimming, baseball, quoits, and tennis give the youngsters and perhaps even the older folk, loads of healthful exercise.

Whether you have a picnic or a meal at home, here are some tips that you will appreciate:

Easy summer meals can be just as tempting as those that take a long time to prepare. One easy trick is this: Serve broiled meat—chopped steak answers the bill as well as a T-bone special. With it serve a big bowl of spaghetti with a luscious sauce that comes out of a can and that makes the spaghetti taste like a chef's masterpiece, so skillfully is it seasoned. This spaghetti sauce comes in two varieties — one with meat to give added interest, and the other rich with mushrooms. They're just as good poured over a bowl of boiled rice, too. A green salad and fruit for dessert round out this easy menu into a really satisfying meal.

Jell-O Lime Freeze

¾ cup sugar
2 cups water
1 package Lime Jell-O
1 cup water
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine sugar and 2 cups water and boil 2 minutes. Dissolve Jell-O in hot liquid. Add 1 cup water and fruit juices. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. When partially frozen, turn into cold bowl and beat with rotary egg beater until blended and fluffy. Return to tray. Freeze 30 minutes longer and stir; then freeze until firm. Freezing time: 5 to 6 hours. Makes 1½ quarts.

Cherry Coconut Pie

1 box quick-frozen red sour pitted cherries, thawed
2 cups hot water and cherry juice
1 package cherry-flavored gelatin
1½ cups shredded coconut
1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Drain cherries; measure juice and add hot water to make 2 cups. Dissolve cherry-flavored gelatin in the hot liquid; measure ⅔ cup and reserve. Chill remaining cherry-flavored gelatin until slightly thickened. Then place in bowl of ice and water and whip with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Add ⅔ cup of the coconut. Turn into pie shell. Chill until firm.

Add cherries to reserved ⅔ cup cherry-flavored gelatin. Chill until slightly thickened. Then pour over whipped cherry-flavored gelatin in pie shell. Chill until almost firm. Sprinkle with remaining ⅔ cup coconut. Chill until firm.

The children will clap their hands with joy, and the grown-ups will be pleased, too, if you serve homemade ice cream for your holiday dessert. Make it with sweetened condensed milk and you will be sure of a rich, creamy texture, a delicious flavor; for sweetened condensed milk is a blend of sweet, whole milk and sugar that guarantees a failure-proof ice cream. To make it, set refrigerator control at coldest point. Mix ⅔ cup sweetened condensed milk, ½ cup water and 1½ teaspoons vanilla. Chill. Whip 1 cup cream to custard-like consistency. Fold into chilled mixture. Pour into freezing tray. Cover with waxed paper. Freeze to a firm mush (about 1 hour). Turn into chilled bowl. Break up with fork then beat with egg beater until fluffy but not melted. Quickly return to tray, cover with waxed paper. Return to freezing unit. Freeze until firm.

Blue Bonnet Spread

Here's a delicious spread for pancakes, whether you make them with blueberries, cherries, peaches or jelly, or use a basic recipe. For a delicious topping that rates high on the score of flavor, nutrition and economy, melt half a cup of Blue Bonnet margarine in a sauce pan over low heat. Blend in ½ cup of molasses, honey, corn syrup or brown sugar. It's a delicious spread not only for hot pancakes, but for waffles, French toast or fried mush.

'Tulsa' on Screen Of National Auto Theater Sunday

Spectacle! Wondrous color! The great romance of the early days of the great industry—OIL. All these are the ingredients of the outdoor epic, "Tulsa," which is due to open Sunday at the National Auto Theater.

This film stars lovely Susan Hayward; handsome, dynamic Robert Preston, and a new dramatic actor from south of the border, Pedro Armendariz. These three lead robust lives of violence and action set against the exciting days of the oil rush in Oklahoma. In the film, the ruthless possession of oil rich property turns Susan Hayward into one of the most vicious of the early wildcatters.

More Money Or Red Ink

Congress, particularly those members having to do with writing tax legislation, are face to face with the fact that the government must find more revenue or operate in the red. It is fairly well established that these tax leaders are on record that if it comes to a choice between a tax increase and deficit financing they will support higher taxes.

Such a course means not only increased income taxes on business, but higher rates on individuals in the so-called middle and higher income brackets. President Truman has defined middle incomes as those of $6,000 or more. These and the business corporations are the major producers of federal income tax revenue at the present time and are bearing the heaviest burden. It looks as if they will be asked to pay still more.

There is no indication that any of the Hoover Commission's economy recommendations—which would save a total of $3 billions or more—will get to first base unless an aroused tax-burdened public becomes more vocal and demands action. The Hoover Commission's report on organization of the executive departments of government has exposed unconscionable waste, duplication, overlapping, archaic methods and costly outmoded procedures.

Its findings have brought a tacit admission from a high national defense official that the armed services alone are wasting upwards of a billion dollars annually. People are asking: Need competing armed services continue endlessly their wild rivalry in grabbing for their Uncle's dollar? Must the government riot of waste go on and on and on?

Moreover, it is high time that the Congress give serious attention to the many untapped sources of revenue from income taxes before giving any consideration whatsoever to piling heavier tax loads upon those now carrying excessive burdens.

The loopholes that make for tax evasion and the outright exemptions granted to favored special interests—such as cooperative corporations, foundations and other commercial tax-exempts—are well-known to every Congressman. These loopholes should be plugged. The exemptions should be taken away.

Many of these exist not because of the force of law, but because of slanted or ancient treasury rulings and directives that either should be re-examined thoroughly or specific definitions enacted by the Congress to make such obvious tax discrimination impossible. It is estimated that a billion dollars a year is lost to the federal treasury because of tax loopholes and unwarranted or unsound exemptions.

Elimination of waste through adoption of the tax-saving features of the Hoover Commission recommendations plus a plugging of the loopholes and exemptions would make $4 billion available for use in balancing the budget.

That's more than Congress needs to raise by increased taxes.

Every taxpayer should demand of his Congressman that he act to stop this waste and tax the untaxed before loading any more income taxes on anyone.

FIRING SQUAD OF VFW IS HONORED

The firing squad of the Westway Post 3441, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was cited in a public ceremony at the State House Sunday for its services in connection with the reburials of repatriated war dead.

The Westway Post squad was one of 23 organizations honored at the ceremony and was one of the two VFW groups cited.

Members of all the groups honored at the ceremony performed their duties in connection with the graveside services for the returned heroes without pay and often at personal expense to themselves in that they took time off from their work to assist in the services as a patriotic privilege.

The citation presented the Westway Post squad expressed the gratitude "of the citizens of Franklin County, Ohio, for their unselfish, patriotic and fraternal spirit in their participation in the last rite for the veteran dead, returned from their services to our great republic."

Presentations of the citations were made by Col. Frank Bowban, commanding officer of the Columbus General Depot.

The squad is composed of Charles Geddes, commander of the squad and a veteran of World War II; Gus Scra, a World War II veteran; Robert Hartman, also a veteran of World War II; Roy Polus, a World War I veteran; William Egnor, a Spanish-American War veteran, and Harold right and Roland Wolford, both World War II veterans.

Hilltop Y Must Move; Mansion to Be Razed

Youth Center Will be Vacated Before Oct. 1

The year-old Hilltop YMCA, housed during its entire existence in the old Weber mansion at Burgess-av and Broad-st, is looking for a new home.

Informal notice has been received by Averille Thorn, secretary, and C. Carlton Hartley, chairman of the board, that the old mansion will be razed about Oct. 1.

A formal, written, 60-day notice to that effect will be presented to the YMCA board by the Socony-Vacuum Co. about July 1, according to C. W. Gilchrist, Socony district manager.

Occupied Rent Free

The Hilltop Y has occupied the building rent free as did the Y-Teen Club before it. Mr. Hartley said the notice to vacate the building had been anticipated for some months and he expressed the gratitude of the board to both the Socony-Vacuum Co. and J. Real Neth, present owner of the property, for their generosity in allowing the Y the use of the building for as long as possible.

The old mansion, a landmark on the Hilltop for several generations, will be razed by the Socony-Vacuum Co. as a part of the sales agreement with J. Real Neth.

The oil firm will, at the same time the present Y home is being torn down, start construction of a modern service station over the driveways and tanks that already are in place, Mr. Gilchrist said.

Mr. Hartley, speaking for the Y board, reassured Y members and all others interested in the welfare of the fledgling organization, that the move will have no permanent effect on the progress of the Y program and that the program definitely will be continued.

Longest Possible Notice

Mr. Gilchrist said informal notice to vacate was given the Y, although only a 60-day notice is required under the agreement by which the Y now occupies the building, in order that the organization might have as long a time as possible to get relocated and so that the Y would not purchase fuel for next winter.

Mr. Hartley said a meeting of the local YMCA's board of directors will be held a week from today to study the situation and attempt to find a solution to the new problem. He thanked Mr. Gilchrist for his kindness in giving the Y the longest possible notice and expressed the belief that the extra time will allow the Y to move more smoothly from its present home at whatever new home is found.

Fun at Glenwood Playground

Band Concert At Westgate Sunday Night

Westgate Park is to be the scene of the first summer band concert of the season in city parks and two West High lads are to be soloists on the program.

The concert, with Sam Giammarco as guest conductor, will be presented Sunday night at 8 o'clock. It is to be repeated at the same hour Wednesday night in Goodale Park. Richard Wilson will be the baritone soloist on both occasions.

Mr. Giammarco, experienced bandsman and well-known both as trumpeter and teacher of wind instruments, will present on the program two of his students, who are sons of Mr. and Mrs. George Neff, 2850 Valleyview-dr. They are Johnny Neff, 15, trombonist, senior at West High School, and Richard Neff, 13, trumpeter, in junior high at West.

The program follows:

Hilltop Y Nearly Half-Way To Membership Drive Goal

The Hilltop YMCA membership is nearing its half-way mark financially, according to Averille Thorn, secretary of the local Y.

Increased effort on the part of the volunteer workers conducting the drive was urged, however, to avoid extension of the campaign into the vacation period in the latter-half of July and August.

Five-dollar contributions to the local Y fund entitle the donor to full voting rights in the organization, Mr. Thorn pointed out. The portion in excess of $5 in any contribution is turned over to the organization's building fund.

These are the contributors in the campaign to date:

Chester C. Cook, 81 N. Warren-av; Arthur W. Jones, 146 N. Third-st; Dr. and Mrs. Carter R. Straub, 2431 Sullivant-av; Dr. J. N. Cross, 2558 W. Broad-st; W. E. Jones, 2765 W. Singing Acts Lined Up For Bean Dinner

Plans for the star-studded entertainment at the annual Hilltop Bean Dinner, scheduled for July 27 at Westgate Park, are advancing rapidly, according to Jack Merriman, general chairman for the giant civic celebration.

Among the acts to be offered for the entertainment of the Bean Dinner crowd will be the Crawford Brothers, singing stars of Station WRFD at Worthington, Mr. Merriman said.

Another widely known singing aggregation definitely scheduled for the day's festivities will be the Singing Sheriffs, whose brand of harmony already is well known to many Hilltoppers.

Mr. Merriman said that the selection of a dance band probably will be made during the latter part of this week and would be announced, in all likelihood, in next Tuesday's Record.

Planned for the occasion are both square and round dances, Mr. Merriman said, and negotiations are now under way to obtain an over-size platform for the dancing.

Other principal features of the huge community outing will be a midway, a merchant fair—and, of course, BEANS.

Compromise Offered In Swamp Fuss

The possibility of a compromise solution to the Belvidere-av area swamp situation appeared this week as a result of the offer of Paul E. Kesselring, 514 Nace-st, owner of the affected property, to halt all humus-excavating operations by the end of August and then donate his property to the City of Columbus for playground purposes.

Mr. Kesselring's offer came in the wake of a resolution passed by City Council last week ordering him to fill a water-collecting hole on his property within 30 days. Mr. Kesselring's offer was made to W. C. Anderson, city superintendent of refuse collection, whose duty it would be to fill the hole, at Mr. Kesselring's expense, in the event the property owner failed to follow through on Council's order.

Mr. Anderson told the Record that Mr. Kesselring's offer was a verbal one and that no agreement such as the property owner proposes had yet been reached in writing. Mr. Anderson indicated that unless he could obtain such a written agreement he would be forced to carry out the order of City Council.

Council's order last week climaxed a campaign, which extends back several years, by the residents of the area in which the swamp is located, for the elimination of what they contend is a menace to the health and safety of the neighborhood, particularly the children.

Earn Pocket Money And Still Have Time For Vacation Fun

What's your problem, son?

We think we know. You're a young fellow between 12 and 16, and at that age you like to have a little more pocket money than when you were a little kid. But you don't want to tie yourself down to a job six or seven days a week, because you want to have some time to have some fun during the summer vacation.

We think we have the answer.

It's a job delivering the twice-a-week Hilltop Record. Turn to the Classified Ad section for the details.

Y Presents Movie At Hilltonia EUB At 1:30 Tomorrow

A movie will be presented at the Hilltonia EUB Church at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow by the Hilltop YMCA. The feature will be "Return of the Rangers," plus cartoons.

The movie is free to children of all ages, Averille Thorn, secretary of the Y, said.

The Hilltop Y plans to present a movie at the Hilltonia Church each Friday. After tomorrow, however, the show is scheduled for 10 a. m. each Friday to avoid a conflict with the afternoon playground program.

Jim Smith Pitches One-Hit Ball Game

Sullivant-av Merchants No. 2 won a one-hitter ball game yesterday from H. & H. Hardware by a score of 6-0, in an Intermediate Knothole League game. Jim Smith, 732 S. Wayne-av, pitched the one-hitter.

FALLS FROM SWING

Paul Pohle, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Pohle, 3108 Wicklow-rd, suffered a possible fractured arm when he fell from a swing at Westgate Park. He was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital by firemen.

World Traveler And Former Jap Prisoner To Address Masons

By Myron T. Seifert

A celebrated Hilltop Mason and world traveler, Stanton Youngberg, 9036 Alkire-rd, will be guest speaker at West Gate Blue Lodge No. 623, 2925 W. Broad-st, Monday night, June 27, George Levisay, worshipful master, said today.

Internationally known as an outstanding Masonic officer, Mr. Youngberg is past grand master of the Grand Masonic Lodge of the Philippine Islands, where he has resided since 1907. He is also past commander of the Order of Knight Templars in the Philippines.

During the war he was captured by the Japanese and held prisoner for three and a half years.

Mr. Youngberg's visit to Westgate Lodge Monday will mark another phase of the educational program conducted and sponsored by West Gate Masons.

All Blue Lodge Masons are invited.

It's MURDER — So Many Ads Being Killed!

They're being slaughtered left and right—every issue! (We're talking about those bargain-packed, live-wire Record classified ads.)

Why so many "killed" want ads? Well, a lot of Hilltoppers place their ads for two or more editions. When they get immediate results the first time, they call us to "kill" the succeeding runs.

One of many examples of this is the two-line ad which Leon Heddington, 45 S. Sylvan-av, ran last Tuesday. He advertised cherries for sale. That same evening he sold between four and five bushels of the luscious fruit. He cancelled the Thursday run—that first ad "did the job."

If you have something to sell, give us a ring. Ads for next Tuesday's paper will be accepted as late as 6 p. m. Monday; but call now—you might forget if you wait. The number is RA. 3128.

Never Underestimate Youth Organizations

What Makes Future Community Leaders? Mostly Religious Groups, Survey Finds

Religious groups rank first among community organizations in which Ohio State University graduates participate after leaving college, a survey reveals.

A study of graduates' community participation showed that social service agency organizations are rated in second place as a community activity in which former student leaders take part, while clubs and lodges, professional, school and youth-serving groups follow,' with business groups' activities appearing in seventh place among male graduates' interests.

The investigation, conducted by Dr. Cecil A. Thomas, executive secretary of the University YMCA, produced information on community participation by 497 graduates of the 1921-40 period. Those questioned included six groups — former fraternity and sorority leaders, former YMCA and YWCA leaders and groups of men and women who as students did not take part in campus activities outside the classroom.

The purpose of the study was to determine (1) if college leaders continue after graduation as community leaders; (2) if community participation by former fraternity and sorority leaders differs from that of former YMCA-YWCA members, and (3) if non-active college students continue as non-participants in community affairs after graduation.

According to the study, former YMCA members are most active of all the groups in community participation on the basis of "real membership" (attending at least 50 per cent of an organization's meetings), leadership, and total participation.

From the information obtained, Dr. Thomas concluded that "students who were leaders in the YMCA and YWCA do tend to continue as leaders and active participants in the communities in which they live as graduates" and that students who were fraternity-sorority leaders "tend to continue as leaders and participants to a significantly lesser degree than the YMCA-YWCA graduates."

Men who were listed as "non-active" in college continued to be non-participants after graduation, as compared with other groups, he reported. "Non-active" women, however, appear to be more active in most community groups than the former fraternity leaders, he found, and in over-all community leadership these women rate equally with the former sorority leaders.

Hilltop Society Notes

Two From Hilltop Leaving for Savannah; Miss TWA-20 Is Sullivant Ave. Girl

Planning a trip to Savannah, Ga., Sunday is Mrs. J. C. Redman, 430 S. Terrace-av. Mrs. Redman will visit indefinitely with her son, Robert A. Carpenter, and his family. Accompanying her South will be her sister, Mrs. Grace Hauck, 811 S. Harris-av, who will spend two weeks in Savannah.

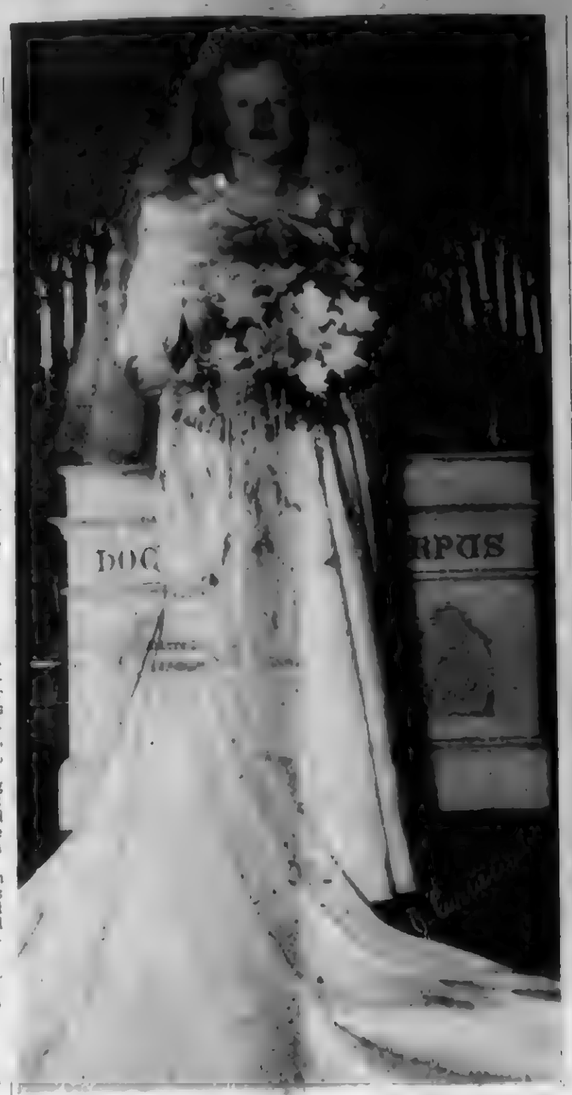
Mrs. Redman's son is stationed there with the Air Force. He's remembered by Hilltoppers for his ability on the football field at West High School.

The Hilltop's Sandra Sue Glass is distinguishing herself at Buckeye Girls' State this week. Sue, a tall blonde gal, with a level head, took the post of Secretary of State.

Miss TWA-20 of Columbus is none other than dark-haired Patricia Hasson, 19, of 2023 Sullivant-av, who was picked this week to reign over 20th anniversary ceremonies at Port Columbus, July 8. Besides being pretty, Pat had to have a birthday that fell close to the Port Columbus and TWA airlines anniversaries. She did. She'll be 20 years old July 8.

Besides winning the honor of being Miss TWA-20, she also wins a $100 scholarship to be applied toward tuition for a full course in the McConnell School for Hostesses, Minneapolis, Minn.

Back home again after visiting in West Virginia are Margaret Eva and Estella Burnside, 92 N. Powell-av. The two sisters visited the Daniel, John and Paul Churton families in St. Albans, and Rev. Daniel B. Churton in Huntington.



Art Students Are Wed In Chicago

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel M. Wilson, 299 S. Burgess-av, are announcing the marriage of their son, Don, of Chicago, to Miss Rosalie Simmons of Kokomo, Ind. The services were read Sunday, June 19, in the Episcopal Church, E. 50th-st, Chicago.

After a wedding trip to Long Lake, Wisc., the couple will be at home in Chicago. Both bride and bridegroom are students of the Chicago Art Institute. Don, is a graduate of West High School.

Attending the wedding from Columbus were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, and his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Wilson, Jr., 840 Oxley-rd.

Fansler-Machles

White chrysanthemums and madonna lilies mingled with summer greenery formed a decorative setting for the wedding of Miss Emalene Fansler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Fansler, 789 Norton-rd, to Mr. Leonard Machles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Machles of Cleveland. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 p. m. Sunday, June 19, in St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a traditional ivory satin wedding gown styled with a peter pan collar of lace embroidered in seed pearls. The long sleeves of the gown tapered to points over the hands and were adorned with a row of satin buttons. Her finger-tip veil of English illusion was held in place by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a cascade of gardenias centered with an orchid.

South-Garrish

St. Aloysius Church was the scene of a decorative wedding ceremony Saturday, June 18. Before an altar decorated with gladioli and softly lighted candles Miss Norma Jean South, 2450 Sullivant-av, became the bride of Mr. Charles Garrish, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Garrish, 270 Columbian-av. Father Schorr officiated at the 9 a. m. ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a brocaded gown of marquisette styled with a fingertip veil adorned with orange blossoms. Completing her costume was a white prayer book adorned with an orchid.

Attending the bride were Miss Mary Lewis, maid of honor, Miss Nancy South, sister of the bride, Miss Lois Martin, cousin of the bride, and Miss Marjorie Chesser, bridesmaids.

The maid of honor wore a lime green gown styled on lines similar to that of the bride. Completing her costume was a large picture hat of the same color, trimmed in lace.

The bridesmaids wore similar gowns fashioned in pastel shades. Large picture hats completed their costumes. The flower girl was Miss Carol South, a sister of the bride.

Mr. James Unich served as best man and seating the guests were Mr. Daniel Bricker, Mr. Richard Murphy and Mr. Mathew Brown.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast and reception were held at the Beechwold.

Housewives with DDT Guns Can Aid In Anti-Polio Drive

If housewives co-operate with city at least eight times, the Columbus Health Department, flies and mosquitoes will find it twice as hard to live here as they did last summer.

Under the direction of George Biechler, of the division of sanitation, city crews will soon start spraying DDT over the city. Housewives are urged to spray homes at the same time.

Last year, fog spraying operations covered the city four times during the fly season, traveling a distance of 4500 miles. This year, with an added truck and sprayer, the crews will cover the

Foglike Spray

A combination of DDT and kerosene that is harmless to humans and animals is used to create the foglike spray. Some 10 tons of DDT will be used during the summer. Besides the two trucks, a hand sprayer will be used for places inaccessible to the mounted units. Special capsules are used to destroy larvae that may be breeding in ponds.

Department of Health officials are anxious to complete this season's spraying. In 1947, Columbus had 87 cases of polio and 17 deaths from the disease. Last year though the national average of polio went up, Columbus had only 17 cases, none fatal. Last year was the first year for DDT spraying.

While there is as yet no absolute proof that flies are a transmitting agent of the polio germ, there is evidence that they may carry the disease. Officials believe that if the 1949 polio rate in Columbus stays down compared to a high national rate, it may be assumed that DDT is playing a part in the reduction here.

Spray Area

Again this year, the crews will follow the special polio procedure started last summer. When a case of polio was reported, a crew was immediately dispatched to spray a four-block radius around the home of the victim.

The fog spray machines will operate in streets and alleys as well as market houses and market districts.

Housewives are urged to help eliminate flies by spraying commercial DDT sprays in kitchens and other sections of the house where flies may be bothersome. An additional measure of protection is to rinse garbage and trash cans when they are emptied. Two tablespoons of moth crystals should then be placed in the cans to prevent the hatching of larvae.

Machles Wedding

The bride was attended by Miss Verna Chambers, maid of honor, and three bridesmaids, Miss Phyllis Pennell, Miss Mary Hood and Mrs. Jack Meyers, and one junior bridesmaid, Miss Carol Knierim. Miss Chambers wore a yellow marquisette gown, styled with lines similar to the bride's gown. The three bridesmaids were colonial gowns in pastel colors fashioned in marquisette and lace over old-fashioned hoops. Miss Knierim wore a green marquisette gown with a fitted taffeta bodice.

Mr. Eugene Dake of Cleveland, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man, and seating the guests were Mr. Herman Machles of Cleveland, brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Ernest Wolden of Canton and Mr. Orville Miller of Toledo.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Southern Hotel. Mrs. Fansler, mother of the bride, and Mrs. David Berkowitz of Cleveland, aunt of the bridegroom, received more than 100 guests.

Hostesses at the reception were Mrs. James Campbell, Jr., Mrs. Orville Miller and Mrs. Ernest Wolden.

The bride is a graduate of West High School and Ohio State University. Mr. Machles is also a graduate of Ohio State University. He is a member of Kappa Kappa Psi and Phi Mu Alpha fraternities.

After July 1, the couple will be at Lake George, N. Y., for the summer.

Miss South Is Wed

wold. Mrs. James South and Mrs. James Garrish received approximately 100 guests. Hostesses were Miss Jane Richards and Miss Carolyn King.

The new Mrs. Garrish attended West High School and is now employed at the Motorist Mutual Insurance Co. Mr. Garrish is a graduate of Aquinas High School and is employed at the Seagrave Corp.

After a wedding trip the couple will be at home at 270 Columbian-av.

Baptists List Circle Meetings

PARADOX

So softly in the heart
The seed of love is sown,
It ripens into bloom
While yet unknown.
The full-blown flower lays
Its sweetness on the air
Before the heart at last Becomes aware.
So softly sown, so light
The petals, yet withal
The heart shakes to its core
When they must fall.

Theisen and Weeks Accept All-Star Bids

Paul Theisen and Chuck Weeks, West footballers, have accepted bids to participate in the annual North-South All-Star high school football game Saturday, Aug. 13, at Massillon.

They will report Aug. 2 for 11 days of extensive training. The game features the annual football clinic of the High School Coaches Association.

Cub News

The Cub pack meeting for Troop 250 will be held in St. Aloysius School annex at 7:30 p. m. today. The regular monthly awards will be made and judging of the June project, carving, will take place. The new Cubmaster, Robert Hartle, will be introduced.

Last minute preparations for the July 17 picnic will be announced. Several special announcements will also be made. After the meeting the six dens will entertain with a variety show.

Hellmann's is SO right

So good so many ways! Delicious with salads! Whether you serve Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise plain or mix it with chili sauce, ketchup, milk, or fruit juice —its richness, its double-whipped smoothness, are always right. Contains no starchy filler as do ordinary "salad dressings." And no other mayonnaise, even homemade, can top Hellmann's flavor, texture, its rich, rich goodness!

FENCES

Now that the kiddies are spending a lot of time out in the yard, you'll feel much safer if they're protected by a GRAVES CHAIN-LINK FENCE. These high-quality fences are an excellent safeguard against trespassers, as well as an improvement to the appearance of your property. They can be purchased on easy terms and we're prepared to erect one for you immediately.

Congress is looking for more federal revenue.

Already the same old sheep are being prepared for the shearing—the present taxpayers. At the same time an estimated BILLION DOLLARS EACH YEAR is being lost to Uncle Sam through income taxes BECAUSE Congress and the Treasury department PERMIT certain favored big businesses to escape, entirely or partially, the payment of federal income tax on profits.

Every hidden, camouflaged or untouched source of revenue should be explored before more taxes are placed on present income tax payers.

Co-operative corporations, foundations, charitable trusts—even some colleges and universities—are engaged in profit-making commercial business, making large profits. They pay little or no federal income tax.

This means that what they do not pay is added onto the rest of us. Congress should TAX THE UNTAXED FIRST before adding more income tax burdens to those already paying more than their share.

FOR EXAMPLE—Co-operatives, alone, do 17 billion dollars worth of commercial business annually—make profits of close to a billion. Other tax-exempts, such as foundations and trusts, bring the total loss in taxes to the federal treasury to a BILLION DOLLARS IN AVOIDED INCOME TAX. Every taxpayer should INSIST that Congress tax the untaxed first before increasing present income tax rates to any present taxpayer.

PAYING FAIR INCOME TAXES WILL NOT PUT ANYONE OUT OF BUSINESS

Private businesses pay full income tax on profits. They simply in business. Paying taxes on the same basis as private business will not destroy co-operatives or any other form of present tax-exempt commercial enterprise. Any well-managed business can pay federal income taxes on the same basis as every other business . . . and SHOULD!

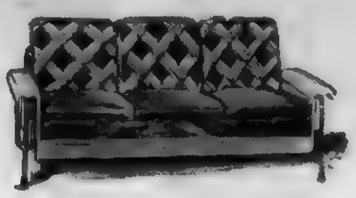
Congress is looking for more federal revenue.

Already the same old sheep are being prepared for the shearing—the present taxpayers. At the same time an estimated BILLION DOLLARS EACH YEAR is being lost to Uncle Sam through income taxes BECAUSE Congress and the Treasury department PERMIT certain favored big businesses to escape, entirely or partially, the payment of federal income tax on profits.

Every hidden, camouflaged or untouched source of revenue should be explored before more taxes are placed on present income tax payers.

Co-operative corporations, foundations, charitable trusts—even some colleges and universities—are engaged in profit-making commercial business, making large profits. They pay little or no federal income tax.

This means that what they do not pay is added onto the rest of us. Congress should TAX THE UNTAXED FIRST before adding more income tax burdens to those already paying more than their share.



FOR EXAMPLE—Co-operatives, alone, do 17 billion dollars worth of commercial business annually—make profits of close to a billion. Other tax-exempts, such as foundations and trusts, bring the total loss in taxes to the federal treasury to a BILLION DOLLARS IN AVOIDED INCOME TAX. Every taxpayer should INSIST that Congress tax the untaxed first before increasing present income tax rates to any present taxpayer.

PAYING FAIR INCOME TAXES WILL NOT PUT ANYONE OUT OF BUSINESS

Private businesses pay full income tax on profits. They remain in business. Paying taxes on the same basis as private business will not destroy co-operatives as any other form of present tax-exempt commercial enterprise. Any well-managed business can pay federal income taxes on the same basis as every other business and SHOULD!

Briggsdale And Brown Road

By Mrs. Harry C. Downing

Mrs. Charles P. Nardin and sons, David and Billy, 1029 Brown-rd, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cran W. Wilson, Gahanna, O., on Tuesday of last week. The Wilsons entertained in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Dana Winslow Hodgkin, who has spent the last five years in Hawaii in government work.

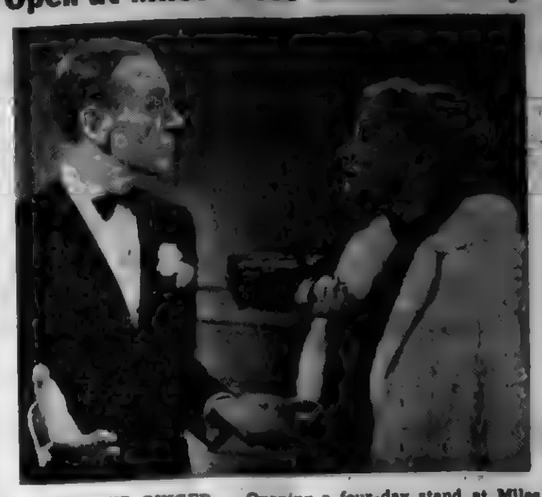
Earl Canter, 1135 Geneva-av, was lay delegate from Briggsdale to the Methodist Church conference held recently in Lakeside. Mr. and Mrs. Logan Watts, 1805 Harrisburg-pk, also attended the meeting.

The W. W. Class of Briggsdale Methodist Church held its June meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Marshall Feyh on Dyer-rd. Mrs. Gene Keiper, 2356 Briggs-rd, is the new class president.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lockwood, Charles and Rosalie, 1691 Harrisburg-pk, spent Tuesday of last week in Cincinnati Mr. Lockwood attended the Ohio Funeral Directors' Association Convention. In the afternoon the family visited the zoo.

Work on the water line has been resumed and pipe has been installed on Brown-rd as far south as Hopkins-av.

Bible school opened Monday morning in the Briggsdale Church with 85 boys and girls enrolled. The leaders are Ione Smith of Minnesota and Barbara Hovda of Nebraska. The girls are living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shilling, Harrisburg-pk. School will continue until July 1.



Mrs. William Eisenbach, Big Run-rd, spent Tuesday with Mrs. John White, 2081 Harrisburg-pk.

Mrs. Wade Farrar, London, O., was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nardin and family, 1029 Brown-rd.

Kay McVey, 2003 Harrisburg-pk, has been the guest of relatives in Leesburg the past three weeks.

The Thimbles and Spoons 4-H Club held its eighth meeting at the home of Dorothy Hawkins, 1086 Geneva-av. Refreshments were served and games were played.

Open at Miles West Broad Sunday

FRED AND GINGER — Opening a four-day stand at Miles West Broad Theater next Sunday will be that famed dancing combination, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, in their reunion film, "The Barkleys of Broadway."

Motorcycle Races Scheduled Sunday

Headed by the national 200-mile champion, Dick Klamfoth of Groveport, leading motorcycle racing stars of the country will compete next Sunday afternoon at Columbus Motor Speedway, three miles southeast of Columbus, off Groveport Pike.

Klamfoth will compete with such top names of the racing world as Willie Stegall of Springfield, "Wild Bill" Waltermire of Zanesville and Peg Liscano of Columbus. Amateur and novice entries are expected to boost the list of contestants above the 50 mark.

Sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association and sponsored by the Columbus Motorcycle Club, there'll be nine races in all.

Time trials to determine starting positions begin at 12 noon. The first race will take the green flag at 2:30.

Winner In Fox Food Shop Contest

CHECK IS PRESENTED — Mrs. Walter E. Curlis, 300 S. Hague-av, receives a check for $100 from Harold Fox, proprietor of the Fox Food Shop, 2422 W. Broad-st, as winner in a contest to name a line of coffee carried by the market. Her suggestion: "Thrif-T Cup."

Super Market Group Outgrows First Facilities

The U. S. Super Markets, a co-operative buying organization organized only a little over a year ago by eight grocers in Columbus and vicinity, already has outgrown its original warehouse facilities.

The organization has acquired a larger and more modern warehouse with railroad facilities to be able to handle carload buying.

Since so many of the grocers in Columbus realized that to be able to meet competition today they would have to buy on the same basis as the chain stores, the organization grew to 24 stores. So that they would be able to operate more efficiently, they all went together and put up the money to form their equally owned non-profit corporation, which enables the stockholders to buy their merchandise and eliminate the jobber's profit. The officers of the new corporation are Muryl Cramer, president; Tom Tarpy, vice-president; Harold Fox, secretary; W. T. Wilson, treasurer, and D. P. Bowman, business manager. In addition to the above, the following two are also on the board of trustees—Carl Capretta and Russell Bettker.

Mr. Capretta operates a food market at 1895 Sullivant-av; Mr. Fox's market is located at 2422 W. Broad-st and Mr. Tarpy lives at 580 Salisbury-rd and operates a food market in Grandview.

LEANING AGAINST THE WIND

Leaning against the wind one day,
I heard a thundering cloudbank say
That a robin would soon be at my door
And violets cover the woodland floor.

Then I laughed at March and her whiping gale,
And I danced on her lion's lashing tail,
For I knew she'd bleat like a weakling lamb
When April drew her monogram.

In green upon some skeleton limb.
And none but an old maid, very prim,
Would hold her skirts and walk sedate
When April was waiting near the gate.

YW Teen Towner Day Camp Open For Registration

Girls sixth to ninth grade who are interested in registering for the YWCA Teen Towner Day Camp July 6-28 are urged to call the YWCA and register immediately.

In addition to such activities as swimming, crafts, games, dancing and outings, something new has been added. This year the entire group will combine talent in crafts, music, dancing and drama in a new and exciting production of the age-old favorite, "Hansel and Gretel."

Mrs. Winona Lewis, a field work student from Ohio State University, has adapted the story and will help in the directing. Mrs. Jackie Baldwin, another OSU field work student, will be in charge of dancing.

Staff persons assisting will be Mrs. Helen Seward, Helen Talbot and Betty Lou Zwemer.

There are 20 National Advisory Committees actively helping to promote the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds.

Truman Has Difficult Time Filling Open Service Posts | Army, Air Force Fear They May Be Next for Trimming

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—President Truman has had a rough time trying to get capable men to accept the posts of secretary of the Navy and secretary of the Army.

The president's difficulties have arisen chiefly from the blunt, if not headlong manner in which Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has been "unifying" the armed services.

Johnson is terribly sincere in his desire to end the Air Force-Navy wrangling which has delayed for nearly two years the defense integration ordered by Congress. However, prospective tenants of the Army and Navy posts are afraid they would be little more than figureheads under the hard-driving Defense secretary.

Francis Matthews

Johnson's ax to date has fallen almost exclusively on the Navy and its super-carrier, but the other services—even the apparently "pet" Air Force—are fearful that they may be next for a trimming.

The Army post was offered to Curtis Calder, New York industrialist, and the Navy job to Jonathan Daniels, former Truman aide and son of the World War I Navy secretary, Josephus Daniels. Daniels declined with thanks, saying the press of private business precluded his acceptance. It was finally accepted by Francis Patrick Matthews, Omaha, Neb., attorney.

• • • •

● "UPS" AND "OOPS" IN THE SENATE—Senator Homer Ferguson (R), Michigan, told the Senate the other day he has found another reason why it is called the "upper chamber."

The reason, Ferguson said, is that every time an appropriation bill comes along, the Senate "ups" the total.

The Michigan senator is leading an economy drive to slash all money bills five per cent. He thinks that if government expenses can be cut that amount, a tax increase may not be necessary.

However, Ferguson said he may live to regret his action even though it does avert a tax increase. He recalled in a floor speech that a few years ago an effort of his to cut a government bill was successful. He added:

"And what happened? The first place the administration picked for economy was the home area of the junior senator from Michigan."

Ferguson said his phone rang night and day with complaints. He made it clear that he thought the administration was "just getting even" by selecting his home area for the first curtailment of services.

• • • •

● NEW BROOM—Another indication of Defense Secretary Johnson's terrible sincerity is his determination to get rid of the so-called "influential" brokers who claim they can "place" defense contracts.

Johnson, embittered already by string-pulling to get more dollars out of the public treasury, has adopted an attitude of "driving the money-changers from the temple."

The secretary minced no words when he appeared recently before the staid United States Chamber of Commerce where laudatory speeches about the country's future are usually expected from government dignitaries.

Instead, he lashed out at "power-seeking and merger-mad corporation officials" and served notice he will place defense contracts where he pleases, including with small business that does not hire brokers. He said:

"There is no need for special brokers, for 15 per centers, for 10 per centers, or even for 5 per centers.

"There is no need for anyone to intervene between small business and the government to procure government contracts.

"To those who claim to 'sell influence in the right spots,' I say 'we will drive you out of the national military establishment!'

"Let those who engage in questionable brokerage activities heed this warning."

Midwest Rodeo Due at Coliseum July 9 and 10

The first annual Midwestern Rodeo and Horse Show will be staged July 9 and 10 at the Coliseum.

Co-sponsored by the Franklin County Council, American Legion, and Western Horse Exhibitors Association of Ohio, the show will feature calf cutting and roping and championship western horse contests.

Three regular performances will be held at 8 p. m. Saturday and Sunday with a 2 p. m. matinee Sunday. Free halter classes will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday and 9 a. m. Sunday.

A downtown parade Friday night featuring the Midwest's finest horses will preview the rodeo. Grand entries for each regular performance will be led by Southway Post Drum and Bugle Corps.

Heading committees for both sponsors are Leo O'Connors, 1170 S. Champion-av, American Legion, and Earl Lambert, of Royal Oaks Farm, west of Columbus, president of the horse association.

Tickets for the 7-event rodeo-horse show will be placed on sale at Heaton's Music Store, 80. N. High-st, Monday.

The theme of the Spring Opportunity Drive, May 16-June 30, is "Put More Opportunity in Your Future."

The little Queen of the May will be a college queen in a few years. Start buying Savings Bonds for her education.

By-Laws of Hilltop YMCA

In connection with the current membership campaign of the Hilltop YMCA, now the year old, the Record believes it will be of interest to persons supporting the institution to read the by-laws of the group.

ARTICLE ONE
ARTICLE I

SECTION 1. For the purpose of fully accomplishing the objectives set forth in the Constitution and By-Laws of the parent Association, THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Columbus, Ohio, a corporation not for profit, these By-Laws are hereby adopted.

SECTION 2. All directorial provisions contained in the parent Association's Constitution and By-Laws regulating the conduct and control of branches and their boards of management are incorporated in these By-Laws as if fully rewritten herein.

ARTICLE II
MEMBERSHIP

SECTION 1. Any person being sixteen years of age or over and subscribing to the tenets and standards established by the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States of America may become a sustaining member of this Branch provided, the annual membership fee of Five Dollars ($5.00) has been paid into the treasury and credited to his account.

SECTION 2. Any youth between the ages of 9 and 21 may become a participating member of this Branch upon the payment of the annual membership fee of One Dollar ($1.00-.

SECTION 3. The Branch Board shall be authorized to incorporate other forms of membership at such time as they shall deem proper, subject however, to Section 2 of ARTICLE IV, of the Constitution.

ARTICLE III
MANAGEMENT

SECTION 1. The management and control of this Branch shall be vested in a board of management to be known as the BRANCH BOARD. The board shall consist of 12 members, subject to the confirmation of the General Board.

SECTION 2. At the first Annual Meeting of the Branch, four members shall be elected to the Board to serve for a period of one year, four for a period of two years and four for a period of three years. Thereafter, at each subsequent Annual Meeting, four members shall be elected to the Board for three years in order to replace the four whose terms have expired.

SECTION 3. At the first Board meeting after each annual election, the Board members shall organize by electing a Chairman, subject to the confirmation of the General Board, three Vice-Chairmen and a Secretary. Each officer shall hold office for one year.

SECTION 4. Should one of the offices become vacant, each officer below shall automatically move up except in the case of the Third Vice-Chairman or Secretary. Vacancies occuring in the two latter offices shall be filled by a majority vote of the Board for the unexpired term.

SECTION 5. The Executive Secretary of the Branch shall be selected by the Board in consultation with the General Executive. The Executive Secretary shall be an ex-office member of the Board.

SECTION 6. The Branch Board shall formulate all rules for the business of the Branch and all policies for the conduct of members, departments, committees, guests and employees.

SECTION 7. The Board, by a majority vote of its members present at any meeting wherein a quorum is present, shall have the power to fill any vacancy in its membership, but only for the duration of the unexpired term of the member whose vacancy is to be filled.

ARTICLE IV
BRANCH MEETINGS

SECTION 1. The Annual Meeting of the Branch membership shall be held within 60 days after the close of the fiscul year of the Branch upon call of the Chairman.

SECTION 2. Special meetings of the Branch membership can only be called by a majority of the Board, or by the Chairman upon written request signed by no less than twenty-five sustaining members then in good standing. The purpose of the special meeting shall be stated in a written notice given at least 10 days in advance by posting in a prominent place within the Branch.

SECTION 3. A quorum for all Branch membership meetings shall consist of fifteen members present.

ARTICLE V
BOARD MEETINGS

SECTION 1. Board meetings shall be held regularly upon the third Thursday of each month except during the months of July and August. The date of the regular monthly meetings may be changed for any good and sufficient reason.

SECTION 2. Special meetings of the Board may be called by the Chairman and must be called upon the written request of five members of the Board. The call for a special meeting shall specify the time, place and object of the meeting.

SECTION 3. A quorum shall consist of five members present at any meeting of the Board.

ARTICLE VI
ELECTIONS

SECTION 1. At the November meeting of the Board, or not less than thirty days prior to the Annual Meeting of the Branch membership, the Chairman shall authorize a Nominating Committee to be created as follows: (a) Two members to be appointed from the Community Program Council, (b) An equal number to be appointed by the Executive Committee from those members of the Board whose terms do not expire at the end of the current year. After due deliberation and consideration of the members whose terms are expiring. The Nominating Committee shall select for nomination at least one member for each expiring membership on the Board. In the event of a tie vote by the Nominating Committee on any member voted upon, the Chairman of the Board shall be called upon to cast the deciding ballot. The Nominating Committee shall then designate one of its members to make the report at the Annual Meeting and to place in nomination the persons selected by the Committee. The Committee shall, within 10 days preceding the Annual Meeting, cause to be posted in a prominent place within the Branch, the list of those persons so selected by it for nomination.

SECTION 2. Further nominations may be made from the floor by any qualified sustaining member of the Branch at the Annual Meeting.

ARTICLE VII
VOTING

SECTION 1. Only those persons holding a sustaining membership and being in good standing during the meeting at which any ballot is cast shall be entitled to vote.

SECTION 2. No Sustaining member shall be entitled to cast his vote by proxy.

SECTION 3. The Chairman shall cast his vote during Board meetings only in the case of a tie.

ARTICLE VIII
DUTIES OF OFFICERS

SECTION 1. The Chairman shall preside over all Boards and the Community Program Council meetings. He shall also represent the Branch Board on the General Board and be an ex-officio member of all committees.

SECTION 2. The Vice-Chairman, in order, shall act in the absence or disability of the Chairman.

SECTION 3. The Executive Secretary shall keep the minutes of the Board meetings. He shall also organize and carry on the daily operations of the Branch in the manner dictated by the policies of the Board.

ARTICLE IX
COMMITTEES

SECTION 1. There shall be an Executive Committee composed of the Chairman and the three Vice-Chairmen. The Executive Committee shall exercise all the powers and control of Branch operation and activities between meetings of the Board.

SECTION 2. There shall be a Community Program Council to help promote the objectives of the Branch according to ARTICLE IV, of the Constitution.

SECTION 3. There shall be a Finance Committee composed of five members which shall act in the manner specified in ARTICLE IV, paragraph A, of the By-Laws of the parent Association.

SECTION 4. There shall be a Legal Constitution composed of three members which shall advise upon any question where its opinion may be required.

SECTION 5. There shall be a Building Committee composed of the Chairman of the Board and the full membership of the Finance Committee. The Board Chairman shall be the Chairman of this committee.

SECTION 6. Additional committees may be established in such a manner and for such purposes as the Board may direct.

ARTICLE X
STAFF

SECTION 1. The employees of the Branch shall be known as the staff.

SECTION 2. The general powers and duties of the Executive Secretary shall be those as outlined in ARTICLE VI, Section 3, of the By-Laws of the parent Association.

SECTION 3. The other members of the staff shall be selected by the Executive Secretary, subject to the approval of the Branch Board and General Executive.

SECTION 4. All contracts of employment for a period of 90 days or more shall be in writing and signed by the employee, the Chairman and Executive Secretary.

ARTICLE XI
FINANCIAL

The provisions of ARTICLE VII of the parent Association's By-Laws shall be fully complied with.

ARTICLE XII
SUSPENSION OF MEMBERS

SECTION 1. Any Sustaining or Participating member of this Branch may be either temporarily or permanently suspended from enjoying any or all the rights and privileges afforded by the organization upon hearing before the Board and for good cause. A two-thirds vote of the Board is necessary, provided, however, that the right of appeal to the General Board shall not be denied.

SECTION 2. If any member of the Branch Board shall without sufficient reason fail to attend three consecutive regular meetings of the Board, his membership upon the Board may be terminated by a vote of the majority of his fellow members present at any regular meeting provided, however, that he shall be properly notified at least three days befcre the third meeting that such action is being contemplated by the other members.

ARTICLE XIII
AMENDMENTS

These By-Laws may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the Board members present at any meeting, provided that notice of such amendment being contemplated shall have been included in the call for the meeting at which such amendment is to be passed upon.

By-Laws of Hilltop YMCA

In connection with the current membership campaign of the Hilltop YMCA, now one year old, the Record believes it will be of interest to persons supporting the institution to read the by-laws of the group.

ARTICLE ONE
ARTICLE I

SECTION 1. For the purpose of fully accomplishing the objectives set forth in the Constitution and By-Laws of the parent Association, THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Columbus, Ohio, a corporation not for profit, these By-Laws are hereby adopted.

SECTION 2. All directorial provisions contained in the parent Association's Constitution and By-Laws regulating the conduct and control of branches and their boards of management are incorporated in these By-Laws as if fully rewritten herein.

ARTICLE II
MEMBERSHIP

SECTION 1. Any person being sixteen years of age or over and subscribing to the tenets and standards established by the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States of America may become a sustaining member of this Branch provided, the annual membership fee of Five Dollars ($5.00) has been paid into the treasury and credited to his account.

SECTION 2. Any youth between the ages of 9 and 21 may become a participating member of this Branch upon the payment of the annual membership fee of One Dollar ($1.00-.

SECTION 3. The Branch Board shall be authorized to incorporate other forms of membership at such time as they shall deem proper, subject however, to Section 2 of ARTICLE IV, of the Constitution.

ARTICLE III
MANAGEMENT

SECTION 1. The management and control of this Branch shall be vested in a board of management to be known as the BRANCH BOARD. The board shall consist of 12 members, subject to the confirmation of the General Board.

SECTION 2. At the first Annual Meeting of the Branch, four members shall be elected to the Board to serve for a period of one year, four for a period of two years and four for a period of three years. Thereafter, at each subsequent Annual Meeting, four members shall be elected to the Board for three years in order to replace the four whose terms have expired.

SECTION 3. At the first Board meeting after each annual election, the Board members shall organize by electing a Chairman, subject to the confirmation of the General Board, three Vice-Chairmen and a Secretary. Each officer shall hold office for one year.

SECTION 4. Should one of the offices become vacant, each officer below shall automatically move up except in the case of the Third Vice-Chairman or Secretary. Vacancies occuring in the two latter offices shall be filled by a majority vote of the Board for the unexpired term.

SECTION 5. The Executive Secretary of the Branch shall be selected by the Board in consultation with the General Executive. The Executive Secretary shall be an ex-office member of the Board.

SECTION 6. The Branch Board shall formulate all rules for the business of the Branch and all policies for the conduct of members, departments, committees, guests and employees.

SECTION 7. The Board, by a majority vote of its members present at any meeting wherein a quorum is present, shall have the power to fill any vacancy in its membership, but only for the duration of the unexpired term of the member whose vacancy is to be filled.

ARTICLE IV
BRANCH MEETINGS

SECTION 1. The Annual Meeting of the Branch membership shall be held within 60 days after the close of the fiscul year of the Branch upon call of the Chairman.

SECTION 2. Special meetings of the Branch membership can only be called by a majority of the Board, or by the Chairman upon written request signed by no less than twenty-five sustaining members then in good standing. The purpose of the special meeting shall be stated in a written notice given at least 10 days in advance by posting in a prominent place within the Branch.

SECTION 3. A quorum for all Branch membership meetings shall consist of fifteen members present.

ARTICLE V
BOARD MEETINGS

SECTION 1. Board meetings shall be held regularly upon the third Thursday of each month except during the months of July and August. The date of the regular monthly meetings may be changed for any good and sufficient reason.

SECTION 2. Special meetings of the Board may be called by the Chairman and must be called upon the written request of five members of the Board. The call for a special meeting shall specify the time, place and object of the meeting.

SECTION 3. A quorum shall consist of five members present at any meeting of the Board.

ARTICLE VI
ELECTIONS

SECTION 1. At the November meeting of the Board, or not less than thirty days prior to the Annual Meeting of the Branch membership, the Chairman shall authorize a Nominating Committee to be created as follows: (a) Two members to be appointed from the Community Program Council, (b) An equal number to be appointed by the Executive Committee from those members of the Board whose terms do not expire at the end of the current year. After due deliberation and consideration of the members whose terms are expiring, The Nominating Committee shall select for nomination at least one member for each expiring membership on the Board. In the event of a tie vote by the Nominating Committee on any member voted upon, the Chairman of the Board shall be called upon to cast the deciding ballot. The Nominating Committee shall then designate one of its members to make the report at the Annual Meeting and to place in nomination the persons selected by the Committee. The Committee shall, within 10 days preceding the Annual Meeting, cause to be posted in a prominent place within the Branch, the list of those persons so selected by it for nomination.

SECTION 2. Further nominations may be made from the floor by any qualified sustaining member of the Branch at the Annual Meeting.

ARTICLE VII
VOTING

SECTION 1. Only those persons holding a sustaining membership and being in good standing during the meeting at which any ballot is cast shall be entitled to vote.

SECTION 2. No sustaining member shall be entitled to cast his vote by proxy.

SECTION 3. The Chairman shall cast his vote during Board meetings only in the case of a tie.

ARTICLE VIII
DUTIES OF OFFICERS

SECTION 1. The Chairman shall preside over all Boards and the Community Program Council meetings. He shall also represent the Branch Board on the General Board and be an ex-officio member of all committees.

SECTION 2. The Vice-Chairman, in order, shall act in the absence or disability of the Chairman.

SECTION 3. The Executive Secretary shall keep the minutes of the Board meetings. He shall also organize and carry on the daily operations of the Branch in the manner dictated by the policies of the Board.

ARTICLE IX
COMMITTEES

SECTION 1. There shall be an Executive Committee composed of the Chairman and the three Vice-Chairmen. The Executive Committee shall exercise all the powers and control of Branch operation and activities between meetings of the Board.

SECTION 2. There shall be a Community Program Council to help promote the objectives of the Branch according to ARTICLE IV, of the Constitution.

SECTION 3. There shall be a Finance Committee composed of five members which shall act in the manner specified in ARTICLE IV, paragraph A, of the By-Laws of the parent Association.

SECTION 4. There shall be a Legal Constitution composed of three members which shall advise upon any question where its opinion may be required.

SECTION 5. There shall be a Building Committee composed of the Chairman of the Board and the full membership of the Finance Committee. The Board Chairman shall be the Chairman of this committee.

SECTION 6. Additional committees may be established in such a manner and for such purposes as the Board may direct.

ARTICLE X
STAFF

SECTION 1. The employees of the Branch shall be known as the staff.

SECTION 2. The general powers and duties of the Executive Secretary shall be those as outlined in ARTICLE VI, Section 3, of the By-Laws of the parent Association.

SECTION 3. The other members of the staff shall be selected by the Executive Secretary, subject to the approval of the Branch Board and General Executive.

SECTION 4. All contracts of employment for a period of 90 days or more shall be in writing and signed by the employee, the Chairman and Executive Secretary.

FINANCIAL

The provisions of ARTICLE VII of the parent Association's By-Laws shall be fully complied with.

ARTICLE XII
SUSPENSION OF MEMBERS

SECTION 1. Any Sustaining or Participating member of this Branch may be either temporarily or permanently suspended from enjoying any or all the rights and privileges afforded by the organization upon hearing before the Board and for good cause. A two-thirds vote of the Board is necessary, provided, however, that the right of appeal to the General Board shall not be denied.

SECTION 2. If any member of the Branch Board shall without sufficient reason fail to attend three consecutive regular meetings of the Board, his membership upon the Board may be terminated by a vote of the majority of his fellow members present at any regular meeting provided, however, that he shall be properly notified at least three days befcre the third meeting that such action is being contemplated by the other members.

ARTICLE XIII
AMENDMENTS

These By-Laws may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the Board members present at any meeting, provided that notice of such amendment being contemplated shall have been included in the call for the meeting at which such amendment is to be passed upon.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IN HIS early barnstorming days, Joe E. Lewis stopped once at a boarding house whose proprietress could make a pound of food go further than any other landlady in history. She produced a platter of cold cuts one Sunday that were actually transparent. "Did you cut these?" asked Lewis politely, indicating the slices. "I did," said the landlady. "Okay," said Lewis. "Then I'll deal."

Harold Ross, the editor of the New Yorker Magazine, was born in a hamlet called Aspen, Colo. (It's developing into a winter sports center today—but that was long after Ross hit the rods for San Francisco.) Somebody asked Ross what they did for excitement in Aspen in the good old days. "Saturday night was tops," answered Ross. "The boys would get all het up. When they reached the boiling point, they'd all go down to the barber shop and watch a few haircuts."

Efficiency All Along the Line Will Return Us to an Even Keel

By John Kelly

When industry meets the conditions of a buyers' market it finds that consumers' wants, in the aggregate, are unlimited. It must find a way to make the goods wanted at prices that people can and will pay.

In a sellers' market, as you found out, the buyer must take what he can get at the price asked; but in a buyers' market he buys what he wants, or can be induced to buy, at a price he can pay.

The practical requirements now are to get prices down by making production more efficient, and to resume selling. The important thing is to bring back into the market all those who found themselves priced out of it. This means reducing production costs and prices of goods through greater productivity.

Calls For Efficiency

If the historical rise in our living standards is to be carried on, goods must be sold at the lowest possible prices in order to reach the broadest possible markets. This is possible only when production and distribution is performed by the most efficient.

The elimination of highest cost producers applies not only to employers but to employes as well. A great many people were drawn into jobs for which they are ill-fitted during the abnormally high employment of inflation.

There are supports of immense strength under our economy, as already outlined in these columns. These cushions will soften our descent from the hysterical war-caused demand back down to earth. It would be unreasonable to expect demand and production of peacetime to remain at war time peaks.

All Must Co-operate

If all of us approach the current problems with understanding and co-operation, progress will be resumed. The decline in business will end in a more normal, healthful and balanced condition than prevailed before the war.

There is a tremendous lot of work to be done all along the line. When the adjustments have been worked out, the economy once more will be on an even keel.

All of us want it to be functioning on a high rather than a low level. There is strong hope that this can be done.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

LIBBY'S cocktail party was in full swing when Beatrice arrived. The living room was a churning mass of color, occasionally punctuated by the penguin-like figures of the cater's men. The babel of voices had risen to a high shrill pitch. The hats would have been laughable had they not been so fashionable. Flowers were everywhere in the apartment in plutocratic profusion. So faint was the music coming from a string orchestra that the men seemed to be playing from silenced instruments.

Beatrice saw it all from the mirror in the foyer. Suddenly the picture sickened her, and she had no desire to enter into it and be a part of it—to murmur meaningless nothings, to drink, to nibble at food, to add her party voice and party laughter.

She saw David bending his face to the hot face of a blonde woman, and she knew that David was seeing it as she was. There was too much—too much of everything—too much noise, too much waste of food and drink, too many flowers, too many inharmonious colors. Her feelings were intensified when she saw Libby, for Libby's gold dress was too daring, and she was wearing too many jewels, and too much make-up. She looked more brittle than usual; a woman of no flexibility, no softness. She looked as if she could neither sway nor bend, and that she could break like a dry stick.

Too much, Beatrice thought. Too much of everything. If she wants David, this is not the way. This is the way to lose him, for the waste here sickens him as it sickens me, the waste behind the facade of all this blitheness. Fun, Porter called it. He didn't want to spoil my fun. It used to be. It isn't any more. What's the matter with me? I have become a spectator, not a participant.

She could not bring herself to go in. I can't be a hypocrite, she thought. Turning, she went to the other side of the apartment and knocked at the door of Jane's room.

"Come in," Jane said softly.

As Jane arose from the window seat and stood with her hands locked behind her, Beatrice briefly noted the room. Though it was a beautiful and cheerful room, it was an impersonal room. Impersonal and cold. For nothing in it was individually Jane's. No silly picture. No picture of an actor or of a popular crooner. No school pennant. Nothing frivolous or gay or young. There was only a picture of Dick Gundris, her father, in a gold frame on the chest. Except for that, it wasn't Jane's room at all. It was just another of Libby's rooms.

Of what had Jane been thinking in her twilight musings as she had gazed down upon the darkening street? She was wearing her school uniform, a simple blue cotton dress with white collar and cuffs. The way her thick brown hair curled was natural and lovely.

"You look lovely, Bee," she said demurely. "You always do. How . . . how is Mother's party going?"

"I really don't know. I just came."

"It's . . . it's noisy."

"They always are. You have to make yourself heard. I didn't know if you'd be here, Jane. I wondered if you'd like me to bring you a plate of food."

"Oh, would you? I guess dinner will be awfully late." She smiled ruefully. "I'm hungry now. Of course I wouldn't dare leave my room."

"Why not?"

"The way I look?" She looked at Beatrice in despair. "Oh, Bee, I'm so tired of not being able to do anything the way I want to do it, and now . . . now I've got to wear glasses!"

Beatrice went to her and held her in her arms until her sobs subsided.

Then Jane's words gushed forth again. "Oh, Bee, I'm so unhappy! Can't you do something for me? Can't anyone help me? Can't you help me?"

"I'll try, darling."

"I'll look horrible in glasses. I look horrible in everything. There's only one person in the world who thinks I'm wonderful, and that's Marianne, and that's because she doesn't know any other girls my age. If she knew some of the girls in my class who are treated like . . . like people. I'm not a baby. I'm not going to be treated like a baby. I don't want to be ugly . . ."

"You're not ugly, Jane."

"Oh, yes, I am. I'll never be pretty. One of the girls in my class is having a party tonight and I wasn't invited—I'm never invited! Nobody ever invites me to anything! I've been hoping and hoping that Mother would see . . ."

She broke away and went over to the window again and dried her eyes. She shook her head.

"You can't do anything, Bee. I shouldn't ask you when there's nothing you can do. I wouldn't want you and Mother to quarrel over me. You've been friends so long. There's nothing anyone can do except me. And . . . and I'm going to do it!"

"What are you going to do, Jane?"

"You'll see. I've got to think it out. I've got to have more courage than I have now. I've never had very much. I've always done what Mother told me to do. I've tried to be good. I've tried to bring home good report cards, and to practice my music. Everything else has been brought to me and done for me, so that I don't know how to do anything for myself. It might sound crazy, but when you've never cooked an egg or washed a pair of stockings for yourself, you want to do those things. One of the girls in my class cooks the dinner for her family on the cook's night off. I'd love to do that, but Bessie won't let me in the kitchen. I want to do things, Bee. I want to learn how. I want to contribute. Mother says how lucky I am. I'm not so lucky. I'm not anything! No, not so lucky at all."

After a moment Jane said, "I don't mean I want to be out there at Mother's party. No! Oh, Bee, she's so wonderful and glamorous, but why won't she let me grow up? Why won't she let me have a party? Oh, she'll let me invite girls in for lunch, but it's dull when that's all you're allowed to do. No wonder the other girls think I'm queer." She swallowed hard. "I think Mother hates men, Bee. I think that's why she won't let me even go to a movie with a boy. She hated my father. And Daddy is the best man who ever lived, the kindest, nicest, and the happiest. People say wonderful things about my father and I'm . . . I'm proud of him!"

"He's proud of you, too," Beatrice said. "He has told me so."

"And I like David. I like him ever so much. And I wish, I wish, he'd ask Mother to marry him. But he doesn't come as often as he did at first. He hardly ever comes here anymore." Her candid, misty eyes roamed the room. "Something's happened here, Bee. Everything is wrong. This isn't my home anymore. And I can't hide what I think and feel. I . . . I don't want to be wild, Bee, or neglect my lessons or my music. I don't want to do anything wrong. All I want is the right to be almost sixteen. You understand, don't you?"

Beatrice nodded. "I understand very well. You should have seen me before your grandmother gave me the right to be almost sixteen."

Jane's eyes quickened. "Golly, I'm sorry. I forgot. You're supposed to be at the party. I'm all right now. Really. I'm fine."

When someone knocked at the door, both Beatrice and Jane turned simultaneously. When Jane said, "Come in," David entered. He had a plate of food in his hand.

"For the sweetest girl of all," he said. He put his arm around Jane and kissed the top of her head.

Laughing, with tears starting in her eyes again, Jane looked from Beatrice to David.

"You're so good to me. Bee was just coming out to get me something to eat."

David smiled. "It's not at all unusual that Beatrice and I should have the same idea."

Jane said, "I've kept her too long, David. Make her go out with the others and have a good time. Thanks, Bee. Thanks for listening."

Presently Beatrice was in the living room feeling as if she were being churned by a stick.

David took two glasses from a tray. Their eyes met when he gave one to her.

"You hear the sounds of voices and music, Beatrice. I hear the sound of time."

"Fast rushing by."

"April first. I have a plane reservation."

Adventists May Build Church In Africa

An offering to build a hospital in Basutoland, South Africa, will be received in the Seventh-Day Adventist churches of the city, Saturday.

The government and other agencies there have called upon the church to establish this hospital in an area where there are 250,000 people without hospital facilities. The 2,783 North American Adventist churches have agreed to adopt it as a project.

The new hospital is planned to accommodate 100 patients, as well as a dispensary for outpatients. The denomination operates a total of nine hospitals and 27 dispensaries in South Africa, as well as two leper clinics treating more than 500 patients. A 10th hospital is under construction, and others are planned. The church has 110,000 adherents in South Africa.

Some surprising information has come to light on the dear old telephone subscriber. A survey of 25 cities was sponsored by the manufacturer of a combination telephone-television instrument—as nearly as this department can describe it.

According to this outfit, four out of every five phone subscribers would pay $1 per month to see first run movies in their own homes on the device. Also revealed is the startling disclosure that the "average telephone subscriber" has seen less than half of Hollywood's top 21 box office successes in the last 10 years.

Those who gave demonstrations at this meeting were Hilda Fisher, on matching plaids; Fra Neff and Ruth Owen on needles and pins; Carol Ervin on the slip stitch. Those who are going to Camp Ohio are Patti Hart, Nancy Giehl, Hilda Fisher, Doris and Janice Brown, Jean Daugherty and Marylin Horst. After the work period a picnic was enjoyed. Mrs. Brown and Dorothy Monroe are the advisers. The next meeting will be held June 29 at the home of Patti Hart, Hilliard-rd.

Thursday Red Cross Ladies, who met regularly in West Broad Street School during the recent war, had their annual get-together Friday at the home of Mrs. H. A. Lear, 66 S. Burgess-av. It was pot-luck style and those attending were Mrs. Hilda Judy, Mrs. Pauline Miller, Mrs. Lydia Williams, Mrs. Etta Jester, Mrs. Delilah Brooks, Mrs. Addie Baker, Mrs. Alta Howell, Mrs. May Coulter, Mrs. R. H. Lorimer, Mrs. Carl Wisker, Mrs. Barnhart, Mrs. Evelyn Warner and Mrs. Naomi Sheets, and Mrs. Donald Lear, who assisted the hostess. Marie Hardman was a guest.

As a reward for being a fourth grade straight "A" pupil in Galloway School, Bonnie-Jo Spring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Spring, 301 Norton-rd, received a brown and white spotted pony. Mrs. Spring (Ida Mae Karnes) lived on the Hilltop several years ago, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Karnes, on Warren and Boys-avs.

Last week Mrs. J. W. Whalen entertained with two tables of bridge. Those attending were Mrs. Jack Barrett, Mrs. Charles Lowery, Mrs. George English, Mrs. Paul Wilcox, Mrs. Russel Simonson, Mrs. Robert Whalen and Mrs. Melvin Koch.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Barnecut, Maple-dr, spent Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Earl Knisely, Kenbrook-dr.

Mrs. R. G. Barnecut attended a family party for Mrs. Emory Day, given at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Don Waymer, Powhatan-av. Mrs. Day and several of her sisters (now living in Columbus) were natives of Gallia County, near Gallipolis, where their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brice Sheets, still live at the home farm. They are both past 90 years of age. Brice Sheets still teaches school in spite of his 94 years of age.

Mrs. Russel Broyles, Smith-rd, spent last week-end in Detroit celebrating the birthday anniversary of her two brothers and a nephew. This week-end a Father's Day party was held at the Broyles home when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McComis, her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Wallace, two brothers, Ovel and Russel McComis, Larry Plymer and Eva Riley, Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart (Columbus) and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Suver enjoyed a picnic in the yard of the Broyles home.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Geyer (Joan Riebel), Walcutt-rd, announce the arrival of a daughter. They have named her Marcia Sue.

Last week-end Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Shaner and daughters, Shirley and Catherine (Cockie) were in Detroit to attend a wedding at which Shirley was maid of honor. This week-end Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaner, the parents of Ernest Shaner, spent the week-end in Rome, and when they returned Catherine went home with them.

Mrs. Edward Thomas and daughter, Patti Ann, San Fernando, Calif., are spending the month visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Shaner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Craigie, Detroit, Mich., spent the week-end with her son, George T. English, Pasadena-av.

Mrs. Waldo Ison entertained Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith of Columbus Wednesday evening with a birthday anniversary supper for Mr. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Clark, formerly of Detroit, are now located at 5467 W. Broad-st, the Tinaple property, where the Albert French family lived for several years. Mr. Clark is connected with the G. M. plant.

Jay Jerry and Ted Kaltenbach, members of the Hilliard Garden and Livestock Club are spending this week at Camp Ohio.

GO AHEAD, YOU GOTTA LEARN

"WHAT DO I DO FIRST?" seems to be reaction of William T. Sheffield, Cincinnati, chosen "Ohio's Most Typical Expectant Father" by National Institute of Diaper Services. Sheffield is equipped with all the paraphernalia—including a "model"—for practicing an art he must learn soon. "National Expectant Father's Day" is June 18, says the institute, and Sheffield gets a trip to New York to compete for title of "America's No. 1 Pop-to-Be." (International)

Don't Waste the Fish You Catch; Here Are Tips on Handling Them

Thousands of pounds of fish are wasted annually by fishermen who carelessly toss stringers or creels into cars for a two or three hour ride homeward in hot weather.

Not only is valuable meat lost but delicate flavor of freshly caught fish is impaired.

Most seafood fanciers claim that the sooner fish are cooked and served after they leave the water, the better the flavor and some species of fish, especially the popular crappie, spoils rapidly or at least loses flavor if not properly attended and preserved between catching time and the skillet.

Veteran fishermen often clean each fish as they are caught, at least the gills and insides are removed. Green grass or water plants are stuffed into the cavity and each fish individually wrapped in water lilies or burlap. If a creel is available the fish is placed immediately in it and sprinkled lightly.

As long as fish are alive they may be kept in the creek tied to a root or slung over the side of a boat until the angler is finished for the day. If they are dead they should be cleaned immediately or partly cleaned and placed in chipped ice.

Since the average fisherman might find it rather inconvenient to carry a supply of ice the same results may be had by wrapping the catch in wet burlap which is kept moist and where the air will get at it. The natural evaporation will keep the fish about 20 degrees cooler than the surrounding air.

If the fish are to be transported a great distance they should be cleaned and kept in chipped ice but never allowed to touch the water from the melting ice.

Fish carried home dry on a stringer will become strong in flavor and scaling is more difficult than when kept moist but not wet, or they will become waterlogged and tasteless.

With a little extra care fishermen will save many pounds of delicious eating and protect that fresh-caught flavor that is lost by too many anglers each year.

RELEASE

Look at a violet in the grass,
At a jonquil in the rain—
And if you can, it will come to pass
That no one can harm you again.

The magic is not in the flower,
But all in learning to see
In the outward turning hour
You have no enemy.

Leslie Foxworthy,

AT AN OPEN WINDOW

I watch each dust mote drift . .
Count any number;
The air-currents seize and lift
Specks of bright umber.

My love for you, like space,
Is undemanding;
The ways of mote and grace
Need understanding.

Your heart is a mote, I think:
Shimmering, artless;
A mote to whirl and sway,
Chartless.

Under the average "Compulsory Health Insurance" setup, many independent workers, professional men and women, and many other groups are not fully covered. Many diseases and chronic illnesses are not covered.

Workers above certain salary levels are not included; the poor and unemployed are expected to receive free treatment from Doctors and clinics—just as they now do in this country . . . to a total of about a million dollars free service a day.

Doctors in every community in America are studying and approving VOLUNTARY plans of medical-care insurance. Many are NOW available . . . unburdened with bureaucratic redtape.

The average person assumes that systems of "Compulsory Sickness Insurance" or "Socialized Medicine" reach ALL the people. That is far from true. In countries where such systems are used, great numbers of the population receive no benefits.

Jesus Continues His Ministry — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 28:16-20; Mark 16:14-20; Luke 24:49-53; Acts 1:1-14; Hebrews 7:25.

On a mountain in Galilee Jesus appeared to His disciples who worshiped Him but some doubted. He spoke to them, telling them that all authority had been given Him in heaven and on earth.

Jesus told His disciples that they must go forth and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, and He would be with them always.

In His tenth and final appearance to His disciples, Jesus told them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, for they were to be baptized in the Holy Spirit.

Jesus led the disciples as far as Bethany, blessed them, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. The disciples returned to Jerusalem with great joy.

Summer Conventions

Religious Activities Highlight Hilltop News

Hilltop pastors and religious activities are in the spotlight this week. From Lakeside comes news of Rev. Norman L. Schreiber, pastor of the Westgate Methodist Church, who is officiating as Dean of Men at the Columbus District Methodist Youth Institute. About 350 Columbus teenagers are in attendance.

Richard Gordon will replace his father in the pulpit Sunday at St. Paul's Evangelical Congregational Church. He, his wife, and daughter are spending the summer with his parents: Rev. and Mrs. Paul Gordon. Richard recently graduated from Toccoa Falls Bible College.

At Winona Lake, Indiana, this week are Rev. J. L. Dean and family. Rev. Dean, pastor of the Hilltop Community Church, is attending the annual convention of the Oriental Missionary Society.

Newcomers to the Hilltop are given a special invitation to attend a summer communion service this Sunday at 10:30 p. m. at Hoge Memorial Church.

A sound film and projector will be dedicated at the Burgess Avenue Evangelical United Brethren Church this Sunday by the Alpha Class. Following the dedication service a film, "Simon Peter", will be shown.

The Keystone Bible Class of Hillcrest Baptist Church will hold its class party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fulton, 578 Townsend-av, on Saturday evening, June 25.

Mrs. Harry Starcher and Mrs. R. F. Griffen are assisting hostesses.

Plans are being announced for the Scioto Conference Board of Christian Education Convention and Daily Vacation Bible School, to be held at the Mt. Zion Church, near Junction City, O., from June 27 through July 3. Special camp workers are Rev. R. W. Rash, Huntington, Ind., and Dr. C. W. Meadows, Chambersburg, Pa., and Mrs. Olen Gould of Columbus.

Legal Notice

Common Pleas Court, Franklin County, Ohio.

No. 197655 — Minnie C. Francis, Plaintiff, vs. Maxine VanMiddlesworth, Defendant.

Maxine VanMiddlesworth, last known place of residence, Caracas, Venezuela, South America, is hereby notified that on March 17th, 1949, Minnie C. Francis filed a petition against her as defendant in this case alleging that plaintiff is the fee simple owner of the following real estate:

Situate in City of Columbus, Franklin County, Ohio. Being Lots 104, 105 and 106 of H. H. Parsons Subdivision of Lots 56 and 57 of Theodore Leonard's Heirs Subdivision, Plat Book Number 4, page 223, Recorder's Office, Franklin County, Ohio.

that on June 11, 1946, Fred C. Dunn, Auditor of Franklin County, Ohio, delivered to [illegible] deed to said real estate, the consideration of [illegible] which was recorded on June 14, 1946, in Deed Book 1318, page 269, Franklin County Recorder's Office; that said Auditor's deed was without authority of law and is a cloud on plaintiff's title; that plaintiff prays that said deed be set aside and her title quieted and other relief.

Said defendant is required to answer said petition on or before July 25, 1949, or judgment may be rendered against her.

"But Seek Ye First"...

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

The place occupied by your church in your community is high on the list of places to be known by you and your family and your friends in the discharge of your civic and spiritual responsibilities.

The picture shown above may not necessarily be the particular church you attend, but in a sense it is your church because it is God's church and it is the symbol of the place you and your loved ones go to seek spiritual solace and forgiveness.

What would our community be without churches? Would you want to live in this community if there were not a single church within the city limits?

In times of discouragement and distress, the church is the one source of solace and communion with God and Jesus Christ. While there are many faiths, there is but one church, the church you attend or support every Sunday throughout the year.

Your community protects your Democratic right to freedom of worship. Whether you be Protestant, Catholic or Jew, your attendance at your own house of worship each week makes for a better community, a more contented family, a happier and more helpful America.

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

More errands today—

As soon as the morning chores had been completed Violet and I went down town. On the way we stopped to leave some laundry which is to be made ready for the trunk packing next week. Downtown we went to Pumphrey's, where Violet tried on and purchased one of the Admiral's caps to wear on shipboard when winds are blowing hard. It even has a pair of sunglasses attached to keep out the bright lights.

Violet's next destination was to Lazarus for more last minute shopping. This was followed by a walk to the Southern Hotel where she met Mrs. Tomlinson who had invited her down for luncheon and an afternoon chat.

I went from the hat shop to the building and loan office for Mom, walked to the Nut Shop and bought a supply of tinned nut meats to tease the appetites of those we visit in England, walked to the Beggs Building where I paid up insurance premiums which are to fall due while we are out of town and from there walked to the Masonic Temple in time to meet Tom Graham and Les Scrimger for lunch.

Outside the Temple after lunch I met Jack Brittain, as per arrangement, and went with him on an errand to a clock shop, an errand to Mrs. Nelson's out on Nelson Road, then to the Irving Browns where Jack was to tend to the watering of plants in their conservatory while the Browns were in New York seeing Mrs. Ford safely aboard her homeward bound ship.

That did not end the errands for the day. Jack drove me out to the Fairmont Creamery where I bought all the tinned butter they had on hand. This butter is to go into our grocery trunk when we travel. From the creamery we went to the grocery and there I bought sugar, rice, flour, tea, etc., which is also to go into the traveling grocery store.

By the time all these errands were finished it was almost supper time. Soon Mrs. Carey came to join Jack and us at this ceremony.

Tonight Jack and I were sitting on the porch enjoying the summer air and talking over possible plans for Jack's trip if he should get a booking at the last minute. While thus occupied Freda and Louise dropped in. They stayed for a while but, when Violet and Mrs. Carey did not get home at the usual time, they had to leave for home. When Violet did come home she told of a surprise that the choir had had for her. They presented her a pair of nylon gloves to wear on her trip.

Thursday, May 5

Still more errands and still more hot weather to do it in.

Violet went to the Nemo Club meeting at Mrs. Lohr's. They had a pot luck lunch and an all afternoon meet.

My work started with a trip to the building and loan to get all the accounts settled there for our absence, then a trip to the bank and by this time it was the hour for going to the Coop Club as a guest of Bob Rucker. I expect to rejoin this club again in the fall.

After lunch I went to the electric company to arrange for electric bills during our absence and from there I went to the gas company to do the same thing. Next came a call at the Travel Agency to pick up more tags and labels for our baggage and a trip to the University Club to get squared up with them for dues that would be coming due while we are away.

The additional tags were found necessary because this morning Violet and I were packing the first of our trunks, which was supposed to contain all the food supplies. When it had been packed we still had more to be tucked away somewhere so we decided to put our old Gladstone bag into service. This bag I packed this afternoon when I came home and was waiting for Violet to get home for supper.

Tonight we were surprised with a visit from Mrs. Bainter, Fanie Bainter and Earl Brand. That made it old times night for conversations about the "good old days" of 40 years ago when Ruth and I used to be playmates with the Bainter girls.

Friday, May 6

On the errand side for the day was a trip down town to get some neckties, etc., followed by a meeting at Democratic headquarters with Phil, a trip to the courthouse with Jack Brittain and another trip to Irving Browns for flower watering.

Violet went with Mrs. Shaw to Glenwood Church for a noon luncheon meeting of the County Council of Church Women. She earlier had been busy baking cakes—one for the bachelors' dinner tonight and another as a Mother's Day gift to Mom.

SNAKE EATERS! — That is what Bill, Phil and I might be called after our bachelor dinner tonight. Violet had gone to the mother-daughter dinner at the church with Helen Grenell as her daughter. Mamie Brown was also attending the same dinner with Mrs. Breakey. That left Bill, Phil and I to get our own dinners. They came over here bearing vegetables for making a salad. A line or two ago I said that Violet had baked a cake for us. Now I remember it was a cream pie. We opened a can of corn which was easy to prepare by simply warming it up. Then came the event of the evening. We opened our two cans of RATTLESNAKE MEAT, prepared it according to directions and served it in pattie shells which Violet had baked for the purpose. I went over to invite the Morisons to come over for a taste but Mrs. Morison and Johnny couldn't bear to look at it. Perry got up enough nerve to come over and see what it looked like but his stomach wasn't strong enough to bear tasting it, even though I assured him that I had been reliably informed that rattlesnakes tasted like terrapin.

The three of us ate our portions of two pattie shells apiece and there was still some left for late comers. Just at this time Dorothy Suhada and her mother, Mrs. Geshwilm, came with the finished Daily Doings for April. Selma was out in the car while Dorothy came to deliver the package. I told her what we were having and asked if she would like to experiment with a little taste of it. She hesitated at the thought of snakes but I could tell by her action that she would be game to try it. She was eating a part of hers when we suggested that maybe her mother would like to try it. Out in the car Selma was pleased to try the new delicacy which Violet had prepared (So she thought and we had not told her what it was). As she ate it she kept saying with emphasis that "This is good. This is wonderful. What is it?"

We waited until Selma had eaten all the rest of the patty before Dorothy told her that she had been eating snake meat. With that, Selma reeled just a bit, then a faint voice, and very faintly, repeated what she had said before: "This is good." I wonder if Selma will serve snake meat at her next dinner.

As for us we are satisfied now. Actually, there was little or no taste to it. If it had not been for the pimento, mushrooms and white wine sauce in which it was prepared, there would have been hardly any taste to it. For flavor and texture, I can think of a lot more foods that would be more tasty.

LAFF-A-DAY

"Mom, how's it feel to be an ex-convict?"

THIS IS APRIL

Now April's violins are echoings
Of dreams that hold a memory entwined,
And gentle promise woos the pulse of Spring
With bells of laughter ringing on the wind.
This is April stirring in a soul.
This is living—new and strong and whole.

Three-Minute Laugh!

What kind of a joke gives a preacher a real laugh? Well, a note from London relates one that "made clergymen, including the archbishop of Canterbury, guffaw for three full minutes when it was told at the annual Church of England assembly of clergymen and laymen:"

A woman bought a drinking bowl for her dog. The clerk asked if she wanted the word "dog" painted on it.

"No thanks," said the woman. "My husband doesn't drink water and the dog can't read."

It must be funny, to make Englishmen laugh for three minutes.

Harris-av, and Bobby Saint, 194 N. Hague-av. Mrs. Edna Crist, the instructor, is looking on.

Several hundred boys and girls from the Hilltop are supplementing their elementary school education this summer by attending vacation Bible school. Other children, under school age, are getting their first taste of kindergarten life and are really enjoying it.

Bible school is set up by various churches on the Hilltop to give children up to the age of 15 years an insight into the study of the Bible and their church.

Several of the churches have from five to eight teachers instructing. Pastors usually meet with the children during the last half-hour of the three-hour period for a short entertaining program.

In the pictures above some of the younger enrollees are engaged in craft work. Children make everything from paper coasters to pin wheels. One of the highlights of the children's mornings at the Bible schools are the refreshments, which are served every morning during a rest period.

Vacation Bible schools are well attended. Most churches list an enrollment from 50 to 80 pupils. The course offers free Bible training for two to three hours daily, five days a week, for approximately two weeks.

Among the Hilltop churches engaged in Bible school training are Hilltop Community, Community Christian, Westgate Evangelical United Brethren, Oakley Avenue Baptist, Glenwood Methodist, Hilltop Church of Christ, Burgess Avenue Evangelical United Brethren, Hillcrest Baptist, Hope Memorial Presbyterian and Westgate Methodist.

Free HBA Bus Line Is Suggested To Ease Traffic Woes

Another suggestion for easing the Hilltop business area's acute traffic and parking problem was advanced this week by a veteran W. Broad-st business man. It is a combination of a new idea and an old one. The author is J. P. (Jack) Merriman of Seiller's Department Store.

Mr. Merriman's suggestion is to inaugurate a privately operated bus service which would loop the entire Hilltop business district from Central-av to Derrer-rd and from Sullivant-av to Broad-st. The operation, he suggests, could be underwritten by the Hilltop Business Association.

The loop bus has been talked of many times before. That such a system would keep many cars off the streets is unquestioned.

Suggests Free Fare

The new part of Mr. Merriman's suggestion, however, is first, that the line be privately operated. Second, he suggests that the fare on the bus be free—if the rider makes a purchase of $1 or more in any of the establishments underwriting the bus service.

The system would work this way:

A resident of N. Ogden-av wishes to make a purchase at a Sullivant-av furniture store. She boards the HBA bus at Ogden-av and W. Broad-st, pays a five-cent fare and gets a receipt from the driver. Then she rides around the loop to the store she wishes to patronize and gets off. She enters the store, makes her purchase. The five cents she paid the bus driver is deducted from her bill when she surrenders the receipt, and she is given a bus token for her return trip. The merchant gets back the five cents he deducted from her bill when he turns the receipt over to the HBA. Total cost to the merchant: whatever price is set on the return-trip tokens by the HBA to cover the cost of operating the line.

Mr. Merriman estimated that a single bus could make the loop in 30 minutes, thus giving continuous half-hour service during the entire business day. He feels that bus service of the type he suggests would make it far easier for Hilltop shoppers and for medical patients of Hilltop professional men to make their way around the community with far less traffic congestion and with far less demand on available parking space.

Favor Easing of Ban

The bus line suggestion comes close on the heels of the proposal by the Hilltop Community Council to modify the ban on side-street parking in the business area to allow parking on one side of each street within the first half-block off W. Broad-st.

The council's parking suggestion has aroused widespread favorable comment among business men whose customers are hard-pressed for parking space.

Goodall, Herron Raised to Top Masonic Posts

Charles Goodall

By Myron T. Seifert

Top officers in two West Gate Temple Masonic bodies were named last week, Kenneth Sharadan, secretary of both fraternal groups, said today.

Charles Goodall, 159 Guernsey-av, was elected as high priest of West Gate Chapter No. 216, at the annual convocation held Wednesday, June 22, and John Herron, 379 S. Roys-av, was elected to the top spot of West Gate Council No. 29, Friday, June 17.

John Herron

The Goodall Masonic history antedates the naming of the newly elected West Gate high priest. Inherently Goodall is a Mason, since his grandfather achieved the coveted 33rd degree Masonic honor, by virtue of Masonic services during Civil War days. This high Masonic honor was conferred upon the elder Mr. Goodall in Scotland.

Incidentally, West Gate Chapter High Priest Goodall was made

12 More Hilltop Firms Underwrite Bean Dinner Celebration July 27

Twelve more business firms have been added to the list of Hilltop Bean Dinner underwriters, it was announced today by Elmer J. Hegenberger, finance chairman for the annual community outing.

Brown and Gold Robes to Add 'New Look' To West High School's Choir Next Fall

By Myron T. Seifert

When West High School opens next fall that "new look" will be in evidence in the vocal music department.

Adding color and dignity to the mixed choir group at the Hilltop school, 65 boys and girls, garbed in chestnut brown robes, and bedecked with gold stoles over the shoulders, will greet the student body when the celebrated choir makes public appearances.

Measurements were taken for the new vestments, and the attractively tailored gowns will be ready by fall, the manufacturers say.

The project will cost the group about $1000, and the choir proposes to pay for the new equipment through public performances.

The choir will make its debut in its new gowns at the State School Principals' meeting to be held in Columbus Oct. 16, Vocal Director Mrs. Edith White of the Hilltop school, said today.

Other plans on the vocal agenda include a worthwhile operetta, Christmas program and spring musicale, Mrs. White said.

The 35 girls and 29 boys who make up the "new look" in West High musical circles are:

Like Beans? Enter Our Contest, By All Means!

If you get a kick out of contests, and are a lover of those good old American favorites—beans—then you won't want to miss the big Bean Dinner Contest, which will be held in connection with the annual Hilltop Bean Dinner.

The whole family can participate in this full-of-fun contest, details of which will appear in the Record soon. Get your brain in gear, and watch for the announcement. Who knows?—YOU may be one of the lucky winners!

Police Plan Holiday Safety Drive; Mayor Asks Accident-Free Fourth

Police Chief Frank Harrison of Columbus announced today that an intensive traffic safety program will be conducted in connection with the three-day Fourth of July holiday celebration this year.

At the same time, Mayor James A. Rhodes issued the following statement:

"I urge every citizen to join with me in a wholehearted concerted effort to make the Fourth of July in Columbus an accident-free holiday celebration for all of us.

"It can be a holiday week-end free from accidents and the death and suffering that accompany them, if each and every one of us will accept personal responsibility for a safe and sane celebration."

In announcing the Police Department's intensive safety program, Chief Harrison said:

"Our enforcement program over the Fourth of July will bring Columbus into a united effort by cities and states throughout the nation to hold down the holiday death toll which usually occurs over the Independence Day celebration." This nation-wide program is being coordinated by the National Safety Council and its local representative, the Safety Council of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

"The police department urges everybody to take special precautions in an effort to save both lives and property over the Fourth. It will be a time of real hazard because of the long week-end, the festive spirit of the holiday traffic."

Pedestrian Injured

Mrs. Mary Illick, 1601 W. Broad-st, suffered head injuries at 9:30 this morning, when she was struck by a car near Wayne-av and W. Broad-st. An ambulance from the Jerry Spears Funeral Home took the elderly woman to Mt. Carmel Hospital where she will be held for treatment and observation. Mr. Illick is an employe of the Columbus State School.

$505 Kiwanis Check Presented to Hilltop YMCA

THREE-WAY "DEAL" — These three Kiwanians "got into the act" last Thursday night at the Kiwanis anniversary banquet when Hilltop Kiwanis' $505 gift ($5 for a membership and $500 for the building fund) was presented to the Hilltop branch YMCA. Both C. Carlton Hartley (left), chairman of the Y board, and Averille Thorn (center), Y secretary, made a fast grab for the check, but it ended a dead heat. Presenting the check (and in danger of losing a hand in the process) is Jack Sensenbrenner (right), Kiwanis president.

Job's Daughters News Notes

By Patti Holycross

The Hilltop Record has donated this space in the paper for any Job's Daughters news that might be of interest to anyone. We have had several big events that we would like for our readers to know about.

First of all—Bethel No. 3 of the International Order of Job's Daughters, almost entirely a Hilltop group, was well represented at Grand Session in Cincinnati at the Netherland Plaza Hotel, June 17 and 18. A chartered bus left Schmelzer's Hall at 8:30 a. m. June 17, and some of the parents drove to Cincinnati with their daughters. Approximately 50 attended the session.

Donna Cramer, past honored queen of Bethel No. 3, was honored with the appointment of state inner guard. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cramer, 590 Wiltshire-rd. Mrs. George Roberts, guardian of Bethel No. 3, was appointed grand director of music of the state of Ohio for the second consecutive year; George Roberts, associate guardian, was appointed grand inner guard.

Several of the girls participated in the all-state choir for the session, which was under the leadership of Mrs. Roberts. The group returned to Columbus Sunday afternoon.

Jean Meservey, past honored queen, had charge of the banquet tickets and Ida Mae Emrich, junior past honored queen, collected the money for the chartered bus. Miss Emrich also served as stenographer for one of the main committee meetings of the session.

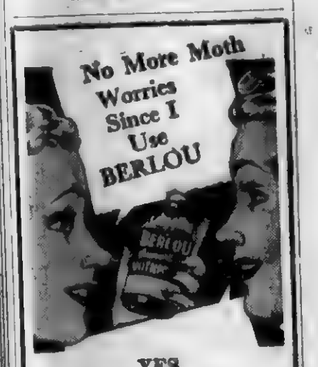
We are very proud to have two grand officers and a state officer serving our Bethel.

Next on the agenda we have been asked by the grand guardian of the state of Ohio to serve as the hostess Bethel for the school of instruction and installation service for council members. This meeting will be held Tuesday, June 28, at Motter Hall, Glenwood Methodist Church.

This will include all officers and council members of the various Bethels in Marion, Delaware, Zanesville, Springfield and the four Bethels in Columbus. Bethel No. 3 officers will be assisted by the officers of Bethel No. 28 of Zanesville. The grand guardian, Mrs. Helena Reid, Cincinnati, will be present and will install all councils for the coming year.

This meeting will be open to all Masons, Eastern Stars and parents of Job's Daughters. Julianne Billingsley, the honored queen of Bethel No. 3, will be assisted by the honored queen of the Zanesville Bethel. The meeting is scheduled to start at 8 p. m.

Mrs. George Holycross, president of the Mothers' Club, has been asked to have the Mothers' Club serve refreshments after the meeting.



The last event of the summer will be our picnic. We are planning a big surprise that we think you will all enjoy. I'll tell you more about it in our next issue of the paper.

This is your reporter sounding "thirty" until next time.

Reception Is Held for Buchanans

MRS. HAROLD BUCHANAN

THE FORMER MISS MARILYN SACHS, now Mrs. Harold Buchanan and Mr. Harold Buchanan were honored with a reception in their honor at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford D. Sachs, 170 S. Cassady-av, on June 18.

Fifteen of Marilyn's close friends, since Bexley High School days, were hostesses at the reception. Among Hilltop guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Buchanan, 145 N. Chase-av, parents of the groom, and Miss Jean Buchanan, sister of the groom, Dick Slager, Jim Bell, Shirley Keitzman, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Haines, Ralph Watts, Paul Hegenberger, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Seiller, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thompson and Margaret Halsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan were married June 11 in Newport, Ky. Attending the couple were Miss Margaret Halsey and her fiance, Mr. Donn Haines, both of Columbus.

For her wedding the bride wore a white pique dress fashioned with an off-shoulder neckline and trimmed with a wide band of imported lace bordering the hem. Her grandmother's diamond and pearl lavalier was her only jewelry. A white lace crownless picture hat completed her costume.

The former Miss Sachs is a graduate of Bexley High School and is a student in the School of Education at Miami University, Oxford.

Mr. Buchanan is a graduate of West High School and served with the Army Air Forces during World War II. He now is a junior in the School of Education at Miami University and is majoring in physical education. He has been a member of the football squad there for the past two years and is a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity.

The progress in the matter of firearms helped to put tournaments out of fashion.

Miss Mary Snyder To Exchange Vows With Mr. Overturf

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Snyder, 870 Belvidere-av, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Ellen, to Mr. Rowan Overturf, 935 W. Rich-st.

The open church wedding will be an event of July 10 at 2:30 p. m. at the Burgess Avenue Evangelical United Brethren Church. The bride-elect is a graduate of West High School, attended Ohio State University, and will graduate from Grant Hospital School of Nursing on July 8.

Mr. Overturf is associated with the E. J. Snyder Trucking Co. He is a veteran of three years service in the army.

Hilltop Society Notes

Mrs. Crispin Returns From Visit in Germany

By Doris Rokeach
Society Editor

The telephone was ringing all day Tuesday at 655 Hilltonia-av, as friends and relatives of Mrs. M. B. Crispin called to ask about her plane trip to Germany.

Mrs. Crispin just got back from three weeks in the war-torn country. In her estimation conditions are pretty bad, but she did say they have picked up within the past six months. Purpose of her visit was to renew acquaintances with her many German relatives and to see the birthplace and former home of her father.

Some of her relatives visited were Mrs. Anna Kraft of Trossingen, Wurtemburg; and Mrs. Emma Bosche of Altenbergen, Westfalen, a cousin.

Some things she remembers about her trip: evidences of poverty, food shortage . . . gardens in public parks . . . sleeping under featherbeds . . . cool weather (she wore a topcoat and suit) . . . difficulty with the language . . . and low wage scale of German workers.

Surprise Wedding

Remember the pretty waitress, (Pauline Clark) at the Biltmore Restaurant? Well, last Saturday Pauline and her fiance, Bob Six, 549 Columbian-av, were married in Tennessee. Accompanying them were two friends of Bob's (twins) and they all decided to make it a triple wedding. More details on this Thursday.

In Colorado

Bill Miller, 139 N. Ogden-av, left Thursday for Lowry Field, Denver, Colo., where he will take a six weeks' training course for ROTC students from Ohio University, Athens. At the end of the course Bob is looking forward to a visit with the Homer Langtons, former Hilltoppers, who are living in Glendale, Calif. The Langtons' son, John, a sophomore at Ohio University, and Bill will return to Ohio in September in time for the opening of the fall term.

Attending Convention

In Boston, Mass., until July 3 are Dr. and Mrs. C. O. Miller, who are attending the American Optometric Association Convention in that city. During their trip East the Millers will stop in New York at the Aufderheide residence and also in Erie, Pa., where they will attend the Batchelor reunion. Mrs. Miller will represent the Women's Auxiliary of the Ohio State Optometric Association at the Boston Convention.

In Cleveland

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Norris and Mrs. Edna Dague, 176 N. Westmoor-av, visited in Cleveland recently where they were guests of Mrs. Dague's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Braunen. Mrs. Braunan accompanied the group on their return trip and visited several days with her mother in Columbus.

To Uniform Band At Hilliards High

The Hilliards Music Boosters Club has launched a campaign to raise $1840 to purchase new uniforms for the high school band.

Officials said approximately $1000 has been raised but an additional $740 is needed.

Members of the club are NOT asking for donations but are offering non-interest bearing bonds in $5 denominations to be retired as the club makes additional money.

Those authorized to sell bonds are Paul Kindinger, Mr. and Mrs. Findley DeWolfe, Ned Woodruff, Mrs. Margaret Michel and C. H. Brown.

Calendar

Twig 44 will hold its annual picnic Wednesday, July 6, at 6 p. m., Shelter House No. 3.

The KME Class of Glenwood Methodist Class held a picnic on Friday, June 24, at the Scioto River Shelter House. Ben Jones served as chairman of the picnic committee. She was assisted by Carol Nixon.

The Personal Workers' Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church will meet at the home of Mrs. W. H. Beckett, 86 N. Warren-av, Thursday, June 30, at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. M. L. Plummer and Mrs. Della Wolff will be assisting hostesses.

The Fidelis Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church will have a family picnic at Camp Yohio Friday, July 1, from 4 to 10 p. m. The committee in charge are Mr. and Mrs. John Holloway, co-chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McCrady, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Decker, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Leach, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Martin, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Proper.

Beta Lambda Sunday School Class of Glenwood Methodist Church will meet Tuesday, June 28, at the home of Mrs. M. W. Seiller, 29 Eldon-av.

The Friendly Gilbert Guild class of West Park Church will meet Tuesday evening, June 28, at the home of Mrs. Luther E. Smith, 48 N. Princeton-av.

The Tena Wagner Missionary and Aid Society of the Hilltop Lutheran Church will meet Tuesday, June 28, at 8 p. m. at the church. Rev. Robert A. Boettger of the Ohio State University Lutheran Center will be guest speaker. Hostesess for this meeting are Mrs. Robert Strickler, Mrs. C. O. Butte, Mrs. Clyde Wallingford.

Hilltop Man Named General Manager Of Tool, Die Firm

Richard T. Wright, 140 Columbian-av, was appointed recently as general manager of the Modern Tool and Die Co. The appointment was announced by N. J. Hinterschied, company treasurer.

Mr. Wright, now 37 years old, has been with the company for 21 years. He started as an apprentice tool maker and advanced to his present position. The company manufactures dies, tools, jigs, special machinery and metal stampings.

United States bakers work 'round-the-clock to meet the huge demands for a continual flow of fresh baked goods for customers.

Tennis Classes Scheduled At Westgate Park

Tennis classes have been started at Westgate Park and will continue through the summer playground season, according to Mack Pemberton, playground supervisor.

Classes for the 9-12 age group are scheduled each Monday and Wednesday at 1 p. m. Classes for the 13-16 group are held each Tuesday and Friday, also at 1 p. m.

Dorothy Lightner, physical education teacher at Wooster College, is the tennis instructor. Regular court fees will be charged to tennis pupils. There will be no extra charge for lessons, Mr. Pemberton said.

He added that if enough adults express interest in learning the game a class will be scheduled for them. Any adults interested should talk with Mr. Pemberton.

Estell-Campbell and Hoffman-Evans Engagements are Announced This Week

Ethel Estell

A soldier and his fiancee will be wed in September at Immanuel Baptist Church, it was announced this week by parents of the prospective bride. The bride-elect is Miss Ethel Estell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Estell, 227 N. Eureka-av.

In an open church wedding Sept. 24 Miss Estell will exchange vows with Cpl. James Campbell, son of Mr. James Campbell of Patterson, New Jersey. Cpl. Campbell is stationed with the army at Fort Bliss, Tex.

Miss Estell is a graduate of West High School and is employed by William Iselin & Co., 68 E. Gay-st. Cpl. Campbell will receive his discharge in September.

Charlotte Hoffman

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Charlotte Mary Hoffman to David Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Evans, 23 N. Warren-av, was announced by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Hoffman, 2857 Medina-av.

Miss Hoffman is a graduate of Linden McKinley High School and is associated with the Ohio National Bank. Mr. Evans is a graduate of Findlay High School and is employed by the Kroger Baking Co.

The open church wedding will take place at 4:30 p. m. Aug. 14 in the Linden Heights Methodist Church.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

BEATRICE was standing by the window, for in any room she invariably sought the window. Standing between the opened curtains through which she could see a lopsided moon, standing with David and feeling the subtle warmth of him, and with her untouched glass uplifted when Porter came in.

David, facing her and with his back to Porter said, "Your husband just came in, didn't he?"

"How did you know? Do you know everything?"

He smiled. "I know you, Beatrice."

Something seemed to break in her. She was looking at Porter when she said, "It just occurs to me that you can't give all to love. There's no such thing as giving all. There's always more to give."

"Does he see you?"

"Not yet."

Porter, too, was a spectator loath to come in. He looked as if he were trying to make up his mind whether to come in, or to leave. He looked out over the flushed hot faces as if he hoped no one would recognize him and, not being missed, he could go in peace. He seemed a little amused at something that had happened within the last few hours, and the memory of it was still fresh with him. He didn't want it spoiled and here, he knew, it would be.

Now ours is a relationship unlike marriage, Beatrice thought. It's as though we have been only lovers, and I'm afraid I'm going to lose him to another woman. As if all he has to do is put his belongings in a trunk and walk out. But marriage is so much more. It is permanent. Sometimes people find that it is bigger than they think it is. Sometimes they find it is bigger than they. Sometimes they find that they cannot break it without breaking themselves.

Now he saw her, and he was coming across the room to her.

"Porter, you remember David Jordan?"

Porter smiled in that way of his that had always made Beatrice see him as he had been as a little boy.

"Yes. How are you?"

"Monopolizing your wife."

"Thanks for substituting for me."

"I can't," David said. "I can give only a poor imitation at best. Of course at these American cocktail parties—not one of your better national institutions, I might add—a frail girl like Beatrice needs a certain amount of protection." He smiled down at Beatrice. "But you hardly need two bodyguards. If you'll excuse me—I wonder. Do you suppose I could get through that mob for my coat and hat?"

Suddenly one voice disentangled itself from the body of voices.

"Leaving? So soon?"

Quite obviously the voice belonged to the woman who now joined them. Though Beatrice could not remember her name, she knew that the woman was one of those you saw everywhere—at the theatre, at concerts, and most particularly at the better parties. Beatrice had a vague recollection of having seen an ermine collar at one time, and a hat with a plume another time. She was one of those women seemingly so homeless that you couldn't help wonder when she ever slept, or where she changed into her many exaggerated costumes. Today she wore a frock with two tiers of fringe. Her large hat, crowniess to reveal the buttercup colored hair, seemed so stubbornly to want to come off that she had to hold it on by sheer force.

"Leaving?" she queried again. "Hello, Beatrice. Porter. David, darling, so you did come back from New York? Don't you just adore New York? It's like stepping into another world when you're there. I don't know what it does to me, but it does something." To Beatrice she said, "Isn't he the nicest man? David, I mean. We can't let him go back to the . . . the Zulus. It's barbaric, simply barbaric. Oh, this hat. It won't stay on, and it never did this before."

"Why don't you take it off?" Porter asked.

The hat came off.

"Now why didn't I think of that before? After all, I know everyone here and everyone knows me. Porter, you're so smart, so sort of infallible." She shook her finger at him. "But what I know about you!"

Porter said, "You mean that I [illegible] my secretary to lunch today?"

"But isn't that an old American custom?" David asked humorously.

Beatrice said quickly and lightly, "I'm sorry to take the spice out of it for you, but I know Porter's secretary. She's a charming girl, and I like her very much."

"Oh! Oh, well . . . Nice to see you all. Lovely party, isn't it? Magnificent apartment. I wonder where my husband is. I wonder where we're going to have dinner. Oh, this hat! Now I'll have to carry the thing and that leaves me only one hand. Not so fast," she said to a passing tray of drinks. With the glass to her lips she moved away, tittering, "You look so funny. Just like the eternal triangle."

David glanced at his watch. "And now I'm late for my dinner engagement. So if you'll excuse this somewhat abrupt departure . . ."

When he had gone Porter said, "Thanks, Bee. Thanks for not putting Bonnie in a poor light, making her one of those secretarics."

"I was more interested in your not being taken for one of those bosses. This is a small town, isn't it?"

"She doesn't know many people here, and she had a personal problem." He stopped short and smiled at her, noting her hat and frock. "I'm forgetting my party manners. Sorry. You should circulate. You shouldn't waste it all on a mere husband."

"I'd planned dinner at home."

"You shouldn't have. I have to go back to the plant."

"Then why did you come?"

"I came because I knew you wanted me to put in an appearance."

Her anger rose so quickly and furiously that she was afraid of it.

Porter said, "I didn't mean that quite the way it sounded, Bee. You . . . you haven't touched your drink."

Don't be angry, she thought. Don't shout at least. Don't be the outraged wife. Don't, above all, be the wife who argues or weeps at parties. Oh, Porter, I love us and I'm sorry for us. I'm lost, and I can't find us!

His face was attentive. "I won't leave until you do."

"I didn't mean to be childish about it. It isn't this I care about. It's . . ."

Patiently he said, "I know. I should have told you. The point is I didn't know myself until six o'clock that I had to go back. I realize it isn't much fun for you, Bee."

Fun! Why do you insist upon that word in connection with me, she thought? I don't want fun. I want to be your wife. I want that old feeling of permanence with you—of safety and comfort and intimacy.

A man came by then and took her arm and led her away, saying, "Caught with your husband at a party? That will never do! You'll get yourself talked about!"

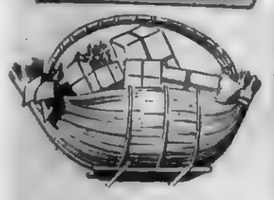
She saw David then. David and Libby standing in the foyer. David wore his topcoat and had his hat in his hand, and he was saying good-bye to Libby.

And for Libby there was nothing else in the world at this moment except David's saying goodbye. Oh, he was being very urbane about it, giving it the right touch, the light touch, but Libby knew he was doing more than merely leaving her party. He was leaving Libby, too, and her too much of everything way of life—too many people, too many diamonds with their cold glitter, too much concentration upon self, too much money, too much waste.

Libby removed her hand slowly from his, and something in her seemed to break, too. And though Beatrice couldn't hear what they were saying, she knew they were acting as adult people do at a time like this with that terrible courtesy that suffocates the sounds of grief and desolation. Libby, sleek, streamlined, loyal, temperamental; popular Libby impervious to love? Look now, Beatrice thought. Look at Libby's face above the glittering gown, and see her losing the only man she's wanted since Dick. How still she stands with her hands limp at her sides while he walks away. How still, how lonely she is midst this too much of everything.

Beatrice went to her at once.

Libby took a deep troubled breath. Unsmiling she said, "Hello, Bee dear. I saw you but I haven't been able to reach you."



"I can't stay. Porter has to go back to the plant."

"Does he?" She seemed numb. "Bee. No, never mind. Skip it. No one will miss me if I go to my room. I despise myself, but I don't know how to be different." She was trembling. "Words! Words! Oh, why don't they all go home? Why did I do such a foolish thing? At a time like this of universal bewilderment and want—Oh, God."

ACRES OF DIAMONDS

You've heard the story of the "Acres of Diamonds" . . . how the young man set out in search of his fortune . . . how he traveled all over th world . . . but all the while with no appreciable increase in the size of his fortune . . . and later in life he returned to his home community . . . There to find . . . Acres of Diamonds.

Today it is a fact that a lot of bargain-wise but foot-foolish individuals go far afield from their home community to buy the same merchandise that is offered right here at home for the same or less money.

Such merchandise as nationally advertised brands of foods, clothing, appliances, autos, drugs, are carried in abundance by Hilltop individually owned stores. Most of these items are standard in price. The local dealer is in a position to give the same quality merchandise at the same low price . . . the only difference is that you don't have to trudge around miles away from home to do your shopping.

Doing your buying from local Hilltop individual business firms is much easier than making a trip to town . . . far more parking space available out here . . . you get away from the bustling crowds in this hot weather . . . you are dealing with a neighbor and you are an individual, not just another cash register bell ringer.

And too, don't overlook the fact that every time you make a purchase from a Hilltop individual firm you are making a stronger community of which you can be proud.

It is the individual business man of the community that serves on the committees that get things done for the community . . . the same things that increase property values here . . . the same things that make for better living conditions.

Your dollars spent with the chain store or downtown business firms contributes nothing to this strengthening of the community.

Yes, sir . . . there are "Acres of Diamonds" right here on the Hilltop just waiting for you to pick them up. So why take the time and trouble to go elsewhere in search of savings!

STEVENS ON VACATION

James M. Stevens, prominent West Side realtor, has planned a three to four weeks vacation for himself and some members of his staff. They will leave Monday, June 27. Accompanying him will be his wife, his sister, Mrs. Franklin Slyh, the office manager, William Moccabee, and two salesmen, Robert Merrick and Ellen Walters. They plan to stop at Chickamauga battlefield, in the Cumberland Mountains, then go to St. Petersburg, Fla., and furnish the Stevens' new one floor plan home there, which is situated on Tampa Bay.

FIRE CAUSES $650 DAMAGE

A blaze June 23 in the home of Stacey Lambert, 362 S. Terrace-av, of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at $650, firemen reported. Serious damage was caused to two living room couches and other furniture.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

BEATRICE was standing by the window, for in any room she invariably sought the window. Standing between the opened curtains through which she could see a lop-sided moon, standing with David and feeling the subtle warmth of him, and with her untouched glass uplifted when Porter came in.

David, facing her and with his back to Porter said, "Your husband just came in, didn't he?"

"How did you know? Do you know everything?"

He smiled. "I know you, Beatrice."

Something seemed to break in her. She was looking at Porter when she said, "It just occurs to me that you can't give all to love. There's no such thing as giving all. There's always more to give."

"Does he see you?"

"Not yet."

Porter, too, was a spectator loath to come in. He looked as if he were trying to make up his mind whether to come in, or to leave. He looked out over the flushed hot faces as if he hoped no one would recognize him and, not being missed, he could go in peace. He seemed a little amused at something that had happened within the last few hours, and the memory of it was still fresh with him. He didn't want it spoiled and here, he knew, it would be.

Now ours is a relationship unlike marriage, Beatrice thought. It's as though we have been only lovers, and I'm afraid I'm going to lose him to another woman. As if all he has to do is put his belongings in a trunk and walk out. But marriage is so much more. It is permanent. Sometimes people find that it is bigger than they think it is. Sometimes they find it is bigger than they. Sometimes they find that they cannot break it without breaking themselves.

Now he saw her, and he was coming across the room to her.

"Porter, you remember David Jordan?"

Porter smiled in that way of his that had always made Beatrice see him as he had been as a little boy.

"Yes. How are you?"

"Monopolozing your wife."

"Thanks for substituting for me."

"I can't," David said. "I can give only a poor imitation at best. Of course at these American cocktail parties—not one of your better national institutions, I might add—a frail girl like Beatrice needs a certain amount of protection." He smiled down at Beatrice. "But you hardly need two bodyguards. If you'll excuse me—I wonder. Do you suppose I could get through that mob for my coat and hat?"

Sudden'y one voice disentangled itself from the body of voices.

"Leaving? So soon?"

Quite obviously the voice belonged to the woman who now joined them. Though Beatrice could not remember her name, she knew that the woman was one of those you saw everywhere—at the theatre, at concerts, and most particularly at the better parties. Beatrice had a vague recollection of having seen an ermine collar at one time, and a hat with a plume another time. She was one of those women seemingly so homeless that you couldn't help wonder when she ever slept, or where she changed into her many exaggerated costumes. Today she wore a frock with two tiers of fringe. Her large hat, crownless to reveal the buttercup colored hair, seemed so stubbornly to want to come off that she had to hold it on by sheer force.

"Leaving?" she queried again. "Hello, Beatrice. Porter. David, darling, so you did come back from New York? Don't you just adore New York? It's like stepping into another world when you're there. I don't know what it does to me, but it does something." To Beatrice she said, "Isn't he the nicest man? David, I mean. We can't let him go back to the . . . the Zulus. It's barbaric, simply barbaric. Oh, this hat. It won't stay on, and it never did this before."

"Why don't you take it off?" Porter asked.

The hat came off.

"Now why didn't I think of that before? After all, I know everyone here and everyone knows me. Porter, you're so smart, so sort of infallible." She shook her finger at him. "But what I know about you!"

Porter said, "You mean that I took my secretary to lunch today?"

"But isn't that an old American custom?" David asked humorously.

Beatrice said quickly and lightly, "I'm sorry to take the spice out of it for you, but I know Porter's secretary. She's a charming girl, and I like her very much."

"Oh! Oh, well . . . Nice to see you all. Lovely party, isn't it? Magnificent apartment. I wonder where my husband is. I wonder where we're going to have dinner. Oh, this hat! Now I'll have to carry the thing and that leaves me only one hand. Not so fast," she said to a passing tray of drinks. With the glass to her lips she moved away, tittering, "You look so funny. Just like the eternal triangle."

David glanced at his watch. "And now I'm late for my dinner engagement. So if you'll excuse this somewhat abrupt departure . . ."

When he had gone Porter said, "Thanks, Bee. Thanks for not putting Bonnie in a poor light, making her one of those secretarics."

"I was more interested in your not being taken for one of those bosses. This is a small town, isn't it?"

"She doesn't know many people here, and she had a personal problem." He stopped short and smiled at her, noting her hat and frock. "I'm forgetting my party manners. Sorry. You should circulate. You shouldn't waste it all on a mere husband."

"I'd planned dinner at home."

"You shouldn't have. I have to go back to the plant."

"Then why did you come?"

"I came because I knew you wanted me to put in an appearance."

Her anger rose so quickly and furiously that she was afraid of it.

Porter said, "I didn't mean that quite the way it sounded, Bee. You . . . you haven't touched your drink."

Don't be angry, she thought. Don't shout at least. Don't be the outraged wife. Don't, above all, be the wife who argues or weeps at parties. Oh, Porter, I love us and I'm sorry for us. I'm lost, and I can't find us!

His face was attentive. "I won't leave until you do."

"I didn't mean to be childish about it. It isn't this I care about. It's . . ."

Patiently he said, "I know. I should have told you. The point is I didn't know myself until six o'clock that I had to go back. I realize it isn't much fun for you, Bee."

Fun! Why do you insist upon that word in connection with me, she thought? I don't want fun. I want to be your wife. I want that old feeling of permanence with you—of safety and comfort and intimacy.

A man came by then and took her arm and led her away, saying, "Caught with your husband at a party? That will never do! You'll get yourself talked about!"

She saw David then. David and Libby standing in the foyer. David wore his topcoat and had his hat in his hand, and he was saying good-bye to Libby.

And for Libby there was nothing else in the world at this moment except David's saying goodbye. Oh, he was being very urbane about it, giving it the right touch, the light touch, but Libby knew he was doing more than merely leaving her party. He was leaving Libby, too, and her too much of everything way of life—too many people, too many diamonds with their cold glitter, too much concentration upon self, too much money, too much waste.

Libby removed her hand slowly from his, and something in her seemed to break, too. And though Beatrice couldn't hear what they were saying, she knew they were acting as adult people do at a time like this with that terrible courtesy that suffocates the sounds of grief and desolation. Libby, sleek, streamlined, loyal, temperamental; popular Libby impervious to love? Look now, Beatrice thought. Look at Libby's face above the glittering gown, and see her losing the only man she's wanted since Dick. How still she stands with her hands limp at her sides while he walks away. How still, how lonely she is midst this too much of everything.

Beatrice went to her at once.

Libby took a deep troubled breath. Unsmiling she said, "Hello, Bee dear. I saw you but I haven't been able to reach you."

"I can't stay. Porter has to go back to the plant."

"Does he?" She seemed numb. "Bee. No, never mind. Skip it. No one will miss me if I go to my room. I despise myself, but I don't know how to be different." She was trembling. "Words! Words! Oh, why don't they all go home? Why did I do such a foolish thing? At a time like this of universal bewilderment and want—Oh, God."

ACRES OF DIAMONDS

You've heard the story of the "Acres of Diamonds"... how the young man set out in search of his fortune ... how he traveled all over th world ... but all the while with no appreciable increase in the size of his fortune ... and later in life he returned to his home community... There to find... Acres of Diamonds.

Today it is a fact that a lot of bargain-wise but foot-foolish individuals go far afield from their home community to buy the same merchandise that is offered right here at home for the same or less money.

Such merchandise as nationally advertised brands of foods, clothing, appliances, autos, drugs, are carried in abundance by Hilltop individually owned stores. Most of these items are standard in price. The local dealer is in a position to give the same quality merchandise at the same low price ... the only difference is that you don't have to trudge around miles away from home to do your shopping.

Doing your buying from local Hilltop individual business firms is much easier than making a trip to town ... far more parking space available out here ... you get away from the bustling crowds in this hot weather ... you are dealing with a neighbor and you are an individual, not just another cash register bell ringer.

And too, don't overlook the fact that every time you make a purchase from a Hilltop individual firm you are making a stronger community of which you can be proud.

It is the individual business man of the community that serves on the committees that get things done for the community ... the same things that increase property values here ... the same things that make for better living conditions.

Your dollars spent with the chain store or downtown business firms contributes nothing to this strengthening of the community.

Yes, sir ... there are "Acres of Diamonds" right here on the Hilltop just waiting for you to pick them up. So why take the time and trouble to go elsewhere in search of savings!

Play Opens in Y Intermediate Loop

Last Thursday's opening of the Hilltop YMCA Intermediate League saw two fairly one-sided games with the Wildcats overwhelming Burgess Avenue EUB, 28-to 5, and Highland Avenue Friends thumping the Hilltop YMCA, 14 to 6.

Redman and Kershaw divided the pitching chores for the Wildcats with Underwood going all the way for the Burgess EUB team. Dave Templeton was the umpire.

Wilkes and Lantz were the Highland Avenue hurlers while Urban and McCoy were toiling on the mound for Hilltop Y. Chuck Fazio umpired the contest.

League standing:

	W	L
Wildcats	1	0
Hilltop "Y"	0	1
Burgess EUB	0	1

Tomorrow's schedule: Burgess EUB vs. Highland Friends on Westgate diamond No. 2; Wildcats vs. Hilltop Y on Westgate diamond No. 3. Both games are scheduled for 5:15 p. m.

AUTO HITS WAGON

Clarence Walters, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Walters, 160 N. Guilford-av, suffered cuts about the head Sunday, when the small wagon in which he was riding was struck by an auto in the 1200 block of W. Mound-st. Fire Department emergency squadmen took the boy to Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Bus Service Is Extended To Wilson-rd

The Scioto Bus Co., owned and operated by Joseph E. Jolliet between Columbus and Hilliards, has obtained an extension of its franchise to include the Wilson-rd area and the Money-Back Addition.

The bus line offers approximately 45-minute service from Hilliards to the American Bus Lines terminal at 214 S. Third-st. Twenty-five minute service from San Margherita to downtown, 30-minute service from Money-Back and 15-minute service from Valleyview. Special schedules are followed each Monday and on Sundays and holidays.

Printed schedules are available at the American Bus Lines terminal on S. Third-st.

Mr. Jolliet hopes to be able to announce a special summer schedule to the Hilltop Swimming Pool shortly.

DEATHS

Burial was in Oakdale Cemetery, Marysville.

Mrs. Lizzie Brain

Funeral services for Mrs. Lizzie Brain, 82, formerly of 121 Chicago-av, who died June 22 in a Columbus hospital, were conducted by Rev. Frank Roberts at 1:30 p. m. Saturday in the Jerry Spears Funeral Home.

She is survived by a brother, George Parshler, 110 N. Ogden-av, and a sister, Emma Parshler of Columbus.

Burial was in Green Lawn Cemetery.

Motorcycle Officer Struck by Auto In Broad-st Traffic

Motorcycle Officer Stanley Krzeckowski, 25, of 2819 Hiawatha-av, suffered body abrasions Saturday afternoon when he was struck by an auto while riding west in W. Broad-st at Sylvan-av, police reported.

Driver of the auto, which was also traveling west, was Herbert Hoyt of New Rome. Firemen took Patrolman Krzeckowski to Mt. Carmel Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my son, Robert M. Tresenrider, who was killed in New Guinea, June 26, 1944.

Friends may think I have forgotten
When at times they see me smile
They little know the heartaches
That the smile hides all the while
Days of sadness still go before me
Secret tears do often flow
But memory keeps him ever near me
Tho' he died five years ago.

Mother

GIRL SCOUT
News Notes - - Activities

By Pat Martindale

At a recent St. Aloysius neighborhood Girl Scout committee meeting Mrs. Joe Gregory was elected neighborhood chairman, Mrs. Fred Balthaser, assistant chairman, and Mrs. Pat Martin, secretary-treasurer.

The new by-laws were set up and approved. Mrs. Bradfute was the guest speaker. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Marie Kenny.

Brownie troops 250 and 251 and Girl Scout Troops 248 and 249 entertained the PTA at their May meeting, with songs and dances. Each troop displayed its handicraft made over the past six months.

A communion breakfast in honor of the Girl Scouts graduating from St. Aloysius School and the Brownies who made their first Holy Communion was served Sunday, June 5.

Monday, June 6, the four troops assembled in the school annex to pay a tribute of thanks to the eight teachers of the school for their cooperation with the scouts the past year.

Both Brownie and Girl Scouts are making preparations to attend day camp at the Clime farm from July 11 to 19. This will end the Scout and Brownie activities until September.

A special meeting for all Brownies, 250 and 251, leaders and assistants, who are attending day camp will be held Wednesday, July 6, in the annex at 2 p. m. for last minute details. On Saturday, May 28, Troop 248 held an all day picnic at Camp Ken Jockety. They were accompanied by leaders, Mrs. Reinhard, Mrs. Balthaser, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Close.

On May 18 Brownie Troop 250 went on an outing to Glenwood Park. The girls took nose bag lunches.

On May 25 a May queen crowning took place on the lawn of the leader, Mrs. McAndrews. Mary Jaquay, co-leader, assisted with the ceremony.

Scout Joan Hoover of Troop 249 broke her ankle while on a picnic, June 1, at West Gate Park. She is convalescing at home.

Brownie Nancy Drake of Troop 251 and her mother, Co-leader Stella Drake, have moved out of the St. Aloysius district and will transfer to a Bexley neighborhood.

On Sunday, June 12 and 19, the four troops assisted at a special reparation for St. Aloysius Church.

In Roller Derby

CARL PAYNE, a native of Columbus, is one of the nationally ranked roller skaters who will appear in Columbus with the Roller Derby when it opens its fourth annual outdoor showing in Red Bird stadium, July 5 and continues through July 20. It goes nightly at 8:15.

Judging Tomorrow In Fox Food Shop Chicken Contest

Tomorrow is the day scores of Hilltop youngsters have been awaiting ever since last Easter season when the Fox Food Shop, 2422 W. Broad-st, distributed free chicks to the community's children.

Tomorrow is judging day. The time is 3 p. m. At that hour, the judges will decide which of the hundreds of chicks given away just before Easter has thrived best and is now the best chicken of them all.

Those youngsters who had bad luck in their chick-raising endeavor will not be shut out of the festivities tomorrow. Even if they lost their chicks, they still are eligible for the free treat to be given all the youngsters who entered the contest last April.

a 32nd degree Mason in the Scottish Rite class, bearing the name of Hilltopper's 33rd degree "Judge Randall Class," at the downtown temple in 1947.

Mr. Goodall's Masonic work began in 1938, and he was "raised" to a Master Mason in May, 1938, and in 1941 was elected to West Gate Chapter and Council, respectively, since which time his advancement has been rapid. He also is a knight in Columbus Commandery (Knight Templar).

He is active in Eastern Star circles, and officially is associate patron in the Robert Morris Chapter of the Stars which meets in West Gate Temple.

Member of the Universal Craftsmen Council of Engineers (Capital City Council No. 46), Mr. Goodall, who is by occupation a stationary engineer, is active in this body.

Member of Glenwood Methodist Church, the 47-year-old high priest resides with his wife and daughter, Patricia, at the Guernsey-av address.

Youthful, 36-year-old John Herron, whose meteoric rise in Masonry is little short of phenomenal, climbed the Masonic ladder of progress in about seven years.

During the year 1942 Mr. Herron was initiated in a host of Masonic groups including Blue Lodge, West Gate Chapter (of which he is now key officer) and Mount Vernon Commandery (Knight Templar).

The following year he was made a noble in the Aladdin Temple Mystic Shrine.

In addition to his Masonic activities, Mr. Herron holds top-flight spot as commander of the Columbus unit of the U. S. Power Squad.

He operates a grocery under his name at 879 N. High-st. As a boy on the Hilltop he attended West Broad Street School, moved away, then returned to the Hilltop in 1941.

He resides with Mrs. Herron and their two children, Jerry, 10, and Donn, 8, at 379 S. Roys-av.

Westgate Chapter officers, in addition to High Priest Goodall, include: John M. Herron, king; Karl Swisher, scribe; Bill Greene, captain of host; Fletcher Wright, principal sojourner; Arnold Durbin, royal arch captain; Stephen Nemes, master of third veil; Paul Sheets, master of second veil; Cranston Williams, master of first veil; Harry Albright, guard; Ernie Gresh, senior steward; James Norris, junior steward; Kenneth Sharadin, secretary, and John Nuber, treasurer.

Westgate Council officers, in addition to Herron as master, are: Arnold Durbin, deputy master; Fletcher Wright, principal conductor of work; Harry Mock, captain of the guard; Ralph Gill, conductor of council; Stephen Nemes, steward; Harry Albright, sentinel; William Bain, chaplain; Frost Bratt, treasurer, and Kenneth Sharadan, recorder.

"Since the things you want are always in the rear, this model has a door in the back."

The way ordinary refrigerators are built may be funny to the cartoonist who raids the refrigerator at night. But it's not so funny to his wife—or to any woman—who spends so much of her day playing "put-and-take" or "hide-and-seek" with foods in her refrigerator. Not so with the millions of women who own Crosleys!

Only CROSLEY gives you the SHELVADOR*

Every Crosley refrigerator has the Shelvador... the wonderful Shelvador, designed by a woman in the first place—the amazing Shelvador that doubles your "front-row" refrigerator space... triples your bottle storage capacity... stores constantly needed foods within fingertip reach... keeps little things from "getting lost"!

Why buy any old-fashioned refrigerator? Instead, get a new 1949 Shelvador—designed for practical use—planned for complete refrigeration service—built for long, trouble-free, economical operation—styled for "proud-kitchen" beauty—priced for every budget.

Come in and see the 8 handsome 1949 Crosley models—all with the Shelvador. You'll see why it's fun (instead of "funny") to own a Crosley!

Concert In Park Is Rescheduled For Wednesday

The concert by the Columbus Federation of Musicians Band, which was rained out by a heavy downpour at Westgate Park Sunday night, has been deferred to Wednesday night, July 6, at 8 o'clock, in the same park.

The first of the series (it was to have been the second) was scheduled for last night at Goodale Park.

As first announced for Westgate; the program was to include many operatic arrangements; baritone solos by Richard Wilson, and instrumental solos by two West High School lads, a trombone number by John Neff and a trumpet solo by Richard Neff. They reside in Valleyview with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Neff. Sam Giammarco is conductor. The young instrumentalists are his pupils.

Powell Ave. Boy Made a Sergeant At German Base

Douglas Thomson, son of M. E. Thomson, 54 N. Powell-av, has been promoted to sergeant in the Air Force at his station in Furstenfeldbruck, Germany, his family has been informed.

Sgt. Thomson was graduated from West High School in 1947, has been in the service two years and is now serving with the 22nd Fighter Squadron (Jet) attached to a bomber group at the base in Germany.

Children's Summer Clothing Asked In Volunteers' Appeal

An unusual need for children's summer clothes has come to the attention of the Volunteers of America, according to Lt. Colonel Susan Thom, director of the local post of the organization. "We find many children in our vicinity in desperate need of shorts, playsuits and summer dresses," the colonel states, "and we're hoping our Columbus friends who have growing children can send us their cast-offs."

The Volunteers of America has an extensive repair and sewing shop in the headquarters building, 379 W. Broad-st, for salvaging old clothing and furniture.

Crosley Shelvador To Be Presented At Bean Dinner

One of the highlights of the Hilltop Bean Dinner July 27 will be the presentation for the big Crosley Shelvador refrigerator to be given away during the afternoon festivities.

The presentation will be made by the Hilltop's Crosley dealers, the Better Home Center, 2775 W. Broad-st, and the Nelson Appliance Store, 2289 W. Broad. Either dealer will gladly furnish information about the presentation to any person who inquires.

Information about the presentation also may be obtained at the office of the Hilltop Record, 2466 W. Broad-st.

Special Deadlines For Tuesday Record

Because of the Fourth of July holiday Monday, special copy deadlines will be observed by the Record for Tuesday's edition.

Deadline for classified advertising copy for Tuesday will be at 10 a. m. Saturday. Club and society news also will be accepted up to 10 a. m. Saturday.

Places You Often Pass — (No. 1 of a Series)

Hospital Population Has Equalled Hilltop's

By Myron T. Seifert

Almost as many persons have undergone treatment at the Columbus State Hospital during its history, as now reside on the Hilltop proper.

Exactly 20,131 men and 16,854 women have been admitted to the hospital, records there show.

Housed in the building, largest of its kind in the world, are 2400 patients who are receiving the finest attention and treatment known to medical science.

Folks from every walk of life have found a haven of rest and security here, and friends and relatives of each patient have known a degree of satisfaction that the patient is receiving every humane care that only a trained, skilled staff can give.

Dr. J. F. Bateman, superintendent of the colossal institution reflects with pardonable pride that during the past several years, the hospital has been equipped with surgery, x-ray facilities on a par with other hospitals, and is administered by an expertly trained staff which has a thorough knowledge of mental problems.

Large Staff Is Active

In addition to Dr. Bateman, who is performing a splendid job as director, eight full-time psychiatrists, two resident physicians, three medical assistants, two full time psychologists, five social workers, and a visiting staff of 12 active consultants show the extent to which the Hilltop hospital is enabled to care for its patients.

Many of the patients are received at the hospital under the "voluntary commitment" plan, asking the well-qualified staff on the job there to make a diagnosis of their condition, and to prescribe treatment for their difficulties.

Last year, for example, 783 were admitted to the hospital, many of whom asked voluntarily for a check-up, and of this number more than 56 per cent were discharged.

In addition to the staff, enumerated above, the Gray Ladies of the American Red Cross, add much to the lives of the patients, and a host of nurses, attendants, and other employes make their respective contributions.

Therapy Program Conducted

A program in occupational and recreational therapy is carried on under expert guidance is adding much to improve and rehabilitate the lives of many.

Certain pertinent facts, regarding the hospital, may be revealed to Hilltop residents.

The entire institution covers an area of 342 acres; the hospital proper is situated on a foundation that is one and one-fourth miles in circumference.

Yearly operating expenditure of the vast enterprise is $1½ million, of which almost 50 per cent is for "personal services."

Last year, total cost per patient averaged $2.15 daily.

Twenty-three per cent of the food consumed by the patients including vegetables, fruit and poultry, is raised at the Hilltop hospital plot.

Rehabilitation Replaces "Housing"

The hospital is no longer a housing unit, where insane people are isolated from society, but now it has evolved into a gigantic service, where all who have a mental complex may receive help and succor in an atmosphere such as one might find in any present-day hospital.

Next time, you pass the Hilltop hospital, reflect on the hundreds of patients who are hospitalized, and the legion of souls who are being rehabilitated under the direction of Dr. Bateman and his staff of skilled physicians.

Dr. Bateman decided to become a physician while in the seventh grade of school. From the beginning of his medical career, Dr. Bateman was interested in mental cases.

The physician was born in Columbus. He was educated in Ohio, Cornell, Northwestern Universities and the University of Cincinnati. Before coming to the local institution in January, 1937, Dr. Bateman practiced at Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati.

Part of Community

When asked if he had a special message to the people of the Hilltop, Dr. Bateman replied:

"We, that is the employes of this hospital, feel that we're very much a part of the Hilltop and we would like for the Hilltop to consider us as members of the community."

The first asylum for the insane stood on the north side of E. Broad-st, about a mile east of the State House. It was built about 1838 and held in those days over 300 patients. It was destroyed by fire on the night of Nov. 18, 1868, six patients' lives were lost at that time.

After an act and appropriation by the State legislature to rebuild it—and even with the work under way—the plans were changed, and a tract of land containing more than 300 acres was purchased from William S. Sullivant, part of which was then known as Sullivant's Hill, on the north side of the National Pike (now Broad-st) about three miles west of Columbus. The price paid was $100,000. This was to be the new location of the hospital.

Parade For Occasion

On July 4, 1870, a consecration service was held. Among participants were officers of Grand Lodge of Masons. The service was presided over by Gov. R. B. Hayes. A street parade was held in Columbus in honor of the occasion, in which the state officials, fire department, visiting Masonic lodges, and others took part. The name of the location was changed from "Sullivant's Hill" to "Glenwood."

On September 1, 1870, excavation for the main building was begun, with appropriate ceremonies, during which Mr. Sullivant threw out the first shovel full of dirt.

The name of the institution was changed to the Central Asylum for the Insane. After its completion, the first regular patients were received on Sept. 7, 1877. Dr. Richard Gunday, was the first superintendent, but remained only about a year, and was succeeded by Dr. W. W. Ellsbury.

Some of the men working on the building lived with their families in small cottages on the grounds.

House Was Office Building

The house on the north side of Broad-st near Midland-av, occupied then by Dr. Williams, was used as an office building by the administration board, and stood north of the front entrance to the main building.

Most of the brick used in construction of the building was made at the Jones & Co. brick yard, which was just opposite on the south side of the road, just east of what is now Whitethorne-av and occupied a strip of about 33 acres, running through to Sullivant-rd on the south. Whitethorne-av was then a township road and ran between the brick yard and a strip of woods then owned by Mr. Thomas, who lived at the time on the west side of this road, about 200 yards south of the National pike.

East of the brick yard, along the south part, had grown up quite a hazelnut patch, which was an attractive place for boys at the proper season. Not far from this, on the south side of Sullivant-rd, stood Gill's saw mill, which did quite a business in this line.

Davidson vs. the Bull

It was in a pasture field between Thomas' woods and what is now Highland-av, that Hiram Davidson, now living on Highland-av had an experience with a young Jersey bull.

He was crossing his field on his way home, when he espied said J.B. coming toward him with his head lowered in a way that foretold hostility. Mr. Davidson suddenly resolved to adopt, without furthernotice, "safety first" methods, which resolution he put into execution by taking refuge in a nearby small hickory tree the lower limbs of which presented an inviting opportunity.

Just as he had reached a place "high and dry," Mr. J.B. took possession of all that territory under the tree and proceeded to surround it and lay plans for his "trenches", etc. After this he adopted the seige method and spent his time gazing up into the tree at Mr. D., with a longing desire to give him the "once over," while Mr. D. sat there wishing for a good supply of the products of the brickyard.

After an hour and a half of "watchful waiting" the seige was declared off by Mr. J. B., who relinquished his strategetic position and sauntered away, when Mr. D. came down from his roost and made for the nearest fence about 500 feet away.

Hilltoppers Plan Gala Holiday For 'Fourth' Week-End

Hilltoppers will be taking off in all directions Saturday for the second three-day holiday in five weeks. Saturday and Sunday will be but build-up days for the climactic Independence Day celebration Monday.

Three-day fishing trips by the scores, picnics by the hundreds and "see Ohio" trips by the thousands will clog the highways all over the state.

Special police safety campaigns will endeavor to keep over-eager motorists under control in an effort to keep highway accidents at a minimum.

Popular fishing spots like Buckeye Lake, Indian Lake, Lake Erie and the many lakes in the Muskingum Conservancy District are expecting overflow crowds of fishermen. (Anglers would do well to reserve boats immediately by phone or telegram.) Lou Maish and Bob Postle of the Hilltop Sporting Goods Store, 2463 W. Broad-st, are laying in a heavy supply of live bait for the heavy holiday demand, but urge fishermen to call in their orders in advance, if possible, to insure against disappointment.

The two principal fireworks displays scheduled for the week-end on the Hilltop will be at Red Bird Stadium Monday and at Miles West Broad Theater Saturday night.

At Red Bird Stadium, a double header, starting at 5:30, will be played Monday. A vaudeville show is planned at dusk after the close of the first game. A giant fireworks display is planned to follow immediately after the vaudeville show for the benefit of youngsters who might be too tired to stay through the second game waiting for the pyrotechnic display.

The fireworks at Miles West Broad will come immediately after the showing of the first main feature Saturday night, the management announces.

The Hilltop Swimming Pool on Valleyview-dr will be a mecca for hundreds of Hilltoppers bent on beating the current heat wave. Bob Case, manager of the pool, expects a near-record attendance at the pool all during the long holiday week-end.

Then, too, there is a large segment of the population which will spend the holiday in its own back yards, sipping tall, cool drinks and letting the rest of the world go by. And that doesn't sound so bad.

Will We Be Seeing You July 5?

(An Editorial)

What do you suppose anyone can say that will make you remember to drive with special care all during the long Fourth of July week-end coming up?

Should we pelt you with pathos, must we tug at your heart-strings to make you alert to the lurking danger of death on the highways all during the three-day holiday period? Or should we try to instill black fear in your heart?

What can we say that will persuade you to spend an extra fifteen minutes on your holiday trip in order that you might save a life—maybe even your own?

Should we remind you that we have poured everything we have, including our love and our life's blood, into our children and if you kill one of them you might as well have killed us, too?

Or should we tell you stories of brave little kids who will never walk again because of some drivers who couldn't spare a few seconds?

How can we persuade you that you do have a little extra time; that if you don't have a minute to spare you have simply picked out too long a trip to compress into a three-day holiday?

Do we sound like a kill-joy? Do you think we're trying to spoil your fun?

Well, ask yourself now: "Do I really have fun driving at break-neck speed? Do I really enjoy the trip, or do I get home feeling a nervous wreck?"

But here is the really important question: "Did you ever hear of anyone enjoying a holiday in a hospital emergency room — or a morgue?"

Fieldhouse Near Completion at Westgate Park

The Westgate field house should be completed by July 8, Nick J. Barack, City Recreation director, estimated last week. Work is already well underway.

The one-story concrete block building, when completed, will include a storage room and another room of similar size to serve as an office for playground and park supervisors.

Mr. Barack said that the composition roof is already completed. Work to be done yet include the cement floor play area, which will be installed between the two open sides of the shelterhouse. This area will be used for games and picnics during inclement weather and will serve as an outdoor stage for theatrical productions.

As a decorative touch, the new fieldhouse will feature a stone wall across the front of the building.

Contractors for the project are Brock, Saunders and Westlake.

Sullivant-av Job Of Repaving Is Near Completion

Work on the Sullivant-av paving job in the 15-block stretch from Hague-av to Derrer-rd is progressing rapidly and probably will be ready for use in another fortnight, it appeared today.

The eight-inch concrete base for the 40-foot roadway already is complete all the way west to Derrer-rd and the laying of the bituminous surface material already has been started by the Complete General Construction Co., contractors for the improvement.

As of yesterday, laying of the surface had progressed to a point west of Huron-av and was moving rapidly. The concrete curb has been poured for the entire project and the completion of the surfacing is the only major item remaining to be finished.

Just Like in the Funnies!

HITS HOMER FOR OUT

By Dave Miller

The Columbus Air Conditioning Intermediate Baseball team in the local Intermediate Knothole League was allowed a protest of its game with Camp Chase at Westgate here last week by League Director Bob Burgett.

The replay has not yet been set, and probably will not be until the end of the scheduled season.

The reason for the protest by the Air Conditioning team came in the final inning of the game. It was a very fine ball game, with Jack Wihl of Camp Chase and Vernie Feen of CAC engaging in a tight pitchers' duel. The game at the time of the disputed play was a scoreless tie.

After Air Conditioning had been retired in order in the top of the seventh (and last) inning, Camp Chase came to bat. Feen showed signs of tiring as, with one away, Ron McElwee, West High junior, sent a drive to right-center and it looked like a game-ending home run. However, a fine peg by Right-fielder Eddie Valentino saved the day, and held "Mac" to a triple.

Jimmy Vincent attempted a squeeze play, but the bunt was too hard-hit, holding McElwee on third, with two gone. Chuck Leibensperger, Camp Chase third baseman, hit Feen's 2-1 pitch for the apparent game-winning blow, a drive that carried clear over the center-fielder's head, and rolled some 75 feet.

McElwee, representing the winning run, scored easily, but Leibensperger missed first base, and after he had cleared the sacks for a home run to end the game, First Baseman Jerry Martin called for the ball, appealed on the missing of first base, and Leibensperger was called out.

The Camp Chase team, however, disregarded the umpire's call to resume play and left. Therefore the CAC team protested, and of ocurse was in the right, because the hitter must either reach first base or he is out, thereby nullifying the run by McElwee.

Hilltop Busy with Fourth Preparations

Plans and preparations were being made on the Hilltop this week for the big Fourth of July week-end. Most families are planning informal parties or picnics at public parks. Several plan to go out of town, and many indicated they would cool off in local swimming pools.

The N. E. Maberrys, 735 Wiltshire-rd, are planning a pre-Fourth of July celebration. They will entertain with an open house party tomorrow night for friends and neighbors. Guests of honor will be Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Maberry of Jonesville, S. C., and formerly of the Hilltop.

Mississippi Cruise

Just back from a vacation in Chicago and St. Louis is Mrs. Rebecca Nelson, 310 S. Harris-av. Best part of the trip according to Mrs. Nelson was a long cruise down the Mississippi. Accompanying her from Columbus were Mrs. Edna Koch and Mr. and Mrs. L. Wood Ford.

Vacationing in Florida this week are Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Davis, 10 N. Harris-av. Their two children, Donna and Jimmy, accompanied them. Almost crossing paths enroute with the Davis family were Mrs. Sara Hartzler and her son, Myron of Miami, Flo., who are visiting this week on the Hilltop. They're

Hilltop Brides Wed In June Decorative Ceremonies

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Medlick

FOLLOWING THEIR WEDDING Saturday at St. Aloysius Church the new Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Midlick were feted with a wedding breakfast at the Riviera and a reception that evening for 500 guests. Music for the dancing, which followed, was furnished by Ziggy Coyle and his orchestra.

Spring flowers, palms and lighted candles decorated the altar of St. Aloysius Church Saturday for the wedding of Miss Rosemary Finnerty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard P. Finnerty, 41 Midland-av, and Mr. Raymond Joseph Midlick, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Midlick, 1967 Fairmont-av. Father William Maloney officiated at the ceremony. Rev. Schorr, a close friend of the bridal couple, was present in the sanctuary.

Lighted tapers and white satin ribbon lined the center aisle to the altar, where the bride was escorted on the arm of her father. She was attired in a white satin and lace bridal gown, fashioned with a bib of Venetian lace and a mandarin neckline. The deep sleeves of her gown terminated with bands of Venetian lace at the wrists. Her fingertip veil of English illusion was held in place with a headpiece of Chantilly lace trimmed with seed pearls. A rhinestone cross pinned at her throat completed her costume. The bride carried a crystal rosary and a mother of pearl prayer book topped with a white orchid and stephanotis.

Rainbow colored marquisette and lace gowns and matching picture hats were worn by the bride's five attendants. Attending her were Miss Martha Jane Finnerty, maid of honor and sister of the bride; Miss Loretta Frankenberg, Miss Alice Marie Midlick, sister of the groom, Miss Mary Margaret Murphy, and Miss Julie Ricenute. All attendants carried pink carnations and wore rhinestone necklaces, gifts of the bride.

Mr. James Jess Midlick was best man for his brother. Seating the guests were Mr. Earl Bland, Mr. Ralph Midlick, brother of the groom, Mr. Robert O'Neill, and Mr. Robert Rice.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast for the bridal party was held in the Venetian Room of the Riviera. At eight in the evening a reception was held for five hundred guests at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Music was furnished by Ziggy Coyle and his orchestra. Mrs. F. Holycross and Mrs. Allen McFadden were hostesses.

The bride is a graduate of Holy Rosary High School and Mr. Midlick is a graduate of West High School.

For a wedding trip to Michigan the bride wore a navy suit of silk with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

GLADIOLI AND CARNATIONS formed a decorative setting for the wedding June 12 of Miss Janice Busch and Mr. Richard W. Fenn at Glenwood Methodist Church. The new Mrs. Fenn is the daughter of Mr. Robert E. Busch and the late Mrs. Busch, 164 Whitethorne-av. Mr. Fenn is from Mansfield, Ohio.

An arrangement of red gladioli and white carnations in two large vases flanked by ferns and huckleberry palms formed a decorative setting for the candlelight wedding ceremony, June 12, of Miss Janice Busch and Mr. Richard W. Fenn at Glenwood Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Robert E. Busch and the late Mrs. Busch, 164 Whitethorne-av. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Fenn and the late Mr. William N. Fenn, 156 Carpenter-rd, Mansfield.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a period gown of heavy ivory satin with sleeves extending to points over the hands. Accentuating her gown was a sheer yoke edged with a wide bertha of Irish lace. The bouffant skirt ended in a long cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was held in place by a tiara of orange blossoms. The bride carried a cascade of pink roses.

She was attended by Miss Mildred Meal, maid of honor, who wore an American Beauty taffeta faille gown. Serving as flower girl was little Vicki Lee Carter.

Mr. James Smith of Mansfield was best man. Ushers were Mr. William Dundon and Mr. Karl Leupold.

Assisting at the reception held at the church immediately following the ceremony were Miss Carolyn Fenn, sister of the bride, Mrs. Charles F. Cooke, Mrs. Robert [illegible] and Mrs. Douglas Carter.

Crisp Cotton

Pink and black resort dress.

By VERA WINSTON

PINK AND BLACK checked sheer cotton is the timely choice for a nice day-into-evening dress and jacket for informal summer wear. The frock has a strapless top with crossed-over draped bustline. The skirt is gathered all around. The black velvet belt has a swashbuckle flared end. The tiny jacket is lined in black and has cap sleeves. It closes with three black buttons. This is a good little resort number too.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pindell, 255 N. Wheatland-av, a daughter, June 27, at White Cross Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hutt, 848 Chestershire-rd, daughter yesterday in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Looks Elaborate—Yet Economical

Extra! Extra! Warmer Weather Means Food Requirements Lessen!

Yes, we certainly should not eat as heavily as we did during cold weather. Our bodies do not require as much fuel and we feel sluggish if we continue our heavy meals after warm weather sets in.

An ideal menu for this time of year, that is both healthful and economical, could consist of a fruit salad, some frizzled beef on toast, roll and butter, your favorite beverage, and a light, yet nourishing delicacy such as a Fruit Cake Rennet Dessert to top it off.

You can give the last of your fruit cake (or almost any cake) a "new look" and your guests a "new delight" by turning the cake into delicious rennet desserts. This is really no left-over dish at all. It tastes and looks like a party dessert. The delicate custard-like texture of the rennet dessert revitalizes the cake and makes a very pleasing combination. All in all, this economical but still "elaborate looking" dessert provides just that needed "touch" to a very desirable warm-weather menu. Try it soon!

Fruit Cake Rennet Desserts

2 ordinary size pieces of fruit cake
2 cups milk (not canned)
1 package lemon rennet powder
¼ cup whipped cream, if desired

Divide fruit cake among 5 or 6 individual dessert glasses. Warm milk slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When COMFORTABLY WARM, (110° F.) not hot, remove at once from heat. Stir rennet powder into milk quickly until dissolved — not over one minute. Pour at once, while still liquid, into dessert glasses. Do not move until set — about 10 minutes. Then chill. Just before serving chilled rennet desserts, top with whipped cream and garnish with crumbled fruit cake.

Roller Derby Set July 5 to 20 At Red Bird Stadium

A public performance of skating that in little better than a fortnight brought about 75,000 people into Red Bird Stadium last summer is impending again. It's the Roller Derby, which opens at the Birds' stadium Tuesday night, July 5, to continue nightly through Wednesday, July 20.

It has developed, as a national attraction, to the point that its runs extend from coast to coast, and through the better part of the 12 months. In April there were battles royal between New York and Brooklyn teams at the 69th Regiment Armory in Manhattan.

The skaters work for straight salary and there is a percentage of the gross worked out so that at the end of every 148 games or about 21 weeks of total play, there is a pool which is equitably divided among the players. The salary of some of the skaters is said to run as high as $8000 a year, including their bonuses.

Billy Bogash is the head man of the training system and he himself is one of the best racing skaters extant. Every morning, after the Derbyites' 10 o'clock breakfast, they adjourn to the outdoor track and he and the veterans help with the training of the new participants who are constantly striving to break in.

Their yearly travels extend from New York to Los Angeles and from Seattle to Miami. Columbus was the site of the first outdoor staging of the Derby four years ago.

NO, those aren't typographical errors in the above title! Quick-frozen oysters are responsible — they put an "R" into every month. Time was when only those who lived fairly near the coast could enjoy this delicacy of the sea; but now, modern invention, in the form of quick-frozen foods, brings it to your table, as near as the corner grocery — any time of the year. Next time you want to serve a special supper dish, why not try Oysters au Gratin? Here is a dish that will do you proud.

Oysters au Gratin

2 tablespoons butter or other fat; 3 tablespoons flour; 1 cup milk; ¾ cup grated American cheese; ½ teaspoon salt; dash of pepper; ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; ½ cup finely diced celery; 2 tablespoons butter or margarine; 1 pint quick-frozen oysters; 1 cup buttered bread crumbs.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan and stir in flour. Add milk gradually, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese, salt, pepper, and Worcestershire sauce. Saute celery in 2 tablespoons butter until delicately browned and add to sauce; then add oysters. Turn into shallow greased baking dish and top with buttered crumbs. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) ■ minutes, or until crumbs are browned. Makes 6 servings.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

WHEN Richard Spong, now teaching at Michigan State, was undergraduate editor of the Dartmouth newspaper, he sent a Freshman cub to cover a wedding some miles outside Hanover. The bride—a Vassar graduate—informed the young reporter loftily, "You may say that when we return from our honeymoon, we will reside at the old manse."

The story the Freshman handed in to Spong read, "After their honeymoon, the young couple will dwell at the home of the bride's father."

The agent who handled Edna Ferber's very first novel, Dawn O'Hara, back in 1911, is Flora May Holly, now crowding eighty but still lecturing on current books, and cutting lively capers at the Stamford Women's Club. When Russell Janney journeyed there to lecture on his Miracle of the Bells, he vanished mysteriously on his way to the auditorium and was discovered some minutes later locked in the washroom. The committee persuaded Mr Janney it was an accident but Miss Holly has never since been entrusted with the key.

News of Rome

By Mrs. E. C. Sheets

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Flemming, Columbus, have purchased the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clements, 163 Lawrence-av. The Clements' are building a new home on Powhatan-av.

Verna and Ella Haubold, cousins of Mrs. Clements, are at present visiting Mrs. Clements and her mother, Mrs. Squire Lee, 164 Lawrence-av. They will visit other relatives near Chillicothe before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Perl Baughn, Bloomingburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Baughn, Washington C. H., and daughter, Shirley, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Grimm, Sunday.

About 40 guests attended the "As-You-Are" brunch held at the home of Mrs. Oscar Baker, Pasadena-av. Mrs. J. L. Coulter was assistant hostess. Taxi drivers for the occasion were Mrs. I. A. Thompson, Mrs. Harvey Rose, Mrs. A. B. Sampson, Mrs. Jack Elliott and Mrs. Joe Stormont.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Barnecut, Maple-dr, spent Sunday in Nelsonville.

Violet Salzgaber was a dinner guest Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lamb, Buena Vista-av. She and her sister, Betty, with their parents, left Monday by plane for the west coast, to visit another sister in Washington.

Mrs. Ernest Schroeder and children, Lawrence-av, are visiting her parents in Decatur, Ind.

Mrs. Coss and son, James Coss, mother and brother of Mrs. G. T. English, have returned to their home in Detroit, after spending several days with the English family, Pasadena-av.

The Ruth Circle of Columbia Heights Methodist Church will have its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. R. G. Barnecut, Maple-dr.

Carol Burns attended the Standard Oil Picnic, the guest of the Stormont family. The picnic was held at the Ohio Council of Churches grounds on Big Walnut.

The second "As-You-Are" brunch was held in the dining room of the Columbia Heights Church Tuesday morning. The hostesses were Mrs. W. G. Lamb, Mrs. R. G. Barnecut, Mrs. George Terry and Mrs. Oscar Baker. The taxi drivers were Mrs. Stormont, Mrs. Warner and Mrs. W. G. Lamb. These affairs are sponsored by the WSCS of the Columbia Methodist Church and the organization thanks the many who attend to help swell the refrigerator fund, as it is getting ready for the fairs.

Rea-Bow News

By Jo Ann Kidd

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Barber, 2021 Rea-av, and their children, Carol and Donald, went to Nelsonville Saturday. Mr. Barber left Mrs. Barber and the children at Nelsonville to visit all this week with relatives.

A picnic dinner was enjoyed Sunday when the families of Hobert Kidd and LeRoy Bradley got together for the first time in several years, being old time friends. The group included Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradley, Sue and Doris and Mrs. Mary Buswell of Gillivan, Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Kidd, Jimmie, Jo Ann and Bill of Vadis-st, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kidd, Nancy and Lanny of Hunt-av, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kidd, Karen, Tim and Terry of Rea-av, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Brandenberger of Whitehead-rd, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kidd and Mark Jason of Vadis-st and Mrs. Lou Kasper and Mary of Whitehead-rd. The picnic was held at Rea-Bow Hall due to weather conditions.

Mrs. Thomas Jordan of Vadis-st visited her sister, Mrs. Richard Dean, Saturday, who was in White Cross Hospital with a baby boy born last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Holobaugh and family of Blacklick spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Holobaugh on Whitethorne-av.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Morrow of 919 Clarendon-av were visited last week by Reba Morrow of Houston, Tex.

Some friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wolfe Sunday evening for a fish fry. Those who took part were Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson of Whitethorne-av, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brckamp and Kenny of Clarendon-av, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hoffman of Whitethorne-av, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Brandenberger of Whitehead-rd, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Graham, Midland-av, Hobert and Bob Kidd of Vadis-st, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kidd, Nancy and Lanny of Hunt-av, Mrs. Lulu Kasper and Mary Lou and Mr. and Mrs. George Wolfe, 856 Midland-av.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dickson and children of Clarendon-av visited Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Dickson and family of Amanda over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brokamp of Clarendon-av were visited over the week-end by Mr. and Mrs. Schendler and family of Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Underhill and family of Whitethorne-av attended a wedding shower Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kinsey at Irwin. The shower was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McCarty of Irwin, who were recently married.

George Wolfe of 856 Midland-av called the Record office last Friday to say that the report carried in last Thursday's Record that a Wolfe and Lacy family reunion was held June 19 at Lancaster was erroneous. The basket picnic held on that date by several members of the family was in no way a formal reunion, he said, adding that his family abandoned reunions at the outbreak of World War II.

Is Vaudeville Back Again to Stay? Television Tie-Up May Aid Variety

THE BIG HELLO—A happy "Hi-ya!" is waved to the audience as vaudeville comes back to the Palace.

LOOKS LIKE S. R. O.—A long queue of eager show-goers lines up at the ticket window of Palace theater.

By GILBERT SWAN
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—They'll be gathering again soon under Broadway's almost - forgotten "Ham Tree."

The "Ham Tree," for the information of a generation weaned on radio and movies, was a term applied to a spot in front of the Palace theater when it was the show window of American vaudeville.

There, in another era and on a vastly different-looking Broadway, once gathered a strangely assorted group of performers, who talked of manna from heaven, while willing to accept two-bits or the price of coffee-and-sinkers from any kindly disposed person who happened by with silver jingling in his pockets.

They were hoofers, without a sole to their shoes; song-and-dance men, jugglers, comedians, broken-down Shakesperean actors, character men and straight men, juveniles and heavies, magicians and clowns.

Meeting daily, they lied like troupers, and their colorfully phony dialogue has become part of American legend and literature, thanks to the Walter Winchells, the Mark Hellingers, the Jack Laits and the Sime Silvermans, the Jack Pulaskis, the Zits and others.

Only the Broadway veterans remember the "Ham Tree," or the characters who stood about boasting "how we knocked 'em cold in Duluth—and headed the bill for 30 weeks." To this day, even Jack Benny recalls in his programs that "They loved me in St. Joe—"

HOWEVER, all that ended, semi-officially, on May 2, 1932, when movies were added to "live show" programs. On Sept. 20, 1935, dancer Bill Robinson tapped off taps for the mecca of big time variety in America.

Thereafter, the Palace became haunted by such famous stage names as Weber and Fields, Willie and Gene Howard, Sophie Tucker, W. C. Fields, Leonore Ulrich, Maurice Barrymore and, later, Ethel and John Barrymore; the Four Cohans, the Avon Comedy Four—even the great Sara Bernhardt.

Now the Palace has brought back vaudeville from its long, long rest in memory's mausoleum. However, no one in the Broadway know-how is brave enough to predict that it will be the "big time" of yesteryear.

In fact, a Variety writer has expressed the fear that old-timers may have pitched their hopes too high, and feel somewhat let down when they compare "top bills" of yesteryear with a combination of feature pictures and budgeted programs of the revived variety shows.

However, since television and vaudeville already have crossed trails, a tie-up between video and variety stage shows is expected to figure importantly in future developments. In fact, an interchange of key video and stage attractions appears almost inevitable.

Whatever happens, anyone interested in the genesis of American vaudeville will have to begin with Baby Alice who, as the encyclopedia is my guide, weighed a mere pound-and-a-half. Billed with Alice was a stuffed mermaid, a chicken with a human face and, in good season, the Circassian beauties and a couple of guys named Weber and Fields.

THE BIRTHPLACE was Boston, and not Broadway. The year was 1883. The scene was a made-over candy store. The originator was a young circus performer with a lot of ambition and very little cash. His name was Benjamin Franklin Keith, and from that day to this the name Keith has been indelibly stamped on the old two-a-day, the movies, theaters and show business in general. Thus, there came the old Keith-Albee partnership and today RKO, otherwise Radio-Keith Orpheum.

It was two years after he had launched his museum-that-became-vaudeville business that young B. F. Keith met Edward P. Albee.

They launched the Gaiety Opera company, presenting Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, imported from England and a hot box-office attraction at the time. By 1886 they had a theater in Providence, R. I., and a new show house in Philadelphia.

In the next 40 years, this chain became a national network. Almost every large and middle-sized city in the nation was on the "hook-up".

WHEN, IN 1911, Keith died, vaudeville had become, with films, the nation's most popular entertainment medium. In 1928 there were more than 1,000 theaters with "vode programs;" the daily attendance averaged about ten million and some 15,000 entertainers were employed on the many programs.

In the course of the passing years Alex Pantages came into the vaudeville picture with his own circuit. So did F. F. Proctor and, also, Gus Sun with his famous old Ohio circuit.

However, costs had begun to upset the applecart; depression days were at hand; films began to move in; people began buying radios—and vaudeville went into rapid decline.

For 17 years it has been gone but not forgotten and, so think some New Yorkers, the day may not be so far off when some such word as "Televode" or "Vodevision" will be created to cover a new vaudeville-television set-up.

JOE BRIGGS
Says:

A collision is what occurs when two motorists go after the same pedestrian.

A collision may or may not be expensive to you; but if the law gives the "other fellow" the nod, you may be sued for a considerable amount of money. Driving without liability insurance is a foolish risk. This protection isn't expensive—and it pays dividends in peace of mind. Consult Joe Briggs, at 2596 Sullivant Ave. RA. 3194.

Summer Reading Club at Library Called '49ers'

The summer reading club of the Hilltop Branch Library will be called the "49ers" Club, in keeping with the centennial celebration of the 1849 gold rush, it was announced this week. To date more than 350 members have registered.

At the conclusion of the fifth week of the gold rush, 12 participants have completed the reading of 15 books and were each awarded a book bag. Successful prospectors include Barbara Bolen, Rita Ann Dorr, Robert Hansen, Philip Hoover, Fred Lanch, Dora Linn, Donna Johnson, Leona Linn, Elaine Marziuf, Wendell Rector, Arlene Smith and Judy Stelz.

All members reading 15 or more books will be awarded a reading certificate.

Modern Poetry

POET

A poet has died young and this is why:
The world streamed all undimmed into his eye . . .
Till the thinking of his mind
Rose in stealth to breathe him blind.
Now a poet has died young;
Bitter-breasted—
Weeping for the silence of his tongue.

Herman Salinger, in The Tanager.

Household Hint

If you are making a garment which is to be laundered, be sure that the buttons used are washable. Wearability of buttons should also be considered even if the garment is to be dry cleaned.

Writer Asks Universal Law To Govern Divorce in U. S.

By O. H. Craft

Society explodes while we build atom bombs. A weakness in our democratic processes is to let a recognized problem run its course until it becomes difficult or impossible of solution. Much thought and discussion has been given to the divorce problem, which shows no signs of abating. There is probably no one who would not agree that we ought to have a national law dealing with marriage and divorce, except possibly those who are in a position to do something about it.

People in California are fundamentally no different from those in New York. We deserve to be made fun of, when we have 48 different states, having as many different rules of procedure on a fundamental subject. As a result our divorce laws are not honestly adhered to.

A very large percentage of marriages are contracted in the urge and passion of physical attraction. If two people are sane enough under conditions of that kind that they wish to try marriage and life partnership, they have every right to do so. To deny them that right would result in free marriage.

But on the other hand, if at a later period in life, they find they have been unable to unite spiritually, then they should be permitted to decide for themselves (with proper provision for offspring, if any) whether or not they wish to continue the relationship, without being branded with collusion, or in any way being ostracised by a convention of society or rule of law that does not take into account honesty and sincerity.

Churches on the whole take strong stand against divorce on Biblical grounds. Many things Jesus was supposed to have said were based upon hearsay, and passed on to writers many years after the ministry of Jesus. But on the other hand if we accept it just as it is quoted to us, Jesus placed more emphasis on the spirit as the dominating factor in people's lives, and we have reason to believe that he preferred honesty and sincerity to all else.

Ministers and other functionaries will marry almost anyone who has been able to secure a marriage license, without regard to their fitness, or of their suitability, and yet they frown upon dissolving a relationship that becomes unbearable or impossible. Children being reared under unfavorable conditions are not being favored as is generally understood by enforced observance of the marriage relationship.

All of this is said with the thought that spiritual freedom and peace of mind is all important to the physical well being and its performance in a world of reality. Enforced cohabitation and all that it entails create more nervous wrecks among women than all other physical demands could produce, if the spiritual nature is being satisfied.

There is nothing finer than the ideal family relationship. It is the keystone of all society, but a better understanding of what underlies a life-long relationship and what it entails would have a profound effect upon the principals and offspring. Our educational institutions and our churches have missed the boat in not finding it worth while to include in their curriculum a place to point the way to a more auspicious beginning for the great venture of life.

Law may be necessary for defining property rights, but it is not necessary to those who are spiritually united. In the usual marriage ceremony there is a passage, "What God hath joined together let not man put asunder." It should read, "What God hath joined together man cannot put asunder." Human beings were created to be mated, and propagation is a product of a basic instinct. Spiritually attuned to people a physical quality that reaches out and quite beyond what sometimes seems to be a sombre environment.

A better understanding of what is involved in marriage, nation-wide marriage and divorce laws, would bring about an improvement in family life, and consequently fewer divorces.

The kittiwake is a common bird in Arctic America and on British coasts. Kittiwakes feed on fish and other marine animals, and make nests of seaweed and flotsam on rocky ledges.

U. S., BRITAIN TEAM UP IN AFRICA TO 'LIGHT UP THE DARK CONTINENT'

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—What once deserved to be called "darkest Africa" suddenly has been moved closer to the United States and planning rushes forward here for American-British teamwork in "lighting up the dark continent."

The proposal that Uncle Sam take over trusteeship of the Eritrea portion of Italy's defunct empire is only a single factor bringing Africa to the fore as a problem for this country. Military and economic strategy completes the picture in a big way.

The land of Stanley and Livingstone, the Belgian Congo, now is only four days from Miami, Fla., via the new Pan American Clipper service to Leopoldville, a city which already is reflecting American influence with numerous military and engineering experts there.

Belgium's lone colony is an attractive source for such wartime essentials as tin, tungsten, cobalt, manganese, and copper. There is also rubber, gold, and palm oil.

However, uranium is the biggest come-on of all. The United States and Great Britain now share the output, with us buying 58 per cent. When the atomic bomb first was being brewed here, Uncle Sam took it all.

LAST YEAR the United States paid $10,550,000 for 3,653 tons of uranium producing earth from which atomic bombs are made and atomic energy may be developed. Theoretically Russia also could bid and buy some of the uranium, but since none goes there it is assumed that Stalin and company have other fish to fry in Siberia and Czechoslovakia, all of which makes the Congo the more important to the Anglo-American team.

The extent of United States participation in the development of Africa also is a dollars and cents proposition receiving the careful consideration of the Bureau of the Budget and congressional experts.

ECA in Britain has allocated about $1,650,000 to the African program, and another $1,500,000 is to be spent there. Diamonds, gold, strategic minerals, and peanuts top the list of objectives.

Twenty-six American scientists, most of them geologists, will be sent to Africa to prospect for precious and utilitarian minerals, and to assist in developing the peanut project which stirs controversy both here and in London, where it is called the "ground nut project." British food planners intend to use the rich oil to bolster the nutritional balance of the English diet.

IMMEDIATE military objectives are regarded here as being quite as important economic exploitation. The United States Army radio station at Asmara in Eritrea is the key point in American diplomatic communications east and west.

An air base has been developed also at Asmara by the British and Americans as an important defense adjunct to the Red Sea area. England views this point as the eastern terminus of its new "lowered African lifeline" which is to replace the more precarious Mediterranean route that for centuries has been a keystone of British diplomacy.

A proposed 3,000-mile superhighway has been laid out from Nigeria on the South Atlantic through French Equatorial Africa, the Egyptian Sudan and ending in the Kenya colony.

England has so completely plunked for Africa as the salvation of its future that it is rumored here that the British have chosen the center of the continent as the site of an elaborate hideout for the royal family in the event of a World War III rather than Canada which once was regarded as more logical.

THE BRITISH are calling on all their notable talents for colonizing which enabled them to gain the upper hand in the struggle for the New World, and 500 openings for new farmers in the Kenya crown colony are rapidly being filled.

These twentieth century pioneers will be flown to the places where they are expected to take root as tenaciously as did the colonizers along our eastern seaboard, and they will be backed up with an equivalent of about $10,000 in tools and supplies for each family.

Although the history of north Africa is ancient, the rest of the continent, which is the largest land mass in the southern hemisphere, has been opened up in a striking parallel with exploration of North America. The adventures of African explorers fired Columbus to take his voyage that discovered America.

Stanley and Livingstone penetrated "darkest Africa" about the time of our Civil war. In a curious historical parallel with the present, the highly developed nations of the world have almost always turned to Africa in a search for natural resources after every major war.

THAT STRETCHES back to the Romans and even Alexander the Great. Europeans swarmed into Africa after the Napoleonic wars and after World War I. France and England staged a rivalry there comparable with the way they contested in North America.

Now there are nearly 10,000 United States citizens in Africa exploring and developing, and American investments in Liberia and elsewhere are extensive.

Experts consider Africa along with Asia as the greatest unexploited area for natural resources in the world, and it is shaping up as the Anglo-American ace-in-the-hole as compared with Russia's vast Siberia.

Some of the discoveries of recent years in the way of natural resources are sensational. In northern Rhodesia, a great outcropping of high quality coal has been found only 300 feet below the surface, containing enough to provide 4,000,000 tons a year for 500 years. Not far away is a "mountain" of iron ore with limestone nearby.

U. S. EYES ON AFRICA—American interest in Africa is at highest peak.

She Advertised A Drop Leaf Table; Found Ads Able

According to Mr. Webster's dictionary, the word "able" means capable, or having sufficient power.

That definition fits the "pulling power" of Record want ads to a "T," judging from the many reports we receive each week of the excellent results our advertisers are getting.

One of these reports came from Mrs. Charles H. Jones, 355 S. Chase-av, who offered a mahogany drop leaf table for sale in last Thursday's classified section. Four of our readers responded to her ad, and by 6 p. m. Thursday evening the table was sold.

If you haven't discovered for yourself the wonderful results that can be obtained with a Record want ad, why wait longer? Call RA. 1125 before 10 a. m. Saturday. You'll be glad you did!

Rome Family on Magazine Cover

PICNICKING PIC—Mr. and Mrs. James W. Whalen, 28 Buena Vista-av, New Rome, and their son, Jimmie, 7, are featured on the front cover of the June issue of the Poultry Tribune, a national farm magazine, which has a circulation of about one million. The picture appears in four colors. The cover picture was planned under the direction of the Perfection Stove Co. of Cleveland. Mr. and Mrs. Whalen have another child, 5-year-old "Sissy," but she didn't get into the picture because the editors specified: "Only one child—a boy."

State Buys Plots of Untouched Hay for Wildlife Nesting Areas

Under its major wildlife habitat restoration project, now well known throughout the state as "Project 49-D," the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources has purchased more than 7500 acres of unmolested hay crops this spring, consisting of sweet clover, alfalfa and timothy.

In these protected nesting areas, cover will remain uncut at least until July 15, when most of the pheasant and rabbit nesting will have been completed. In some instances the cover will remain untouched until next spring, providing shelter throughout the fall and winter months for pheasants, cottontails and other wildlife.

While the game managers point out that this acreage of unmolested nesting cover is just "a drop in the bucket" when applied to the entire state, nevertheless the grasses and legumes are situated on or within two miles of known pheasant winter concentrations, and it is certain that the purchases will do much good in further building up local concentrations of birds which will spread naturally some distance from the refuges and thus tend to provide better hunting in land units the size of a township, or even a county, where eight or 10 of the habitat development areas have been established.

Another interesting sidelight of the nesting cover purchase program is the enormous numbers of nests and eggs of valuable insect-eating small birds that will be saved from the mowing machine. The program is considered beneficial to quail, bobolinks, meadowlarks and other birds that nest in hayfields.

Game officials point out that the program is steadily winning the confidence of farmers throughout the state. The farmer recognizes the soil-building benefits of permitting hay crops to remain unharvested for a longer period of time. They also appreciate the fact that this is the first time they have been reimbursed for actively doing something of value for wildlife.

Green Cabs Capture Second In Row In Legion Loop Play

By Dave Miller

Green Cabs' American Legion entry here on the West Side won their second consecutive game at Westgate last Sunday afternoon, taking a rather easy 5 to 2 victory over Southway Post. They defeated Camp Chase "B", the previous Sunday, 16 to 3, in their other outing of the '49 season.

The Bob Cline-coached team again was led by the alert and timely hitting of Don Smith, a West High junior. Smith collected a double and single in four trips and played swell defensive ball, catching the West Side's best, Phil Young. Smith last week paced the Cabmen with four hits in five trips.

Young struck out 12 in winning his first Legion game of the year, but his teammates had to come from behind to take the decision.

Southway scored singles tallies in the fourth and fifth frames, while Green Cabs managed a lone run in the fifth, but a four-run outburst in the seventh was the deciding factor in the win.

In the Southway fourth, three successive singles by Ralph Oeffler, Bob Gibson and Al Rossiet gave the Southsiders one, and in the fifth a fielder's choice and singles by Bill Wertz and Bob Schaeffer brought home Southway's last run.

The Cabmen tied the score with one in the fifth on a triple by Centerfielder Ted Fladt and Ron Farley's one-baser to center. In the seventh, walks to Bob Ochs, Dave Caton, Morris Dobbs and Paul Ellingsworth brought in the tying run and three more came in on Young's single and Smith's two-bagger.

The lineup for the Southway game was a bit turned around, because many of the players were on vacation. In fact, both the centerfielder and rightfielder were missing, with a pitcher, Ted Fladt, and a catcher, Ron Farley, playing the positions.

In the infield, Coach Bob Cline has either Lefty Paul Ellingsworth or Eddie Gliebs for first base. Ellingsworth pitched for West this last year and Gliebs played first base for West Junior High. Bob Ochs, West High senior, is at second with Dave Caton, an infielder for West this last season, his keystone mate at shortstop. Jack Winnestaffer, third baseman for West last season, is at third for the Cabmen also. In the outfield, usually, Morris Dobbs is in left, Russ Rechling in center, and either Ellingsworth or Farley in right.

The catchers are Don Smith, Farley or Rechling. The pitchers are Young, Ted Fladt, Rechling, Ellingsworth or Smith.

The line scores:

Short and Sweet

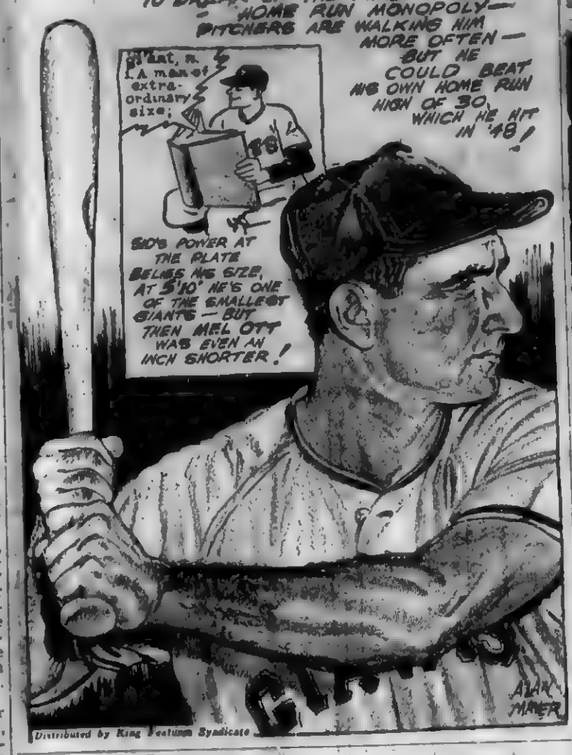
IF the long-time cooking, and endless heating that many candy recipes require make you cross candy right off your list of activities for the summer, just put it right back on again and go to work on these Marshmallow Cooky Bars. They are grand — not only to eat, but to make.

Read the recipe and you will see for yourself that with a special candy-making chocolate, they can be tossed off in no time — and with so little effort it isn't worth mentioning.

These luscious little bars are a wholesome candy, and they are also especially good as an accompaniment to an afternoon cup of tea or coffee, or with a refreshing summer beverage. They also make an attractive cooky to serve with ice cream or pudding.



Marshmallow Cooky Bars

1 cup broken vanilla wafers; 8 squares (1 package) candy-making chocolate; 8 marshmallows, cut in pieces.

Line bottom of 9 x 4 x 3-inch loaf pan with waxed paper, letting paper extend in 2-inch tabs at each end. Arrange broken wafers evenly in pan.

Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted. Add marshmallows and stir until partly melted and evenly distributed throughout chocolate. Pour chocolate evenly over wafers in pan, using fork to distribute chocolate throughout. Let stand in cool place to harden. Run a sharp knife around sides of pan and lift out candy with paper tabs. Cut in 3 x 1-inch bars. Makes 18 bars.

YES, SUSIE, IT'S A BIG WORLD

SENSE OF PROPORTION is among those things that 5-year-olds haven't learned yet, so it's small wonder that they are very dismayed to discover what a big world this is when they start unsupervised exploration trips. It also turned out to be a very dirty world, judging by Susan Assin's smudged face. Nicholas Manfredo, Sr., is one of the searchers who found Susie, after an all-night hunt, dirty and unclothed, but also unharmed, in a garage near her home at Newark, N. 'Thatchers' Daily Doings'

Saturday, May 6

For four years, we have been promising Rev. and Mrs. Mitchell that we would go to Mansfield for a visit with them. Today was the day we were to keep that promise and yet we very nearly missed. That is, we very nearly missed the first part of it. We were scheduled to leave here on the 9:10 bus. Morning chores kept us busy rushing about until, when we left the house, there was not much time left. At Broad and High Streets we had barely more than 10 minutes left to walk the three long blocks to the bus station, buy our tickets and board the transport. It was a good thing we did not meet any acquaintances on the way or we would have missed the bus for sure. As it was the running walk we made to the station was a strong reminder of that day in Boston two years ago when we got stranded in the Old North Church part of town and had to race to the docks to catch our boat for Yarmouth. Just as we entered the door of the bus station we heard the announcement, "All aboard for Mansfield." Tickets were absolutely necessary to board the bus which meant that while Violet worried and stewed I had to line up at the ticket window. Then, of course, there had to be the customer ahead of me who wanted to buy all the tickets in the shop. At last the tickets were purchased and we were on our way.

It took only two hours to reach Mansfield. There, when we stepped down to the platform, was the whole Mitchell family acting as a welcoming committee. Sandy and Kathy surely showed the results of a year's growth since we saw them last.

I mentioned the mansion house. Rev. Mitchell's home is almost that with its eight rooms, high ceilings, bay windows and the like, a wonderful home and quite different from the style of houses in which most Hilltoppers live. Their back yard is a miniature park. A few feet back of the house the ground slopes for some distance and to a degree which allows sledding in the winter and lawn rolling in the summer. Beyond the slope the yard, all in grass, extends to a creek and beyond that is a city park. Trees in the lawn and in the park make an ideal scene for picture paintin

While Rev. Mitchell and the children were showing this scenery to us and while Violet furnished the motive power for Kathy in a rope swing hung in the garage, Mrs. Mitchell was busy in the kitchen preparing one of those college-bred menus for which she is noted and which was ready to serve in a jiffy.

During the afternoon I was a funeral attender while Violet stayed at home with Mrs. Mitchell. It seems that Rev. Mitchell had arranged all his work so that he would be completely free this afternoon and evening. Then two members of his congregation passed away and funeral services were held this afternoon. In such cases a pastor cannot say he is unable to serve because he has company at home. I rode with Rev. Mitchell to the two services and remained in the car while he performed his duties. Would it be amiss for me to say that during his absence I listened to the Cleveland baseball game on his car radio?

Funeral services over we went back to the house where Violet joined us. Rev. Mitchell then took us for a drive around town and out to Camp Mowana, the Lutheran Youth Camp, which Violet saw for the first time. We saw the new swimming pool, the cabins, the lodge and the outdoor chapel with the stone altar built by members of Hilltop Church. The whole camp is one of rustic beauty with a quiet peacefulness about it that invited us to stay a while, but supper was waiting back at the mansion.

After supper we went down to First Church where we heard a 70-voice male choir in rehearsal. We met Dr. Barr, now a council member of this church and formerly a member of First Church in Columbus at the time that church founded our Hilltop congregation.

Sunday, May 8

Sunday morning for six people all getting ready for church is a busy time in any household and there was no difference in Mansfield. The morning schedule had been arranged before we retired last night.

Church started at 9:45 with 1000 people in the congregation. Kathy was down in the nursery, Sandy was sitting in front for the junior sermon and then went to the primary Sunday School. Mrs. Mitchell sat with us while we listened to the familiar voice of Rev. Mitchell from the pulpit.

Instead of a Recessional hymn the church service merged quickly at the end into the opening services of the Sunday School. While Mrs. Mitchell went out to attend her own class, Violet stayed with me in the auditorium where the men of the church gathered for the men's class conducted by Pastor Mitchell.

Today the Sunday School period was cut short somewhat so that a Mother's Day program could be held. At this service a total of 375 potted plants were presented to as many mothers who occupied the entire center section of the church.

We were sitting at the rear of the church when services were over; waiting for Rev. Mitchell to finish greeting his congregation and to meet for a short time with a Council Committee. While we were thus waiting someone tapped us on the shoulders. Turning around we were greeted by a former Hilltop member, Mrs. Coons. She said she had just happened to look over our direction and said to herself, "I believe that is the Thatchers." Of course it was and there was an impromptu reunion held right then and there. Mr. Coons, who was outside in their car, was brought in to join in this reunion. They are both members of the Mansfield church now, having moved to the city about three years ago.

Back home again and most of the remainder of the afternoon was used for discussion of all subjects under the sun, including socialized medicine, politics, churches and seven years of friendship at Hilltop Church.

At five o'clock we bade adieu to Rev. Mitchell, who had a baptism service to conduct.

Later Mrs. Mitchell prepared supper for the remaining four. We arrived home at 11 o'clock, still talking about the wonderful two days we had spent with our former pastor and his family.

Monday, May 9

One more week to go and today we have been doing all kinds of odd jobs as they came to mind.

The clothing trunk was packed and made ready for sending off. Laundry and cleaning was taken to the proper stores, to be ready for Wednesday's packing. The hardware store was visited to get cleaning fluid for some home cleaning and some weed killer to sprinkle over the lawn before we leave.

I wrote checks and letters to explain to the utility companies why we were paying them in advance for the bills of the next three months. We wrote letters to several people and finished getting correct addresses to put in our address book.

Tonight Ott and Cora Nuetzel came for a final evening of get-together. Also on the visiting list were Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Williams who brought us more addresses of good friends of theirs in England and Wales whom they want us to try to see. A third couple were here for a while, Dan and Mrs. Lane. As we were packing the trunk we found that we needed another suitcase, maybe two. Dan had told us he had a whole roomful of brand new luggage which he had bought as damaged goods from his railroad employers. They brought three of the pieces over to us to use as we saw fit.

Tuesday, May 10

Since weeds will have a way of growing rapidly when no one is around to keep them under control, Violet has spent the morning digging up the ground around the flower beds at the front and sides of the house even though there are a hundred and one other things to be thought about at the moment. This afternoon she had to make a grocery trip for the evening supper supplies.

Walter Heer, Democratic county chairman, called me last night to ask if I could come to his printing plant today as he had a package for me. This morning I went down there and came away a very pleased person. Walter had presented me a fine traveling bag completely equipped with toilet accessories. He had sent out of town for it and told me that there is only one other bag like it in town, he having that other one. It is a dandy and will be a big help on week-end or overnight trips, even a trip to England.

Leaving the printing plant, it was only a little while till lunch time so I walked down to the Liquor Department and waited for Phil to come out for lunch. We had lunch together, then went to the bank for a small supply of wherewithal to keep the small purchases going until we get started on our travels.

NEWS NOTE — No sooner had we gone into the bank than Miss Schnug, in the travel department, came over to tell me that she had just a few minutes before received word from the Cunard Lines that they had available accommodations for Mr. Brittain on the Caronia. She had called Jack who was overjoyed with the news that he could go to England on the same ship with us.

Two more errands, one for leather luggage tags and the other for a supply of cigars, completed my downtown business.

This afternoon, while Violet was getting groceries and getting ready for supper, I worked on the Doings and brought them up to today

The reason for Violet's grocery trip was that Jack had called her about his good news and about coming out for supper. Marion Brown also had received the word and she, too, was coming out for supper with Irving coming along a little later to bid us bon voyage.

SPIRITUALLY—

LET YOUR DOCTOR HELP YOU maintain your health, through a balanced regime, worked out for your particular needs, and your particular body.

During upsetting times, Doctors will tell you that it is highly important to the health of nerves, minds and bodies to make every effort to strike a "balance."

Very important are the marvels that medical science can do for sick bodies, but you can help your Doctor to keep you well.

Work should be offset with some play; our sense of security should be balanced with an equal sense of satisfaction that we are meeting our responsibilities; our urge toward "progress" should leave us with "freedom" for living.

THE OLD HOME TOWN By STANLEY

Today's Economy Stronger, '20 and '29 Pitfalls Lacking

By John Kelly

Examination of our business history provides reassuring answers to the questions of the times. The weak spots which have prolonged and widened past recessions are not apparent this time.

As the economy continues the transition from abnormal to normal times, it is comforting to bear in mind the absence of such weaknesses and the elements of strength. There is a wide difference between conditions today and those of 1920 and 1929.

In 1920, farm land speculation with borrowed money was a weak spot. When the bubble burst the loss of farms through foreclosure was a national tragedy. Farms had been mortgaged up to the hilt.

Widespread speculation in commodities led to excessive accumulation of inventories on borrowed money for purpose of resale rather than use. It was a period of over-extension of credit, and of high money rates. Our economy was in poor condition to withstand the severe shock.

As is perfectly obvious, neither of these is present in dangerous degree today. Stock market debt, one of the complicating factors in 1929, is negligible. The urban mortgage debt inflation which contributed to the 1929 crash has again occurred this time, but with two considerable differences.

One is that a substantial part of the debt is guaranteed by federal agencies. The other is that the mortgages are subject to regular amortization and are being constantly reduced. Federal guarantees will not protect borrowers from possible loss, but they will do something even more important.

Federal guarantees will protect and support the lending institutions which in the last analysis means savings to depositors and insurance policy holders. As long as such institutions are safe beyond question there will not be a repetition of the frightening experiences which followed the 1929 collapse.

Over and above government guarantees, the banking system has strength and liquidity. It is the strongest kind of assurance that the 1930's need not be repeated. The great depression was dominated by contagious distrust and paralysis of credit, and liquidation due to fear.

There is plenty of money freely available to good borrowers at low rates. Monetary policies are frankly designed to aid and support business.

This analysis of current conditions as compared with those preceding collapse will be continued next week.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

BEATRICE and Porter came out into the street together.

He stopped at her car and opened the door for her.

"Are you going home now, Bee?"

"Yes, of course. Why?"

"I didn't know. I thought maybe you had other plans."

"I have no plans that do not include you."

He covered her hand with his. "That was sweet, Bee. Well, see you in the morning."

"You'll be that late?"

"I'm afraid so."

She left him standing on the sidewalk—a tall, dark-coated figure under that lopsided moon. In a moment he would be in his car going the opposite way. Each going their own way in different directions. North for her to Marianne and home. South for him to the plant and to Bonnie Watson. She seemed to hear the voice of the auctioneer saying, "What do you bid for this marriage?" And then—"Going . . . going . . . gone."

When she reached home she wondered if she should wait for him, thinking that until now the question of right or wrong in her actions involving him had never been a factor in their marriage. She had seemed to know instinctively what he expected of her. Now so many issues blurred her thinking that the petty problem of whether to wait for him or to go to bed became more complex the more she pondered it.

She went to bed, but she slept so lightly that she awakened when he came in.

Drawing herself up slowly, she saw him. He was standing before the mahogany chest of drawers and as he loosened his tie, he glowered at his image in the clear, square mirror. Then his hands dropped from his tie and clutched the smooth ends of the chest. When he leaned forward the better to see his scowling self, the corner of his eyes found Beatrice's astonished face.

"Do you see it, too?" he asked. "If you can't, I can. I'm beginning to look more like him every day—more like Mr. Ramey."

"No, Porter. Never."

"Why shouldn't I? I'm his heir. All softness pruned away. Faith in might alone." He clenched his fist. "Might! The meek will not inherit the earth, if the old man has anything to do with it."

"Thank goodness he doesn't."

"He's in everything we do, in every decision we make. He's in our beds, in our dreams. Sorry I woke you. You were sleeping so nicely."

"Porter, couldn't we go away for a little while? Just for a few days?"

"You can. I can't. Why don't you?"

"I want to go with you."

"I won't interfere with anything you want to do or anywhere you want to go."

"I don't like your over-emphasized sense of duty, Porter. It's late, I know. We're both tired. An additional strain on marriage is that husbands and wives are never alone until the day is over and they're both too tired to discuss anything with reasonableness. So they put it off until tomorrow, but tomorrow is as crowded as today. So it becomes cumulative, adding up in pyramid after pyramid of irritations. I hate scenes, Porter. And I know you hate them."

He moved toward her and stopped. "The kindest thing we can do for each other now is to put it off until tomorrow—or some tomorrow. But whatever you think of me, I'm not different to you, Bee."

Two days later Beatrice went back to Libby's apartment. Though it was afternoon on a sunless day, the curtains—antique silk dyed to a deep crimson—were drawn. A pathetic little fire struggled valiantly against extinction upon the hearth. Flowers that had survived the party now shared the same round brass bowl on a low teakwood table. The apartment was cool. Too cool. And Libby in elaborate black satin lounging pajamas would herself be as cold as marble to touch. Indeed, it seemed to Beatrice that today Libby's quality of invulnerability was manifest more than ever. A woman to look at but not to touch. Her dark hair was as if sculpted against her head. To touch it would spoil the whole exotic effect. Hadn't Libby ever broken a finger nail? Didn't she occasionally lose a button, or get a run in her stocking in public?

"Bessie's marketing," she said crisply as she stood beside the fireplace. "It's much simpler to telephone for food, but Bessie thinks we can't eat unless she goes to the market twice a week. Good old Bessie."

"Where is Jane?"

Libby didn't say anything for a moment. Then she said, "She went out with her father—with Dick. It's all sort of mysterious and Jane, you know, is never mysterious. She telephoned him—that's obvious—though she wouldn't admit it. This isn't his day to see her. Not that that matters. She can see him any time she wants to. I haven't followed the law on that score." She smiled slightly. "Did you come to see me or to see Jane, Bee?"

"I always come to see both of you."

Then Libby, her hands tucked into the voluminous sleeves of the satin jacket, began to walk up and down the room. "It's just like you to sense that I need to blow up and you're the only person I can trust. Remember school, Bee? Every once in awhile the teacher would say, 'We'll have a review today.' Review. That's what I've been doing—reviewing. Swimming in my memories, drowning in them!"

Beatrice stared at her with disbelieving eyes as she heard Libby's words fall like drops of ice water. "I, Libby Gundria, nee Preston, aged thirty-four, divorced, one child, sound of wind and limb, alumnus of Miss Bloomingdale's school—that cradle of snobbishness—I, Libby Gundria, who told you and all the other women that you could have your marriage and your men and with my compliments, that I was a smart girl, that I belonged to myself. No headaches for me over a man. No rushing home from an afternoon party to get there before a man came home from his office. No man had to dole out money to me. I didn't have to wait for the psychological moment to ask a man for money. I was free. Had my cake and ate it, too. Women envied me. You're lucky, Libby!"

Beatrice sat appalled while Libby stopped, pressing her cold jeweled hands together.

"Oh, Bee, don't you know how I've come to hate being a divorced woman—loathe it, despise it until the word divorce has the sound of a searing insult! Do you know what it means? No. How could you? You've never awakened in a sweat and thought, Where am I going? And then to hear the answer, You're not going anywhere, Libby. Because you have no place, no status. No one needs you, and no one waits for you. You wait. You bet your life you wait. You wait for the telephone to ring. Because you've got to be in circulation. Once people stop remembering you, you're a dead duck. And a divorced woman can't be just a nice person. Oh, no. She has to make a noise, to be seen and heard, to be fun! She has to be so socially acceptable that people will forgive her for the failure of her marriage."

"And few women are able to do that," Beatrice said honestly. "The success or failure of a marriage is primarily the woman's responsibility. That's a commonly accepted belief. When a marriage fails, the woman is blamed no matter what the man has done. Where men are concerned, society has a conveniently short memory."

Libby's eyes were smarting. "I have almost married again several times just for that, for the status of a married woman. Mrs. Somebody. It didn't matter. Only I couldn't. I couldn't. I couldn't play such a dirty trick on anybody. So what did I do? I was cruel while pretending to be moral. I always made the men who were interested in me look a little ridiculous. And that's something a man can't forgive. But I always thought that something would break for me, that I'd meet a man who could make me feel, make me believe and trust, a man to take me out of this . . . this jungle."

Beatrice reached for a cigarette, and changed her mind when she didn't want to smoke. Libby's terrible necessity to talk, her pitiful need to rip away her superficial brittle crust filled her with dull misery. Her saying, "Where am I going?" was heartbreakingly tragic. A woman safe in marriage didn't ask herself that. She was going where her husband was going, because he was the most constant element in her life, the cornerstone of her life. Porter, where are we going?

Congress is now considering INCREASING the rates of federal income taxes on both business and individuals. More revenue is needed to finance new government programs and extensions—pay for national defense—foreign commitments.

Yet big business CO-OPS and other TAX-EXEMPTS continue to escape or avoid federal income taxation.

Every income tax payer should inform his Congressman to "TAX THE UNTAXED, FIRST" before increasing or adding taxes on those of us who are already paying heavily.

Federal income taxes are usually the largest taxes we pay.

When anyone is excused from paying federal income taxes, all the rest of us have their portion added onto our bill. WE pay more than our fair share.

There are a number of these favored tax evaders. Probably the most flagrant are co-operative corporations doing 17 billions in business and avoiding taxes on more than a billion dollars in profits each year. Others are so-called "trusts" and government businesses. Even colleges and universities in recent years have bought and are operating factories and other commercial ventures for profit—tax free, of course.

If your income taxes and payroll deductions are high—this tax exemption is one of the major reasons.

ALL BUSINESS SHOULD PAY INCOME TAXES ON THE SAME BASIS

Mock Air War Ban Blow to Admirals

Jet Triumph Sure, Navy Men Believe

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Cancellation of the mock air war between the B-36 and the Navy's jet fighters struck the admirals as hard a body blow as did the scrapping a short time earlier of their supercarrier.

The air-minded Navy command had been jubilant when the test was asked by the House armed services committee. The admirals were confident that their fighters could "shoot down" the Air Force's "invulnerable" bomber and prestige for carrier operation would thereby be regained.

Admiral Louis Denfeld

It was not publicized, but the "air war," if held, would have seen the Navy scrambling its McDonnell Banshee jets from flattop decks to go after the B-36s at 40,000 feet.

The latest blow was harder to take because the joint chiefs of staff ruling cancelling the test was signed by Adm. Louis Denfeld, chief of Naval Operations.

Denfeld said that the contest would "serve no purpose" and might reveal secret information to potential enemies. The Navy's aviation leaders concede that Denfeld's signature on the ruling was a master strategy move by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson. It effectively prevented any further argument from the force Denfeld commands.

● TROUBLE FOR LOUIS—Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has stirred up a hornets' nest by his order to combine Army Day, Navy Day and Air Force Day into a single National Defense Day.

Navy League President Frank A. Hecht bluntly informed the Defense secretary that he could see "no valid reason for breaking the continuity of 27 years of observance" of Navy Day.

Furthermore, asserted Hecht, the Navy League will go ahead and organize Navy Day activities—with or without co-operation from the Navy.

Johnson has ordered a ban on participation by armed forces personnel in any of the various "day" activities except for National Defense Day. But Hecht told the secretary:

"We realize that should the co-operation of the Navy be denied us, Navy Day would perhaps lose some of its effectiveness—but are assured that a worthwhile Navy Day can be promoted."

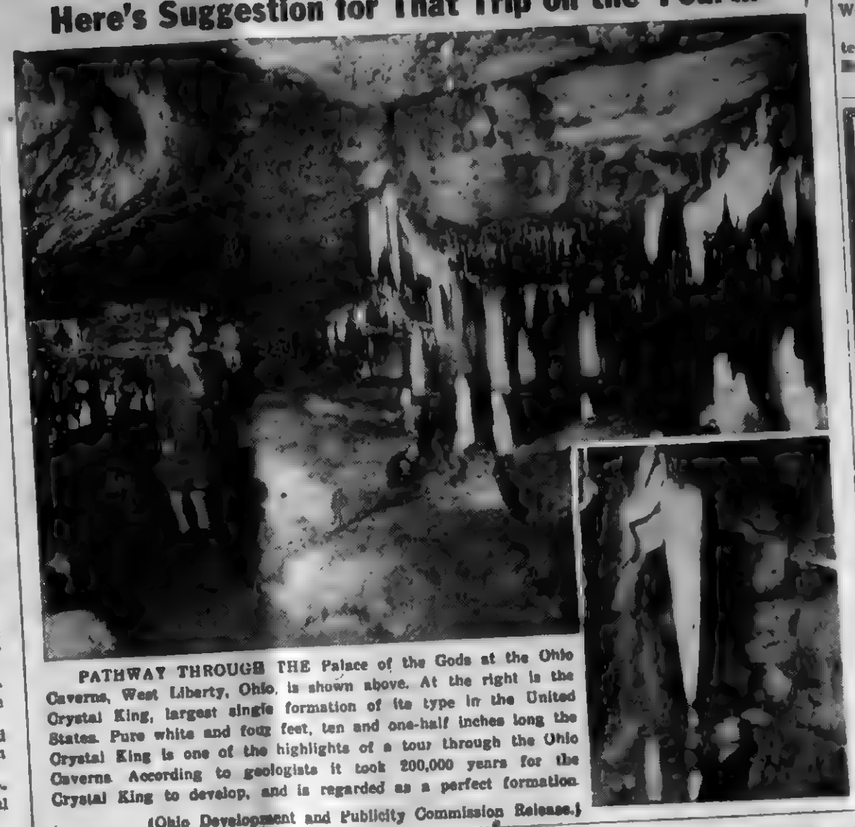
● CUPID AND THE GOP—It happened as House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (R), Massachusetts, was getting off a Capitol elevator. As he stepped off, preoccupied with affairs of state, he ran into a pretty girl, and to keep from falling put his arms around her.

The flustered congressman apologized and went his way. After he left, an amused bystander told the girl: "You should have held on to him when you had him. He's the most eligible bachelor in the House."

The girl blushed, then shook her head regretfully, remarking: "Well, maybe it's just as well. I'm a Democrat."

* * * *

● COUNTRY GIRL IN WASHINGTON—Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, first woman to be named Treasurer of the United States, brings a breath of the country crossroads to sophisticated Washington.



And in one respect, at least, she finds the nation's capital and her native Richland, Kan., much alike.

That New Treasury Chieftain

Treasury Secretary Snyder told her she would find herself living in a "goldfish bowl" now. But, she said, back home in Kansas "everyone knew everything I did and said, anyhow, with one difference. If someone didn't like something you said it would be back to you in an hour."

Mrs. Clark was assured that this, too, was in the Washington tradition.

Here's Suggestion for That Trip on the 'Fourth'

PATHWAY THROUGH THE Palace of the Gods at the Ohio Caverns, West Liberty, Ohio, is shown above. At the right is the Crystal King, largest single formation of its type in the United States. Pure white and four feet, ten and one-half inches long the Crystal King is one of the highlights of a tour through the Ohio Caverns. According to geologists it took 200,000 years for the Crystal King to develop, and is regarded as a perfect formation.

Dairy Drive-in Is Being Built On W. Broad St.

A dairy treat drive-in is under construction on the south side of W. Broad-st just east of Powhatan-av. Construction probably will be completed in two weeks.

The building is being constructed by Harley Conrad, 63 N. Ogden-av, contractor, for Ralph Schmelzer. It is being built in the center of two lots owned by Mr. Schmelzer, who operates a restaurant at 3178 W. Broad-st.

The drive-in will be leased by Mr. Schmelzer to another operator.

The building will be modernistic in design with plate-glass front and sides. The drive-in area will be graveled.

Cub News

Pack 43 held its last monthly meeting of the year Tuesday, June 7, at which time the Cubs presented the dads with tie racks made for Father's Day.

Plans were completed for the Packs' basket picnic which is to be held July 6 at shelter house No. 6 along the Scioto river from 5 until 9 in the evening.

In the last softball game played, Den 5 defeated Den 1 by a score of 58 to 10.

You'll always find something your home on the Hilltop by carrier boy each Tuesday and Thursday evening for only 8c per week.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalms 1; 23:12-15; 67; 100.

The righteous man "shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord: and the people whom He hath chosen for His own inheritance. . . . He fashioneth their hearts alike; He considereth all their works."

"God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause His face to shine upon us. That Thy way may be known upon earth, Thy saving health among all nations."

"Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness; come before His presence with singing. . . . For the Lord is good."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 100:2.

Hilltop Parent Assn. Will Meet Sunday, Hear Four Speakers

The Hilltop Parents Association's second anniversary will be observed with a program, tea and installation of officers at 3:30 p. m. Sunday at the Wheatland Avenue Methodist Church.

Texaco Station Operators Aid Record Carriers

THE TWO BILLS — Here are Bill Kline, left, and Bill Vernon, proprietors of the Texaco Service Station at Sullivant and Warren-ave., who have been making new friends every day in the little more than a year they have been in business. One thing that has made them a lot of friends, young though they may be now, is the fact that they have allowed The Hilltop Record carrier boys in the area to use their establishment as a sub-station where they can pick up their papers each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon for delivery to the surrounding homes.

To the Editor:

This is to report that the first annual Columbus Eisteddfod, or competitive singing festival, held Friday, June 10, at Memorial Hall was a great success.

The five girls' groups, Linden, South Side, Milo, Oakwood and Poindexter, all under the direction of the policewomen of the juvenile bureau, presented a pleasing evening's entertainment to the public, according to the large number of letters and phone calls we have received.

We have been wanting to get a group organized on the Hilltop and since the festival was so successful we hope that our finances are so that we can start the group by this fall.

We know that without your help the affair would not have been the success that it was and we wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the newspaper publicity you so kindly gave us.

It is our hope that these singing festivals will become a yearly event and would like to feel that we can call upon your aid in the future in making the Eisteddfod an annual civic enterprise for the teen-agers of our city.

Thanking you again for your fine cooperation with the police juvenile bureau in this enterprise, we remain

Sincerely yours,
Sgt. C. Roy Morgan, Chairman

He Ain't Heavy! He's My Brother!

A tourist party, traveling in the south, came upon a small colored boy carrying another, almost as large as himself. The car slowed down, that the party might better observe this human interest picture.

One of the men in the front seat leaned out of the open window and addressed the elder boy!

"That boy you are carrying," he said, "is too heavy for you."

"Shucks, Mister," replied the boy, "he ain't heavy. He's my brother."

What a valuable lesson this incident teaches! We are prone to forget, that every needy brother has a claim upon our good offices; that to lend a helping hand is never burdensome to a kindly spirit. The boy in the picture seems not to mind the load he carries. The smile on his face expresses the radiance in his heart.

In an age when self interest has blinded many of us to the needs of others we would do well to heed this lesson. Every community could do with a little more of the spirit of neighborliness and cooperation.

Remember today:

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ."

Findlay 'Posse' To Appear Here For Horse Show

Ohio's top western horse parade unit will bring $100,000 worth of horses and equipment to the Columbus pre-rodeo parade Friday night, July 8.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Posse of Findlay and vicinity will head the parade which will open the first annual Mid-Western Rodeo and Horse Show at the Coliseum July 9 and 10.

Comprised of 20 horsemen, the posse members sport silver studded saddles and bridles and is headed by Frank J. Egner of Findlay.

The rodeo-horse show is sponsored by the Franklin County Council, American Legion, and Western Horse Exhibitors Association of Ohio with performances at 8 p. m. Saturday and Sunday and 2 p. m. matinee Sunday.

Firemen Turn Painters to Help Widow

Firemen never forget. Proof of this occurred last week when a group of Columbus firemen kept their promise to aid the widow of a deceased fellow fire-fighter "who needed help."

The widow is Mrs. John O'Reilly, wife of Fireman John O'Reilly, who died Feb. 3, 1947. The above group of firemen heard that Mrs. O'Reilly would like to have her five-room story and a half bungalow at 700 S. Warren-av painted. The above fire-fighters volunteered their assistance. They are, right to left, E. M. Nothacker, J. A. Bauchmire, Orville Taynor, Eddie Hart and Earl Wedemeyer.

Two others, Bern Krause and George Mick, got the job off to a good start on Tuesday.

Material for the painting job was obtained through the cooperation of Charles Nell, of Hilltop Hardware Co.; and Ernest Gibson and Bob Stinchcomb of the Glidden Paint Co.

Common Questions on Termites; Here Are Some Correct Answers

There's a lot of loose talk about termites every spring. You've heard it — and it may have worried you. But there's no sense in worrying until you know what there is to worry about.

Here are the common questions about termites and the correct answers. From them you can learn if you have termites, what they do and what you can do to prevent or control them.

How can one decide whether the "swarming" insects are termites, or some other insect? The only other insect that swarms in this manner is some species of flying ant. Ants have a narrow constricted zone between the thorax and abdomen. Termites are NOT so constricted. Ants do NOT shed their wings as do termites. Sometimes the work of the powder post beetle is mistaken for that caused by termites. The powder post beetles infest only the sapwood of timbers.

This part of the wood is rapidly changed into a weakened condition accompanied by the presence of small round holes on the surface. From these a fine powder is thrown out by the beetles.

Don't Cause Powder

Termites, on the other hand, never cause powder on the floor or surface of the timbers. The tunnels termites occupy are always cleaned and are arranged in a series parallel with the grain and running along the heartwood as well as the sapwood. The timbers are not punky or spongy as with powder post beetles. They appear to be sound, but are deceptive and give way when struck with a hammer, or forced to bear a heavy weight. It is not likely that one will confuse termite injury with dry rot of wood, or with rot from weathering.

The white, immature termites shun the light, and are not seen unless exposed. They must have contact with the ground and cannot survive if this contact is broken this is the "key" to successful termite control. It consists of so sinsulating the timbers as to make it impossible for termites to maintain their ground contact.

What To Do?

What course should be followed if one finds termites in his house? First comes a "do not"—DO NOT ignore them. Inspect the surroundings carefully and determine where and how they enter the timbers. If their tubes or trails are noticed on top of the basement wall, or on the ends of the nearby joists, they probably are coming in from the outside near this spot.

If a cellar post, basement step risers, or coalbin partition is infested, see that the infested portion is removed and the structure reset ON and not IN the cement cellar floor. Be sure there is a fine finishing coat of cement on which these supports rest and that there are no cracks in the floor to permit termites to reach the timbers.

If the damage is over an unexcavated portion of the house the job becomes more difficult. Likewise, if the termites ascend the interior of hollow cement blocks, or tile and enter the wood plate directly above, the job may call for the service of a reliable pest control operator.

Major Operation

Such operators resort to reconstruction, chemical treatment of the soil next to the foundation, and sometimes drill through basement walls to impregnate the soil on the outside with chemicals that prevent termites from occupying the soil. This is likely to be necessary where a cement floor or steps make soil treatment from the outside difficult or impossible to accomplish in any other manner. Merely spraying or painting infested timbers with creosote or other chemical is of little value.

Reliable pest control operators perform a valuable service when the job is beyond the ability of the home owner to solve. A careful study, backed up by information carried in state and federal bulletins, should help the home owner determine whether or not he needs the services of a termite-control expert.

Community Loses Substantial Citizen

The Hilltop community was shocked last week to learn of the death of Bryan McCullough.

Bryan had given much of his time to civic affairs in the community and in his capacity as a member of the board of trustees of Franklin Township had been a leader in bringing about many worthwhile improvements for the township.

It is men of his type who are willing to take on the responsibility of the "extracurricular" activities that keep a community in the limelight and make it a progressive one.

The sympathy of the Hilltop and township is extended to his family.

Holiday Death Toll Tops 500

The Fourth of July week-end accident death toll soared to at least 542 deaths early last night. This smashed last year's total of 500 for the entire three-day period.

The traffic toll reached 250, climbing steadily toward 290 fatalities predicted by the National Safety Council.

Drowning—claiming 172 lives—was the second worst killer. Another 110 persons died in miscellaneous accidents.

Ohio's toll stood at 21. Ten died in traffic, nine drowned and two were killed in miscellaneous accidents.

On the Hilltop only one serious accident was noted on the Fourth. Five-year-old Richard Kendall Rhodes, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Rhodes of 701 S. Hagueav, was seriously injured late Monday afternoon when he fell from an auto driven by his father on Rt. 23 three miles south of Circleville.

State Highway patrolmen said the boy was riding in the rear seat of the auto. He apparently opened the door and tumbled out.

The injured boy was treated at Berger Hospital, Circleville, and then rushed to Children's Hospital in a patrol car. He suffered a skull fracture, severe head lacerations and multiple cuts and bruises.

Services Held For B. McCullough, Insurance Man

Services were held July 2 at the Wylie S. Shroyer Funeral Home for Bryan T. McCullough, 50, operator of a Hilltop insurance firm, who died June 29 in White Cross Hospital following a brain operation. He had been in the hospital for two weeks. His home was at 2655 Elliott-av.

Mr. McCullough was employed as an engineer for the New York Central Railroad for 21 years before he entered the insurance field in 1940. He conducted the McCullough Insurance Service from his home.

He was a member of the West Gate Masonic Lodge, Scioto Consistory of the Scottish Rite, Aladdin Shrine and Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

Surviving are his wife, Mabel; one daughter, Mrs. Crayton Walker, Mt. Vernon; two grandsons; five brothers, Thomas, Albert, John, Charles and Floyd McCullough, all of Grand Island, Neb., and one sister, Mrs. Marie Butler, also of Grand Island.

Burial was in Sunset Cemetery.

War Dead Returned

Two war dead from the Hilltop and seven from Columbus were among the 3333 dead returned from Europe yesterday on the Transport Carroll Victory. War dead returned from the Hilltop and their next of kin are 2nd Lt. William F. Edmundson, Ruth Edmondson Gately, 1960 W. Broadst; and Lt. Col. Ralph S. Harper, Charles F. Harper, 85 N. Terraceav.

Hilltop's Wick Leonard Conducts Animal Academy; He's Artist, Too

TRAINER-ARTIST AT WORK — Here is Wick Leonard, 3209 Sullivant-av, at work—with oil paint and brush—in the yard of his home. Behind him are some of his paintings propped up on the bus in which he and Mrs. Leonard make the county fair circuit. At the left is one of his trained dogs. Its name sounded like Grover, but it might have been Rover. — Hilltop Record Photo.

By Myron T. Seifert

Only school in the country which provides training for circus riders, rodeo techniques, and animal performers is located on the Hilltop.

Lucas Sullivant, founder of Franklinton, forerunner of Columbus, himself a horseback rider of more than mediocre caliber, had nothing on Wick Leonard, on whose street, bearing the name of Sullivant, the inimitable president of "Wick Leonard University" now lives and carries on his singular school of horsemanship.

If Lucas Sullivant could express himself he might undoubtedly give Wick the nod for the fine work he is doing, and plans to do at his "Western University" at 3209 Sullivant-av.

Master Stock Breaker

He is a past-master at breaking circus stock. Thousands of trained animals that you have seen under the big tent are products of Wick's knowledge and guidance. Only recently he obliged Roy Rogers by selling him a trained horse.

Those West High rope twirlers that you see each fall in Magly stadium, and who have established a national reputation for their showmanship, owe much to Leonard for his direction and guidance.

Circusdom comes to him honestly. His father operated one of the large circus caravans in the business, and, of ccurse, Wick learned early every angle of putting on a good show. His productions have been heralded from coast to coast and his billings are found among the best in the country.

He has disposed of practically all of his horses, which he trained for the circus loving public, and at present is hard at work training dogs.

Patience Is Needed

"It requires patience, kindness and perseverance," Wick avers, adding, "if you hope to train them well." And Wick does a perfect job, as your writer can attest. "Even after 30 days of rugged work on one animal," Wick said, "you may find that the dog can do no better than the first five minutes that you had him." However, he says, "I never give up, and have yet to find a dog that cannot be trained."

At present he is occupied in training seven different breeds of dogs 14 types of somersaults. The dogs do everything but talk, and we believe, after watching their antics, they can almost do this.

Perhaps you have wondered while watching a dog act in circus or theater, what happened if one of the dogs gets sick or dies. Nine times out of ten the owner of the act will wire Wick Leonard for a new dog. He will send a dog that is trained to go right into the act. He can teach most any little dog how to do a somersault in the air.

"People seemed to like to stand around and watch me train dogs and they wanted to learn to ride horses so I just started my school," Mr. Leonard advised.

An old cowhand and circus man himself, Wick Leonard is able to teach fancy roping.

"Mechanic" Is Teacher

Located in this lot is a real circus ring equipped with what is known as a "mechanic". This is a contraption with a beam swinging around the circle from a pole located in the center. Riders who use this "mechanic" while learning ride a horse by the name of "Dutch." "Dutch" knows the business in fine fashion.

Wick Leonard can really teach you how to ride, trick stuff and all. Around and around you go and in no time you master the art. I am of the opinion that "Dutch" is one of the best members of the faculty.

From this school may come a spangled beauty of the future who can ride the big grays around the circus ring to perfection.

Wick Leonard's school is a fascinating spot. His horse school opens late this summer or fall. Wick lives in a little house with oil lamps gleaming from the windows.

He has three sons, all of whom are animal trainers.

Painting Is Hobby

Akin to his circus work is the fascinating hobby of painting, which he has followed for more than 40 years. Those Christmas designs in color found in some windows of mercantile establishments along Sullivant-av at Yuletide are products of our friend Wick. He begins this project long before Thanksgiving and by Christmas practically every store and shop along Sullivant thor-

Hilltop Songwriter Finally 'Hits' Big Time with 'Something Tells Me'

For 10 years Ed Graham, 2086 Sullivant-av, was just like any other up-an-coming young songwriter. He spent long hours pouring over piano and manuscript. He waited equally long hours in publishers' waiting rooms.

Ed figured it was pretty tough being a song writer. But, after knocking out approximately 100 songs, he finally hit. This month copies of his song "Something Tells Me" will be appearing on music stands throughout the country.

It took almost a year of correspondence before Broadcast Music Incorporated accepted his light ballad. Ed hopes that it will be heard soon on radio, television and juke boxes.

The song made its first appearance in 1948, when students from Ohio State University built a musical production around the tune. This year OSU students incorporated it into the Jazz Forum's latest show "Cavalcade of Music," which appeared on campus June 1 and 2.

The young song writer had one stroke of luck. When the song made its first appearance last year, Ed wrote to David Rose, nationally known composer and conductor, requesting that he do the orchestral arrangement. Since the show was giving a benefit performance, Mr. Rose agreed to do so. The song was a smash hit in 1948 and again this year.

E. R. Graham

Ed's chief worry now is to get his song plugged. He's doing his part locally and he hopes Broadcast Music, Inc., will take care of the job nationally.

Meanwhile Ed's continuing his graduate work in music at Ohio State. His wife, who is his greatest fan, is the former Naomi Donley.

Former Hilltoppers Visit Community's Adopted Town of Ritthem in Holland

Vacationing in Europe are two former Hilltoppers, who recently spent several days in Holland and in the Hilltop's adopted Dutch town, Ritthem. Those who visited were Lt. and Mrs. Charles Butte. Mr. Butte is stationed with the Grave Registration Division of the army in Anzio, Italy, and he and his wife are enjoying his 30 day furlough touring the continent.

The letter advising of their visit was written by Ritthem's mayor, who also sent his appreciation for the package of clothing and articles sent by Hilltoppers and received in their country June 15.

The mayor advised Mrs. J. G. Bowser, secretary of the committee, that the Buttes had arrived in Ritthem via Milan, Interlaken, Strassburg, Liege and Brussels. He added that copies of The Hilltop Record and picture post cards of Columbus were distributed among the Dutch people.

In a letter received June 19 by Mrs. Bowser from Mrs. Charles Butte, she related her impression of Ritthem.

"We stayed all night at Brussels and went to Antwerp and on to the Holland border, where they wanted $1000 bond and $40 for the Auto Club for going into the country. We told authorities we didn't want to see it that badly and continued on a side road to another border. Here we crossed without any difficulty. We later learned that this was quite a racket throughout Europe a year ago, but they have most of it cleaned up by now. We got to Ritthem about 9 o'clock and stayed at the police chief's home. They treated us wonderfully.

"The Dutch have suffered a great deal, particularly during the flood when the dikes were bombed. The ocean water lay over the land for a long time, killing the trees and making the soil salty and unfertile. But they are proud people and won't ask for anything. Clothing and some food products are all that are rationed now, but both are hard to get."

Hilltoppers donating clothing, which was distributed in Ritthem June 15 are as follows.

Mrs. C. C. Saylor and Shirley Saylor, 1963 Floral-av; Mrs. Guy Jones and Elnora Jones, 33 N. Hague-av; Mrs. William Schultz and Judy Schultz, 39 N. Hagueav.Mrs William Bowser and Karen Bowser, 75 Heldy-av, Mrs. Guy Myers, 153 S. Westmoor-av; Mrs. F. A. Young, 125 N. Chase-av; Rose Snedeker, 158 N. Powell-av; Mrs. Anson Fox, 247 S. Roys-av.

Mrs. E. G. Cockfield, 489 S. Harris-av; Mrs. Robert Gibbon, 174 S. Powell-av; Mrs. Ivy Scott, 146 S. Ogden-av; Mrs. G. Graham Prior, 101 Eldon-av; Annis Turner, 154 S. Central-av; Mrs. R. W. Phillips, 126 S. Wheatland-av; Richard D'Amico, 7 S. Hague-av; Mrs. J. G. Bowser, 35 N. Hagueav.

Announce West Grid Schedule; Practice Only 6 Weeks Away

Pemberton Is in Optimistic Mood; Champ Cowboys Hoping for Repeat

By Dave Miller

West High's 1949 edition of football is closer than a lot of people realize. In case you haven't looked at your calendar, it's exactly six weeks from this coming Saturday that official practice begins.

Mack Pemberton, West High grid coach, who has guided two straight championship teams at West throughout the 1947 and 1948 campaigns, is in a better mood than he was at this time last year. Last season he had only Quarterback Paul Theisen and Tackle Chuck Weeks back from his unbeaten team in '47.

However, he managed to pull through it all, and when it was all over, he had won eight, lost one, and tied one, again winning the City Championship in undefeated ranks, and losing and tying the other two to non-loop opponents.

This season's schedule was announced the other day by Pemberton and in looking it over, we found that the schedule is the same, with the exception that Cleveland Garfield Heights will be the opponent in the homecoming game instead of last season's high-flying New Philadelphia, which handed the Cowboys their only loss that year. Another change is that the team will play only nine games instead of last season's 10, with Cincinnati Hughes being the one left off.

The Cowboys are hoping again this year for another fine backfield. It's way too early to start predicting, but with such speedsters as Willy Evans and Gene Brown, both on the varsity last year, the Hilltoppers will again be hard to stop. Two good quarterbacks are seen in Bill Thrush and Don Nafzger, with Jack Brown up from the reserves to be in the battle also.

West's main asset last season was its backfield and it can easily be again this year. It will be hard, however, to replace runners like Dick Culbertson, Paul Theisen and Danny Miles, but after a couple or three weeks of stiff practice under the guidance of Coaches Pemberton, Dave Randall and Fred Heishman, the locals will again be strong contenders.

In all, the Cowboys have four men back from last year's regular team. There are End Jim Rudolph, Tackle Cliff Voss, Center Bob Epps and Halfback Gene Brown, with capable men such as Frank Carson, Eddie Sensenbrenner, Dick Kruczynski, Bob Tewell, Bob Thatcher, Bob Wilson, Dick Will and Bob Birle.

With this outlook, the football picture at West High doesn't look too bad; in fact, much better than it looked on June 30, 1948.

Looking over last year's thrills, many memories are recalled. At Marion it can never be forgotten when, with only two minutes left to play, Don Speakman, West end, took a short bullet pass from Paul Theisen and raced it some 70 yards down the field for a TD in the waning moments of the game, and won the game for the locals, 21-18, after trailing, 18-15. That run made the trip back to Columbus a lot shorter. Then the Arlington game, when eight West fumbles threw the Cowboy chances sky-high as West tied the Bears, 13-13 . . . Gene Brown's end run was the winning margin in West's 6-0 win over East, and Dick Culbertson's 55-yard runback of an intercepted pass won the game for the locals at South, again, 6-0 . . . Then came the best game of them all, in which a last quarter drive by the Cowboys netted them 19 points, after trailing Central, 19-6, thereby winning out again in the waning moments, 25-19.

West's only setback of the year ruined the Cowboys' homecoming in a rain-soaked game, in which the Hilltoppers were trounced by New Philadelphia's top-flight coached team, 31-7 . . . West then romped to an easy 33-0 win over Aquinas for their fourth City Loop win of the year . . . And then it came — the big game with North's Polar Bears was about to be staged, with the City League championship hanging on the winner . . . The Cowboys came out of the game with a 19-0 win in a rain-drenched night, and West had cinched the championship flag again . . . Over 10,000 fans were spectators of that North fray . . . In the Dad's Night game with Linden, the Cowboys showed their fathers quite a bang-up game as the locals went to their seventh win of the year over Linden, 32-7 . . . In the final game of the year, Jim Rudolph's two touchdowns were the winning margins as West came from behind to defeat Cincinnati Hughes, 13 to 7.

Trabue Site Suggested For Schools

Trabue-rd land bought recently for a city golf course was suggested last week as a possible site for the Ohio blind and deaf schools. The site may be offered as a compromise in the controversial issue over the Wyandot golf course.

Two sites were offered last Thursday to the joint city-county planning committee, in addition to the speculation over the city's Trabue-rd land.

They are: Two hundred acres northeast of Columbus, 13 miles from downtown. The acreage is bounded on the north by the County-Line-rd and on the east by the Schott-rd. It is two and one-half miles north of Route 161 on the Delaware County line and overlooks the proposed Walnut Creek reservoir.

This other site consists of about 200 acres 12 miles west of the city on the Madison County line. The land is bounded on the west by Big Darby Creek and on the south by Hubbard-rd, and on the north by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Recently the House Judiciary Committee recommended passage of a bill to authorize the state to sell Wyandot to Columbus for $125,000. The Trabue-rd site cost $85,000 and would cost $50,000 to

Nine Scouts of Troop 29 Awarded Markmanship Medals and Badges

In an intensive training course of 40 hours and of seven and one-half weeks duration, recently concluded, the above scouts of Troop 29, of West Park Methodist Church School all qualified for the marksmanship merit badge.

The course was conducted and the awards were made on behalf of the troop by Louis B. Blakley of the plant protection unit of the Curtiss-Wright Corp. Mr. Blakley is also a deputy sheriff of Franklin County, served as national guard arms instructor for nine years, U. S. Army instructor 18 months, is a member of the National Rifle Association, and a recognized instructor.

His training course led off with safety and triangulation, then training in prone, offhand, sitting, kneeling, sighting, breathing and stance. Much practice shooting was done and the course was concluded by shooting for scores. Mr. Blakley emphasized over and over the safety rules and precautions to be observed in the use of firearms.

For several of these scouts, it was the first experience with a rifle, and the point should be stressed that many times the first lesson if learned properly may prove very valuable in later years.

The qualifiers are Life Scout Gene Carpenter, Star Scout Jim Davy, Star Scout Charles Albrecht, Life Scout and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster, Dick Rason, Life Scout John Allen, and Life Scout Don Rawlings.

The three boys winning top honors and who were awarded medals are Life Scout Don Farrell, first place award; Life Scout Don Bright, second place award, and Life Scout Don Park, third place.

It's Polio Season; Avoid Crowds, Prevent Fatigue

The polio season is with us, and contrary to most people's beliefs it can be avoided and it can be cured if quick and proper treatment is used.

To protect your home and family from the disease the following should be read in order that infantile paralysis does not get a foothold in this community.

How Polio Is Contracted

It is believed to be a microscopic virus, much smaller than most bacteria. There is evidence that the virus spreads from person to person in close contact. It may be contracted in food, or from dirty dishes or hands. It may float in the air, or it may even enter the skin.

The Symptoms

1. Headache
2. Sore throat
3. Nausea
4. Slight fever
5. Fatigue
6. Listlessness
7. Pain or stiffness in muscles.

Headache is generaly the first sign of polio. Other common signs are nausea, fever, constipation, fatigue and listlessness. These are vague and indefinite signs which can mean some other illness is coming on. But they are DANGER signals. Polio generally is regarded as a disease of the spinal cord and the central nervous system.

Many people think that infantile paralysis always cripples the person it attacks. It does not. Many people have it in such mild form that they never realize it. You yourself may once have had polio and never known it.

The disease rarely hits anyone so severely that they become paralyzed. Even if it does happen, they will not always be crippled or handicapped.

Forty to 60 per cent of children or adults who are afflicted by polio completely recover, or almost completely without any visible evidence of paralysis. Another 25 to 30 per cent will recover with only a mild degree of paralysis.

Only 15 to 25 per cent will be left more or less severely handicapped, unable to use some muscle. But rehabilitation and special devices can do wonders with them.

What To Do

Beware of polio epidemics. A big part in combatting polio is immediate rest and immediate treatment. Check with your doctor at first signs of polio.

Avoid crowds. Prevent fatigue, late hours, chilling from swimming too long in cold water, or

Brides Smile Prettily After Wedding Ceremonies

JONES-BRUBAKER

Before an altar decorated with gladioli, palms and two seven branch candelabra Miss Marilyn Arlene Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace N. Jones, 178 N. Warren-av, exchanged vows, June 4, with John Galen Brubaker of the navy, son of Mrs. Grace Brubaker of Savannah, O.

The wedding took place in Glenwood Methodist Church with Rev. Joseph B. Shellhaas officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white suit trimmed in navy blue. She wore navy and white accessories. A white orchid corsage completed her costume.

Attending the bride were Miss Miriam Jones, maid of honor and sister of the bride. Mr. Donald Brubaker, of the navy, served as best man. Seating the guests were Mr. Robert Riggins of Pickerington, O., Mr. Arden Hargraves of Columbus and Mr. Eugene Henry of Savannah.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the church. Hostesses were Mrs. Robert Riggins of Pickerington, Mrs. Eugene Henry of Savannah, Miss Marilyn Walker and Miss Miriam Jones.

The new Mrs. Brubaker is a graduate of Steubenville High School and is an employe of Port Columbus Naval Air Station. Mr. Brubaker is at present a chief petty officer of the United States Navy. Following a wedding trip to Chicago, Ill., the couple resides in Columbus.

GLASS-LEROY

A candle lit altar decorated with palms and baskets of white gladoli made a decorative setting, at the Warren Avenue Church of the Nazarene, for the marriage June 11, of Miss Esther Glass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Glass, 593 Wiltshire-rd, to Mr. G. Richard LeRoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin J. LeRoy, 110 S. Algonquin-av. Rev. H. B. Anthony assisted by Rev. C. G. Stanley read the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown styled with a deep nylon yoke trimmed in a bertha and edged with lace. The long fitted sleeves tapered to points over each hand and the fitted bodice was held by a beautiful bow in the back and blended into a full skirt with train. A tiara trimmed with orange blossoms held her finger tip veil of illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid.

Miss Ruth Ellen Stevenson, of Killbuck, Ohio, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of yellow net over taffeta and carried yellow roses and blue delphinium tied with blue ribbon. Miss Dolores Davis and Mrs. Don Drake, the bridesmaid and bridesmatron, were dressed alike in blue net over taffeta, carrying yellow roses and blue delphinium tied with yellow ribbon.

Danny Reese, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer for the double ring ceremony, and Marilyn LeRoy, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl.

Cheryl Reese, 2½ - year - old niece of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," and Miss Carol Keeler and Mr. Gene Wolford sang several songs accompanied by Miss Martha Garner in the musical program, preceding the ceremony.

Mr. Myron Baker served as best man and seating the guests were Mr. John Glass, brother of the bride, Mr. Bernard Haughn and Mr. Don Drake.

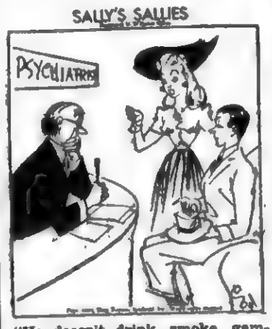
The bride's mother wore a two-piece dress of dusty rose with navy accessories and a corsage of gardenias. The groom's mother wore a two-piece aqua dress with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Miss Mary Miller, Miss Ella Lou Green, and Mrs. Barbara Burleson served as hostesses, following the wedding, at a reception held at the Beechwold for 90 guests.

The new bride and groom are making their home at 3111 W. Broad-st.

Hilltop Nurses To Graduate July 8 At Grant Hospital

Mary Snyder



Ruth Seufer

Attired in caps and uniforms the two pretty nurses above will graduate July 8 from the Grant Hospital School of Nursing. Friends since West High School days, the two girls decided about the same time to become nurses and entered Ohio State University together in the fall of 1944 for their preliminary training.

After two years instruction at the University they entered Grant Hospital for the completion of their training. Inseparable since their years at West, the two friends will part briefly after graduation exercises. For two days after Mary graduates she will become the bride of Rowan Overturf, an employe of her father's trucking concern.

Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Snyder, 570 Belvidere-av, and Ruth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Seufer, 117 N. Hague-av.

Excellence THRIVES ON CALMNESS-
It is especially true that "excellence thrives on calmness" where science, research and deep study are concerned.
Medical Education, from the time it begins in College, on through the years of Medical School, Internship and Postgraduate work, should be nurtured in calmness, and tutored by sound, experienced medical minds.
The prevention and cure of diseases affecting life and health are the special responsibility of our Medical men and women.
American Doctors shouldered this responsibility, when the present American Medical Association was organized in 1902, to raise and maintain standards of excellence in Medical Schools and Hospitals.
Through sound, calm, ethical planning and procedure, these standards are maintained and constantly improved.
KEEP American health and medical education the most excellent in the world—by keeping them out of the turmoil of politics.

NO MORE TRAIN RIDES FOR YOU, OLD BOY

NEWS HE IS "GROUNDED" permanently from riding trains is not received gleefully by "Bill," a German shepherd expressed to Cheyenne, Wyo., from Germany by his soldier master two years ago, and not called for. Express company employes found several homes for him, but he always returned to the trains, took many trips, even going as far as Florida. A Cheyenne tag always got him routed back to Cheyenne where he is shown receiving the railroad's edict from Paul Kegler, yard inspector, while Phyllis McGlathery tries to be comforting to the saddened "ex-boomer." (International)

Wick Leonard—

oughfare is decorated with Wick's magic brush, which commands the attention of all Columbus as they ride past. Folks come from all parts of the state to view the Christmas parade of colors made possible by Wick.

Busy already preparing frames, which he expects to use for pictures he paints for his fair patrons, Wick again will make his trek via private bus to every important carnival and fair in the state. Starting at Wellston in July, he will paint, exhibit and sell his productions at scores of expositions, until the scheduled Lancaster Fair the middle of October.

His specialty is sketching and painting his favorite subjects—animals — and he is acclaimed among the most popular in the country.

"On the Spot" Paintings

Upon arrival at fairs he manages to set up his studio next to the art building if there happens to be one there. He has painted animals of every description. His "on the spot" paintings require much ingenuity. Frequently fair goers wish paintings of dogs, now dead. The customer describes the dog, Wick sets to work and pronto, the job is finished.

Another subject requested by his clientele is that of dreams; described by his prospective buyer, Wick sets out to graphically draw his interpretation which generally meets with the approval of his client.

A PA system is installed near where he works, and as he paints his colorful creations, Mrs. Leonard provides appropriate music for the subject. For example, if he is painting a June scenic, pastoral topic, perhaps some "rose" song would assist Wick's deft hands, and attract popular attention. Yes, Wick has learned from experience the psychology of showmanship.

His father was an artist of no mean repute, and he has a sister in Cleveland who has taught art for 30 years. She is now 78, and still going strong.

To Make the Most of Summer at Home; Plan Your Wiring for Outdoor Living

An open air kitchen and dining room—electrically equipped.

THERE'LL be no place like home this summer if you use a little ingenuity in planning your electrical system for outdoor living, working and recreation. So state the residential wiring specialists who offer a number of worthwhile tips for making the most of summer at home. Here are some of their suggestions:

On the Terrace—Install one weatherproof convenience outlet on every 15 feet of house wall for handy use of portable lamps and appliances. The outlets should be placed 18 inches above the floor line, the engineers advise.

If you plan to cook and dine in this cooler out-of-door area, be sure to provide a circuit of number 12 wire. It will assure efficient operation of such appliances as the roaster, coffee maker, toaster or grill.

As for terrace lighting, you'll need one light on the building wall or on a centrally-located post. Either type, the specialists state, should be switch controlled from the house.

On the Porch — When planning the wiring for the porch, consider the advantages of doing some of the household chores in this area during the hot weather.

An ideal spot for ironing, sewing, cooking and dining, as well as for reading and recreation, the porch should be wired for its many possible uses. This means that enough duplex convenience outlets should be installed to serve portable lamps, a radio, electric fan and other appliances. At the very least, you will need one such outlet for every 15 feet of house wall.

A lighting circuit should be provided for the lamps, fixtures and low wattage appliances. If you expect to iron or cook on the porch, an additional circuit of number 12 wire is also needed. It will assure top performance from table appliances, the hand iron, ironer or hot plate.

For general illumination, install a central ceiling fixture, wall switch controlled, for each 150 square feet of porch area.

In the Yard — Electric tools and gardening aids can be used most efficiently when special outdoor wiring is available. For handy use of the electric lawn mower, hedge clipper and other equipment, install weatherproof convenience outlets on the outside walls of the house near spots where the tools will be used. The outlets also will provide convenient plug-in spots for portable lighting when needed for gardening after dark.

In addition, special wiring may be installed for:

Electric cooking appliances and lighting in the barbecue area;

Decorative garden lighting to dramatize the beauty of flowers and shrubbery after dark;

Flood lighting for nighttime sports and garden parties.

Polio Season—

other resistance-lowering factors that allow the virus to attack the nerve pathways. Do not swim in polluted waters. Keep clean. Wash before eating. Keep garbage covered and screen your house against flies and insects. Consult your family doctor about having a child's tonsils or adenoids removed during the summer months.

Be calm. Don't try to keep going if you don't feel well. Parents should instill hope that their child will recover shortly if they contract the disease. Fear is bad for anyone, especially for children.

Trabue Site—

develop, representing an investment of $135,000.

Within a week a 15 man committee of the Columbus Real Estate Board will submit a long list of other sites, including the three mentioned above.

County and city planners said all of them will be considered and the choice narrowed to three for the consideration of Dr. Thomas C. Holy, chairman of the state commission for the institutions' construction.

The state commission has threatened to move the multi-million dollar blind and deaf institutions from Columbus, if a suitable site in exchange is not found soon.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

"ONE of the most memorable experiences of my career," a famous war correspondent told his friend, "took place on my way to fill a lecture date in Buffalo. I met a beautiful girl in the diner. One thing led to another and it wasn't long before I was being entertained in her compartment.

"Suddenly she burst into tears. 'My husband is the most wonderful man in the world,' she sobbed, 'and look at me here kissing an absolute stranger.' She painted this husband in such glowing colors that the first thing you know, I was crying, too!"

"A dolorous picture," remarked the friend. "What happened next?"

"Nothing new," said the correspondent. "We just kissed and cried all the way to Buffalo."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

BEATRICE could see the pulse beating in Libby's throat when Libby said, "I have felt sterile. An awful feeling, Bee. To feel sexless. And what have I done because I was afraid? Bought clothes, more and more clothes, to try to feel like a woman. And flashed my diamonds under people's faces, and shocked a few, and wise-cracked. David's not coming back. He's not, you know. He's never coming here again. I made a mess of that."

"Yes," Beatrice said.

Libby said, "You're so normal, Bee. You and your faith in humanity. You've always had it, that belief in the decency of people generally. A fighting optimist. I've kidded you about it, haven't I? I envied it!" she cried vehemently. "I'd have given anything in the world to have it! It makes you healthy and strong and decent. It's your weapon against the disillusionment of these times. Spiritual armor. Why couldn't I have had it?"

"Why, Libby?"

Libby's face was grim. "I'll tell you, Bee. I was scarred early. As a child. Do you remember my father—my handsome, rash, indulging father? He was faithless, completely and utterly. Not with just one woman. Oh, no. Lots of women. Everyone knew. Everyone always does. I wasn't supposed to know. But I wasn't that dumb. And that's why my mother turned her energy to civic and charity works, and that's why she died. She wouldn't fight to live. No will to live, the doctors said. She kept it all to herself, but she was burnt out inside. And when she got up to speak at various meetings she couldn't help but wonder if she were speaking to my father's current lady friend."

"Oh, no," Beatrice cried in a hushed voice. Clara, the gentlest, kindest, warmest human creature she had ever known. Then she said, "But you loved Dick."

"Yes. I thought what we all think, 'With us it's going to be different. I shall profit by my parents' mistakes.' And what happened? I shouldn't have married a doctor with a charming bedside manner. I was engulfed by jealousy and suspicions. I didn't believe a man could be faithful. I was poisoned. None of it was Dick's fault, Bee. Poor Dick. He took a terrible beating from me. I was brutally sarcastic. I ruined it, killed it, smashed it to pieces—bright gal, Libby. And now I know that Dick was as innocent as Jane. His marriage to Helen isn't just a marriage. It's a good marriage. But for a time I went merrily on my little way buying goofier and goofier hats, and going to bed at night wearing a smug little smile over my cold cream because my happiness didn't depend upon a man. I had my child, and plenty of money, and I was free. A feminist? Never! I didn't give a hoot about women's rights, or equality in wages, or any of that sort of thing. I cared only about Libby. That's as far as my femenism went."

Libby's sleek head drooped. "Until I knew that what I thought was freedom was the cruelest bondage a woman can know. That's what divorce is—bondage. Until I knew that I was not some specially privileged person who had been given a reprieve from sorrow." She stood still and looked at Beatrice with sensitive expressiveness. "I care about David. I care so much that I've been in a panic, and that's why I've done everything wrong and made a mess of it. I've talked too much, I've scorned too many precious things because my nerves were screaming for some assurance from him. I've been too smart, too bright, too callous—and I've lost him."

"Do you trust him?"

Libby smiled. "If he married me, I would trust him. Because if he married me, I'd know that of all women he had chosen me. He's not a boy. He's a man, and a balanced man. But what's the use of dreaming? You can feel interest ebbing. You can feel disapproval." She shook her head. "I have no reprieve from sorrow. I have only the alchemy of absence. The humor, the gentleness in his eyes, his lack of confusion when most of us are so fearfully confused."

"Yes," Beatrice said. "We are." She had a sensation of urgency that she must do something about her own confusion.

Libby spoke in a low rich voice, "I hadn't realized until lately how impoverished you are when you live without an ideal. It's human to want to make a hero out of somebody. David played the game perfectly with me right up to the end. A game. That's what it's been. Where's the woman? Find the woman behind the frou-frou. Melt the ice and find her heart. See, it beats like any other heart. It sends out the same message that other women's hearts send out. Love or perish, your heart tells you. The more you ask of love, the more it will give you. Not a smart girl, Bee. Not even honest with him. I didn't let him know I could feel anything. We played for laughs in an amusing game. The game is over and I lost. I don't know what I've said to you. It just came tumbling out." She sat down and rubbed her eyes. "I'm so tired, so awfully tired, and all cried out."

"You crying, Libby?"

"Yes. Oh, yes. Tear-stained pillow and everything. If only I could laugh and say, 'This isn't happening to you, Libby. To some other woman, sure, but not to you, my pet. None of this morbid emotionalism for you, dear.' This is your old friend, Bee, all soft around the edges and with one straw to cling to."

"What is it?"

Libby shook her head wearily. "To be myself, to be truthful, to be a better person, and a better mother to Jane. I've been a rotten mother, Bee. Lots of things have to be done for Jane that haven't been done before. I'm ashamed to admit it, but in some ways she's more mature than I. Certainly more honest. It's that clear honesty of the young that shames you." Her quietness has become like a reproach to me; her uncomplainingness, my own little sin." Closing her eyes she said with a hoarse little laugh, "I'm all talked out, Bee. I haven't given you a chance to say anything. I'm a phony, Bee, and I'm sick of it and deeply ashamed."

"I don't want to say anything."

Libby looked at her through swollen eyes. "In the beginning I prided myself on the fact that I didn't have to accept money from a man." She shook her head. "And now I want to be a nice married lady who has nothing her husband doesn't give her."

"Would you break with everything you have and know here and go to South Africa?"

"Would I? Just give me the chance."

"What about Jane?"

Libby said, "You know I'd never let anything separate me from Jane. She comes first—before David. But what's the use of talking? David doesn't even like me. Aren't you weary of my little comedy of errors, Bee?"

It was then that Jane came in followed by her father.

"I must be running along," Beatrice said. She could not be a witness to more wreckage.

"Don't go, Bee," Dick Gundria said. "I think you ought to be here with—with Libby."

A tall man beginning to grow gray at the temples, Dick Gundria, mild and steady and [redacted] had the look that so many doctors had of not getting quite enough sleep and looking older than they were. He was a person in whom people confided without quite realizing that they had told him their innermost secrets, because his presence had the calm and comforting effect of relaxing them. His war record was brilliant, and he was fast becoming nationally famous. He and Helen, his wife, and their two small sons lived in a rambling white clapboard house not far from Iowa, and were seldom seen at parties. Helen, a girl who would have been beautiful if she had cared about being beautiful, was rarely seen without a car full of children and dogs. Their home was an informal place, where usually a visitor would find a sheepdog dozing on the hearth, and Helen in dungarees in the basement removing varnish from an old chest. Neither she nor Dick could ever be pretentious, she about her distinguished family name or Dick about his growing fame. They did not think themselves at all unusual because they were happy. On the contrary, to Helen and Dick it was as normal to be happy as it was to work hard, and grow your own vegetables, and to have babies.

Jane stopped in the center of the room. She did not remove her brown checked coat or furry mittens. Though her eyes were excited, she was very pale.

Looking puzzled, Libby arose from the sofa.

"Hello, Dick," she said hospitably. "Won't you stay to tea with us? Jane looks exhausted. Darling, are you ill?"

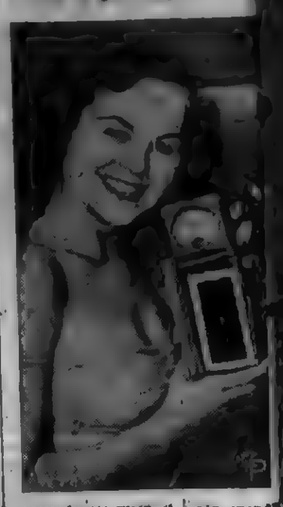
"No, mother, I'm not ill. Really I'm not." Her eyes appealed to her father. Help me.

Dick went to her and put his arm around her.

"Libby, this is hard, hard to say—I honestly don't know where to begin. I've had a long talk with Jane. It's been tough on her. That's why she looks this way. I had to get to the bottom of it. Libby, don't blame her for coming to me with her troubles. I was the logical person for her to turn to. It's a dirty trick what we've done to our daughter because we didn't make a go of it. We've come out of it pretty unscathed but Jane hasn't."

"What are you trying to tell me?" Libby asked in a frightened voice.

Jane's voice shook when she spoke. "Let me do it, Daddy. Why should you speak for me? I'm old enough to speak for myself." She faced Libby. In a stronger voice she said, "I called Daddy and asked if he would see me today in his office. I had to talk it over with him first. I... I want to live with him and Helen and the boys."



Libby was speechless. After a moment she cried, "You... you what! Jane, do you know what you're saying?"

"Yes. I know what I'm saying. I've been thinking about it for a long time. I tried not to... I didn't want to hurt you. I... I don't want to hurt you now. But I—You see, you don't really need me."

Suntan Timer

HOW MUCH TIME she can spend in the sun without risking a burn no longer is guesswork for Lois Westgren of Cleveland. She is holding a "suntan meter" developed by General Electric company illuminating engineers to determine tanning energy of sunlight and artificial light. It gives a reading which may be translated readily in terms of minutes. (International)

Classic Suit

Smart and useful.

By VERA WINSTON

A SVELTE SUIT of fine gabardine, cut on classic lines, but with softening touches, is a good choice for that important buy that has to do duty day after day. This one has a club collar that is convertible, and a single breasted closing. There is arrow shaped incrusting at the neckline, one curved pocket at the hip, and seaming converges towards a narrow waist.

TWO INJURED IN FALLS

Fire Department emergency squadmen were called to 286 S. Burgess-av, Wednesday, June 29, when Jack Riggs, 27, of that address, was injured in a fall. He was taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Charles Humphrey, 42, of 1443 Thomas-av, was also injured in a fall June 29. He was taken to Grant Hospital.

HOW MUCH OF YOUR BUDGET GOES TO PAY Someone Else's TAXES?

Perhaps you never realized that any of it went to pay someone else's taxes—but it DOES.

The reason?

Because certain favored corporations engaged in profit business—such as co-operative corporations, government businesses, and others do not pay federal income taxes like the rest of us. It is estimated that more than a billion dollars is lost each year to our federal treasury because these tax-exempts are permitted to escape payment of that much in federal income taxes.

Naturally, the money HAS to come from somewhere. So it is ADDED on to the tax bill that all the rest of us must pay. We have to pay Uncle Sam his share before we do anything else with our incomes. Co-ops and other tax exempts should be REQUIRED to do the same.

When they pay their full share, the income tax load on the rest of us can be made lighter.

ALL BUSINESS SHOULD PAY TAXES ON THE SAME BASIS

Right now Congress is talking about more and bigger income taxes on those already paying their full share and more. Every income taxpayer should urge his representatives in Congress to TAX THE UNTAXED FIRST before adding additional income taxes on the rest of us. TAXING THE UNTAXED would make increases on the rest of us unnecessary.

OLD PACIFIC PALS MEET AGAIN

PASTOR ROBERT SALAU, pidgin-English speaking preacher of the Solomon Islands, South Pacific, renews his acquaintanceship in Washington with Sgt. F. E. Goss, USMC. The Marine and the Seventh Day Adventist minister met during the war on the island of Emirau, Solomons. Calau is showing Goss one of the hunting-fishing spears used by natives of the islands. Congress to Do Nothing About Threatened Deficit?

Berlin Air Lift Has Cost Each of Us $1 Per Month

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—There is a strengthening belief on Capitol Hill that Congress may do nothing about the threatened governmental deficit for the 1950 fiscal year.

A high Democratic leader who has been pressing for action on President Truman's four-billion-dollar tax increase request commented: "There seems to be little enthusiasm in Congress for increasing taxes."

Washington

The leader, who is close to the White House, indicated he did not believe there would be any effective cut in the president's 42-billion-dollar budget, and that Congress might adjourn without doing anything at all about the deficit.

In that event, he pointed out, if expenditures exceed revenues, the government will have to engage in deficit financing during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1. This would increase the monumental 251-billion-dollar public debt.

Mr Truman forecast a deficit of 600 to 700 million dollars, but congressional tax experts have predicted it might go as high as three billion dollars.

One out, short of higher taxes or decreased spending, remains. Congress could adopt the proposal of Rep. Wilbur D Mills (R), Arkansas, requiring corporations to speed up their tax payments. This would bring in 4.6 to 4.8 billion dollars to provide temporary relief.

● OPERATION VITTLES FINALE—When the Berlin Air Lift is finally stopped, it will save every man, woman and child in the United States about a dollar a month. In addition, the end of "Operation Vittles" will mean that:

1—The Military Air Transport Service, from which hundreds of planes were siphoned from the very start of the operation, will get enough planes back to re-establish in full its post-war routes in the Pacific and Continental Divisions.

2—The Navy will get back the 20 tankers diverted from regular operations to the "Sea Lift" which delivered a total of 121 million gallons of gasoline to the Air Lift.

3—Marine and Navy officers, men and planes reassigned from the Pacific will go back to their posts; strengthening the United States in the vital Far East.

4—The Army and Air Force, both calling loudly for trained men, will be able to take hundreds of Air Lift personnel for placement in combat and training units.

High ranking officers in all three services agree that the Berlin blockade, possibly designed to weaken the Allies, has had the exact opposite effect on American armed forces.

● NEW TYPE WARPLANE—America's top aviation designers are working on a supersonic fighter plane with a revolutionary "adjustable" wing that may conquer the problems of flying faster than sound.

Movable Wings for Planes

The United States, in two short years starting from scratch, has learned enough about supersonic flight to be able to build a vast force of war planes if an emergency arises, but—

The toughest knot to be unraveled was how to land a supersonic plane, which had to have sweptback wings to fly faster than sound, without spinning in at low landing speeds.

The answer is a wing built around a spar which runs from wingtip to wingtip. The pilot will be able by "push button" methods to sweep the wings back for high speed and forward for safe landings.

The wings also will be adjustable upward to provide a greater "bite" in the thin air of high altitudes.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE HILLTOP RECORD

BEHIND THE SCENES in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HEPBURN AND TRACY PRAISE BROADWAY'S JUDY HOLLIDAY

HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood, they say, is a jungle, every man for himself.

And yet Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy fairly overwhelm my ears with praise for Broadway's Judy Holliday, who is appearing in their M-G-M picture, "Adam's Rib."

Hepburn

I arrive just as director George Cukor is about to rehearse a scene where Miss Holliday, accused of shooting a man, is on the witness stand, with Tracy as the prosecutor and Katharine (his wife in the story) as attorney for the defense.

"We'll run through the whole thing for you," Cukor tells me.

With a most unactorish pride over somebody else getting the spotlight, Tracy says:

"You know what I told George? When you've got a person like Judy Holliday in front of the camera, a director should just leave the set and go down to the necktoss for the day.

"And she's not the only one in this picture. We have David Wayne from 'Mr. Roberts' and Jean Hagen. Grandma Moses and I (so help me, that's what he calls Katharine?) just stand back and let the rest of the cast have the reins."

I cock an eye at Katharine, sitting at the counsel's table before the judge.

No other big star in Hollywood would be caught dead looking as she does at this rehearsal. It's not unselfconscious, either. It's some deep complex that makes her shun all attempts at prettifying herself. Underneath, she's the h—— of a woman (pardon the expression), but she hates for you to find it out.

She's wearing a pair of nondescript slacks and a light-colored shirt with the tail out. On one side of her head, her hair is done up in curlers.

She walks over and we stand looking at Judy Holliday, sitting in the witness chair.

JACK CARSON NO WEAKER WITHOUT HAIR ON CHEST

"You know what she reminds me of?" asks Katharine. "One of those women painted by the French impressionists. Hugo, expressive eyes dominating the canvas."

Director Cukor starts the rehearsal. It's cross examination and Spencer and Katharine are wrangling over his sardonic pounding at the witness.

Miss Holliday's replies are stupid, fumbling, yet she has a certain desperate sincerity that tugs at you.

Tracy is worrying at her now like a dog with an animal at bay.

"They tell me," he pounds, "that you are subject to ungovernable fits of temper." He leans toward her. "What," he demands, "do you say to that?"

The tension suddenly is cut by the voice of Director Cukor.

"Lunch," he says.

ON "The Good Humor Man" set, Jack Carson, who is as free of inhibitions as Katharine Hepburn is full of them, is wandering around in a pair of striped shorts and nothing else.

I must report that this hunk of man has no hair whatever on his chest.

"You shave it off?" I ask.

"No," replies Jack, "I don't have any. And I never found it made me any weaker, either."

I don't want to give the idea that Carson habitually wanders around sets in this state of undress. He is about to do a scene in a police station where harassed officers are thawing him out after he has been locked in a "Good Humor" ice cream truck.

Jack Carson

Director Lloyd Bacon orders things under way. Jack sits in a chair and they wrap him in blankets. They balance a hot water bag on his head and put glowing electric heaters on all sides of him. They put his feet in a bucket of steaming water.

This is no fun, even at Carson's salary.

MARRY TO SETTLE ARGUMENT

A BROWN-EYED honey-blonde co-ed and a blue-eyed, six-foot-two student are married on a radio program in Hollywood to settle an argument over what color eyes will predominate in their offspring. The argument started in a classroom at the University of Washington. The bride and groom, Priscilla Lone Tomlinson Gardner, 20, and Tandy Gardner, 24, are congratulated by the radio program's emcee, John Nelson (left). (International Soundphoto)

Farmers, Sportsmen Invited to Game Regulation Parley

Conservation Commissioner H. A. Rider this week asked the Division of Conservation field staff to urge both farmers and sportsmen in their counties to attend the county and district game regulation conferences to be held between now and the public game hearing in Columbus, June 4.

"Individual hunters, the organized sportsmen and farm groups," Rider said, "should not overlook their opportunity of having a voice in setting rules and regulations for hunting and trapping."

Each year following the county and district meetings where regulations affecting specific areas are discussed, a farmer and a sportsmen's representative from each of the state's seven districts, attend a public hearing in Columbus, meeting with the Conservation Commission to present recommendations used by the commission to determine regulations for the state as a whole.

The 1949 public hearing is scheduled for the State Office Building in Columbus.

Auto Accident Takes Life of Former Columbus Couple

A former Columbus man died June 30 of injuries received in an auto accident, which took the life of his wife last Sunday.

News of the death of Paul Keeler was received in Columbus by his niece, Mrs. H. M. Snyder, 41 N. Huron-av. His wife, Mrs. Lydia Latham Keeler, was killed Sunday when the car her husband was driving went out of control somewhere in Kansas. Mr. Keeler died in a Denver hospital.

The Keelers were en route to their home in Denver, following a visit in Columbus. Their daughter, Mary Keeler, who also suffered injuries, was reported in a fair condition in a Denver hospital.

Double funeral services for the couple will be held at 3 p. m. today at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home. Burial will be in Wesley Chapel Cemetery.

Two From Hilltop Now In Training

Mrs. Frank Ongaro, 57 Letchworth-av, reported last week that her son, Eddie, Nolan, and his friend, Wade L. Williams, Jr., 2089 W. Broad-st, are in their third week of training at Parris Island, S. C., Marine training base.

John W. Nicholes, about 70, told police he was robbed late June 29 of $1600 at Sylvan-av, and W. Broad-st, where he had his car and trailer parked. He said the money was taken from his pocket by a man described as having an egg-shaped head.

Rev. Lorenz And Family Enroute To New England

Rev. James F. Lorenz and family are leaving this week for a vacation in New England. They will visit friends in their first parish in Newton, N. H., where they served the First Christian Church from 1930 to 1935. Rev. Lorenz was ordained in this church.

They will also visit Boston, where Rev. and Mrs. Lorenz attended seminary, the Gordon College of Theology. Here Rev. Lorenz received his B. D. degree. Their vacation will also include a trip through the White Mountains.

600 Yards of Creek Closed to Fishing

The Ohio Conservation Commission has officially closed that portion of Deer Creek in Madison County to public fishing between state route 665 and the northern extremity of Lake Madison. The restriction was effective June 28, and affects approximately 600 yards of stream.

The action was taken to eliminate highway parking traffic hazards on Route 665. The birm on either side of the bridge is not wide enough for safe parking.

Fishermen have been using that portion of Deer Creek not only for fishing but as a convenient entrance to Lake Madison.

REFRIGERATOR BURNS

Firemen were called to 463 S. Central-av at 8:22 p. m. Wednesday, June 29. A damage of $20 was reported when the motor of a refrigerator was burned up.

61 Chickens Judged in Fox Food Shop Contest

AT WEIGHING-IN CEREMONY — Here is a section of the crowd of youngsters milling around the judges during the judging in the chicken-raising contest conducted by the Fox Food Shop. The market distributed free chicks to the community's children at Easter. Sixty-one grew to maturity and were entered in the contest. Ninety-nine other youngsters who lost their chickens showed up, however, and all received treats from Harold Fox, owner of the market.

First prize for best chockrel went to Ricker Fritz, 83 S. Richardson-av. The fowl weighed two pounds, 15 ounces. Prize for the best pullet was won by Jimmy Horne, 100 N. Eureka-av. Three other prizes went to Jack Kamer, 456 S. Wayne-av, Sonny Davis, 143 Highland-av, and Donky Weigand, formerly of 1593 Union-av. Donky now is on his way to Guam where his father is stationed in the navy, but, at his insistence, his grandmother entered his chicken in the contest for him.—Hilltop Record Photo.

Anent Frozen Eggs

One Dr. Socrates Kaloyereas, who has the astounding title of "associate food preservationist" at Louisiana State University, comes forth with the astounding news that he has discovered a method of freezing eggs in the shell that's far superior to any previous solution of the problem.

The chemist opines that today's frozen eggs aren't really eggs but egg products — a mixture of yolk and white plus other ingredients like salt and sugar. They're frozen in cans and sold at the rate of about 2000 tons annually, chiefly to bakeries.

These eggs, as well as the cold storage variety, are a long way from being the real McCoy, Dr. Kaloyereas says. He claims they lose weight, pick up odors and new flavors, fracture yolk membrane, and develop mold.

All this is minimized, he says, under his method.

He explains that when he started experimenting, he had two chief problems: first, space had to be gained inside the egg for expansion when it froze; second, the white froze faster and was cracked when the inner yellow turned to ice.

Here's how he overcame those handicaps:

The egg is placed in a box with a dehydrating agent. The air is pulled out of the box, creating a vacuum. The egg is frozen in the vacuum.

This takes out some of the free water of the egg, and some of its bound water clings to the inner surface of the shell, leaving room for expansion. Then a molecular change occurs in the white, and that gives more expansion room. Then, too, the freezing rate of the white and yellow reverses, so that the yellow freezes first, and that helps.

If all of this holds good, Junior may soon be going to market with admonition to "get the frozen eggs, not the fresh ones," and it could be that Junior and the eggs would be of the same age.

Monday Is Deadline To Register

The Franklin County Elections Board announces extended office hours for next Monday to permit Columbus voters to register and transfer their registrations for the Aug. 9 municipal primary election. Monday is the deadline.

The board's office at 214½ S. High-st will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. on that day. It will be open regular hours 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.—the rest of this week, excepting Saturday, when it will close at noon.

Persons who must register are those who are not already listed and are 21 or will be 21 on or before Nov. 8; those who have not voted at a general, special or primary election in the last two calendar years; those who have changed their names since registering.

Persons who have moved since registering must transfer their registrations by written notice by mail or appearing at the board office in person.

Board officials urged discharged veterans who were registered at time of their induction to check registration records to insure they are properly registered.

Church Groups, Record Carriers To See Film

The Hilltop YMCA will entertain children and members of Hilltonia United Brethren Church and the Burgess Avenue Evangelical United Brethren Church with a film on Friday, July 8. A showing will be held at 10 a. m. at the Hilltonia Church and at 1:30 p. m. at the Burgess Avenue Church.

Hilltop Record carriers will see the film at 3:30 Friday at the YMCA.

There will be two special showings of the film, one on Friday evening at 7:30 at the Y center, and the other Saturday at 10 a. m.

Stout Reports On Kiwanis Convention

Phil Stout, attorney, and vice-president of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, was scheduled to address the club at their meeting today and give a report on the international convention at Atlantic City recently.

Herbert Deems, treasurer of the Kiwanis baseball fund, announced this week that the clubs had netted $5515.30 from their recent ball game at Red Bird stadium and that this money will be used by all the clubs in the county to send boys from this area to the Big Brother camp.

Don is a graduate and a former athlete of West High School. His new address is 3704 Training Squadron, Flt. 4228, Lockland, AFB, San Antonio, Tex.

Hilltop Author Sees Bright Future for U. S. Government

Frederick Kane, 706, S. Hague-av, a musician of the early days of the Hartman Theater orchestra pit, who now writes books about astrology, has recently finished a new book entitled "The Next Ten Years."

Mr. Kane is recognized as an authority on astrology and is able to map a chart of the future, when facts concerning an individual birth dates are known.

Co-author of the book is Mrs. Kane. Mr. Kane describes his own book thus:

"While many folks are referring to my new book as sensational, I can assure you that it was not meant to be anything than an honest portrayal of the future of the United States. The reference I make to the years 1955 and 1956 when great events will rock the nation is not intended to frighten anyone but only to prepare the people for what is to come so that they may guard themselves and their families against participation on the wrong side of the political conflict."

Mr. Kane relates that in writing the book it was necessary to study carefully the political history of the United States from 1776 to the present year and then to chart all the astrological aspects which coincided with the important events of the past in order to know what would happen in the future when similar astrologic aspects occur.

Events were charted up to the year 2000 and Mr. Kane found that the years which stood out as the most critical were those between the years 1950 and 1960. Therefore his new book was entitled "The Next Ten Years."

The authors are not predicting that this country will become communistic. To the contrary it is the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. Kane that astrological indications point to no extreme forms of government either right or left and that out of temporary chaos will be born the most ideal form of government ever devised by man.

Swimmers Don Bathing Suits During Hot Humid Fourth at Hilltop Pool

HOT ISN'T IT? Maybe you'd like to cool your toes at the Hilltop Swimming Pool like these pretty misses did last week-end during the long, hot Fourth of July holiday. Standing in the water are little Susan Holtschulte and Sandy Cooper. Sitting along the edge of the pool (left to right) and dangling their feet are: Crin Taylor, Fay Grassle, Donna Spring, Shirley Thurell, Connie Taylor, Jo Mason, Margie Chesrick, Darlene Rozell, Joyce Reed, Iris Cline, Ann Hood, Barbara Hood, Rosie Shoemaker. Teddi Hill and Marty Deitsch.

TAKING A FEW SHOTS on the basketball court at the Hilltop Swimming Pool were these boys pictured above. The basketball court, constructed about three years ago, is an added feature of the pool. The black-top, regulation size court gives basketball fans an opportunity for above-the-surface sport and recreation. For hungry youngsters there is a refreshment stand on the pool grounds.

Wish You Were There?

4000 At Hilltop Pool During 3-Day Holiday

With temperatures soaring to mid-90's over the long hot Fourth of July holiday week-end, the above Hilltoppers sought temporary relief at the Hilltop Swimming Pool.

Sunburned noses and sore shoulders were reminders this week that too much sun causes its own grief. However, the luckier youngsters (those with darker complexions) are happily sporting sun tans.

4000 Attendance

Dave Randall, West High School social science teacher, and assistant at the pool, reported this week that approximately 4000 were in attendance at the pool over the three-day period, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Manager of the pool, Bob Case, informs the Record that the Hilltop Swimming Pool is the largest in the city. Approximately 163 by 165 feet, the pool holds 950,000 gallons of water. Pure well water is changed daily every 14 or 15 hours by a special filtering process.

Swimming Classes

But swimming isn't limited to teen-agers and older folks alone. Children as young as five years of age attend swimming classes at the Hilltop pool.

Setting up the annual city swimming and water safety program, Red Cross leaders and pool operators have been amazed at the number of children showing up for classes. In many cases, the prospective pupils have numbered two or three times the total expected, and new class schedules are being arranged so that all may be accommodated.

Instructors, hired by the pools, are Red Cross-trained in a program of that agency dating back to World War I. Lessons are offered in beginning, intermediate and advanced swimming, junior and senior life-saving.

Radio Station WBNS, which co-operates in the program, furnishes medals and ribbons for swimming achievements awards and presents a trophy at the end of the year to the pool having the best educational program. This year WBNS will present a "Polliwog club" button to each youngster as soon as he learns to swim 10 strokes.

A meet is held at each pool at the end of the season and Red Cross certificates are presented to those who have completed one of the courses. A final meet for outstanding swimmers from the seven city and suburban pools will be held in the fall at the Ohio State University natatorium.

W. R. Middendorf and Sam Oldham, director and assistant director of the Red Cross chapter's safety services, are in charge of the program.

Bender Pool

The memory of a Hilltop boy who gave his life in World War I is perpetuated in the popular pool park in Valleyview.

The park formerly known as Curtis Bender Park was named in honor of Sergeant Curtis G. Bender, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bender, then of 39 S. Park-av, who were long time residents of the Hilltop.

C. A. Slade Hurt In California; Is Hospitalized

Charles A. Slade, attorney, 1114½ W. Broad-st, is in Mercy Hospital, Merced, Calif., with injuries suffered Sunday, when he was pinned beneath his auto trailer, when it went out of control on a grade near Mariposa, Calif.

Slade suffered a dislocated right hip and a fractured right ankle. He had been on a vacation trip through the northwest and west with his wife and two children.

Bender enlisted May 25, 1917, in the 166th U. S. Infantry Machine Gun Co., Rainbow division, at the age of 22 years. He was killed in action in France, July 27, 1918.

While in France for the first six months, Bender made a mark of 92.5 per cent in machine gunning and army officials had decided to return him to the United States in order that he might give instructions in army camps here. Young Bender had written this to his parents and added that he expected his mother "to have a chicken dinner waiting for him" as he would return soon "if the Huns didn't get him before his departure."

First To Lose Life

Then came the first engagement at Chateau Thierry in the summer of 1918. The Rainbow boys were in action. Bender, noticing the platoon to his left in trouble, went over to aid them in "cleaning up" the trouble. A high explosive came over from the German line and took his life. This was the second day in the field. Bender was the first Hilltop boy to give his life in action.

Charles G. Hoar, then of 157 N. Chase-av, who was at that time in a hospital in Bordeaux, France, at Base 14, stated that another wounded member of the Rainbow Division, on a cot next to him, mentioned seeing Bender killed. Hoar wrote this information home to his parents in July. This was the first news to be received by the Bender family concerning the death of their son. Verification of his death was received from Washington later.

Bender was buried about one kilometer from where he was killed but was later returned to America and is now buried in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Upon the close of the war a post of the American Legion was organized on the Hilltop known as Curtis Bender post. In 1929 the charter was sacrificed and members were then affiliated with Franklin Post.

Need Early Response In Blood Campaign

Pledge cards have been mailed to all members of the Hilltop Business Association in an attempt to get donors for the Red Cross blood bank, according to C. H. Campbell, secretary of the association. He urges prompt return of these cards due to the present shortage of blood at the center.

It'll Be Hot Today Like Yesterday

Last evening's drenching hour-long rain brought temporary relief to a hot, humid Hilltop. Temperatures here ranged from 93 to 96 degrees during the afternoon.

Ohio and Hilltop farmers were pleased to see the rain, which brought needed water to crops.

The crop picture in central Ohio has been better than in the northern part of the state, where irrigation of crops has been required.

Corn has grown rapidly due to the extreme hot weather. Much of the corn in central and southern Ohio now is five feet high with tassels showing. Fully half the crop now is past the cultivating stage. Some farmers are using sprays to kill weeds.

Hay cutting and baling has been favorable. The second cutting of alfalfa is under way.

Yes, the rain brought temporary relief to hot city folks and to farmers but the weather bureau has pessimistically predicted at least two more days of 95 degree temperature.

Bowen Is New K. of C. Head

The Santa Maria Council No. 2898 of the Knights of Columbus has elected Donald W. Bowen, 679 S. Hague-av, to the post of grand knight.

Other new officers are Frank Strapp, deputy grand knight; Carl LaValle, chancellor; Fred Pagura, Sr., warden; Roger Baird, recording secretary; Don Howard, treasurer; Carl Nappi, advocate; Roman DiSabato, inside guard; Charles Kauderer, outside guard; Edward Tonti, trustee; Frank Christ, delegate; A. T. Corrigan and Dan Sheehan, alternates.

J. C. Allen Gets Horse Show Post

J. Curtis Allen will be official photographer for the first annual horse show and rodeo held by the Western Horse Exhibitors' Association of Ohio, it was announced this week.

The show is sponsored by the Franklin City Council of the American Legion and will be held at the Fairgrounds Coliseum July 9 and 10.

Diphtheria Time Soon To Be Here

A city-wide campaign for voluntary diphtheria immunization has been launched by the Columbus Health Department. In a letter to each of the city's some 600 physicians, Dr. Ollie M. Goodloe, health commissioner, stressed the fact that Columbus has the worst diphtheria record of any of Ohio's major cities.

The fault lies in the lack of immunization of pre-school children, Dr. Goodloe declares.

So far this year more than 20 cases have been reported in Columbus. The usual cycle of diphtheria is marked by an upswing in the autumn. The campaign for immunization is being launched before the fall increase of cases.

Dr. Goodloe pointed out that the first diphtheria immunization should be given by the first birthday. Other immunizations should be given at the ages of three, six and 10 to provide immunity during the years the child is most apt to contract the disease.

David Ely Gets 2nd Lt. Commission

David W. Ely, graduate of West High School, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ely, 1977 Harrisburg-pk, on June 17 received his gold bars and reserve commission as a Second Lieutenant in Field Artillery in the U. S. Army after completing the advanced training course at Ohio State University.

Dr. Smith To Speak Here On Sunday

Dr. W. Stanley Smith, new secretary of the area office of the Methodist Church, will fill the pulpit at Sunday services at Westgate Methodist Church according to Rev. Norman Schreiber, pastor. Dr. Smith is a former district superintendent of the northeastern Ohio conference.

Expansion Planned at Danziger's

Arthur J. Block, manager of Danziger's Department Store announced Wednesday plans for the store's expansion program.

Complete paint, appliance, housewares and floor covering departments will be added in Danziger's new addition at 975-979 W. Broad-st. The new addition will be located in the site formerly occupied by Kroger Grocery Co.

The added space will enable Danziger's to offer more complete service in above mentioned lines, always carried in the present store, Mr. Block said. He also added that this move would enable more space to be added to the present shoe department and infants', childrens', and ladies' ready-to-wear departments.

Hilltoppers On Lutheran Men's Club Gov. Bd.

The Lutheran Men's Club of Columbus, a new organization drawing its membership from all Lutheran Churches of the Columbus area, recently completed its organization by the election of its officers at a meeting of its Board of Governors held on June 27.

The following were elected as officers: president, Herbert Vogel, 842 Pleasant Ridge-av; vice-president, Lorenz M. Rausch, 3008 Olive-st; secretary, Theodore L. Horst, 631 Sheridan-av; treasurer, Earl F. High, 984 Gilbert-st. Other members of The Board of Governors are Dr. E. N. Cook, 733 Vernon-rd; Leonard Echols, 291 S. Richardson-av; J. Sterling Jacobson, 251 E. Rathbone-rd; Milton D. Sheatsley, 185 Blenheim-rd; and Andrew J. White Jr., 1321 Arlington-av.

The purpose of the club is to promote fellowship among Lutheran men of the area and to engage in projects that arise out of the needs of the community. This new club is already affiliated with The Federation of Lutheran Clubs, a national organization of such clubs with headquarters in Cleveland.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Aug. 5 at the York Country Club with golf, an outdoor dinner and entertainment, during the late afternoon and evening of that day. Andrew J. White, Jr., is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

$1.02 Investment Netted Her $450— Not Bad, Eh?

Mrs. Edgar Brown, Jr., 2508 W. Broad-st, made a wise investment when she placed the following want ad in the June 23 and June 28 editions of the Record:

1939 CHEVROLET coupe. Motor recently overhauled. Good tires. 2508 W. Broad St. RA. 8893.

The cost of those two ads totaled $1.02. Mrs. Brown tells us she received "eight or nine" calls, and the car was sold for approximately $450.

Whether you want to buy or sell something, rent a room, offer a service, or inform your fellow Hilltoppers of some other want or need, there is no better medium than the Classified pages of The Hilltop Record. If you haven't discovered this fact for yourself, why not call in your ad for next Tues-

Ankle Sprained

The Mission Circle of Bethlehem Lutheran Church will meet Wednesday, July 13, at 8 p. m. at the church. Mrs. H. W. Stemmler, Mrs. Lester Loreas and Mrs. E. J. Klamfoth will serve on the committee.

The WSCS of Glenwood Methodist Church will meet Thursday, July 14 from 9 to 11 a. m. for a study group with Mrs. L. B. Gatten as the leader. Mrs. Nannie Currier, Mrs. Irene Hoyt and Mrs. Anson Fox will present a chapter in the study book, "Newness of Life."

Hilltop Society Notes

Vacations Still Highlight Society News
Hardys To Leave Friday for New York

Vacations are still uppermost in the minds of most Hilltop folks. It may be hot, but they're still striking out for wide-open spaces.

Betty, Arthur and Nona Kinnes, along With Grandpa Cloman, left Sunday in their new Buick for several weeks vacation at Congress Hotel in Miami Beach, Fla.

Rosemarie Colombo, 2730 Grace-st, admitted this week "It's as hot in Cleveland as the Hilltop." Rosemarie just returned from a visit in Shaker Heights with her friend, Ann Ross. Both girls are students of Ohio State University.

Leaving for New York Friday will be the talented Hardy dance team, plus Mrs. Hardy. George and Jackie hope to pick up some new ideas for their dance routines. While on Broadway Jackie will take instructions at the Carlos Studio. All of the Hardys are looking forward to attending some stage shows, including "South Pacific", "Where's Charlie?" and "Kiss Me Kate". While in New York they will stay at the Belvedere Hotel. On their return trip they plan to visit Niagra Falls.

Mrs. Rose Thompson, 68 S. Harris-av, returned this week from Cleveland, where she attended the 29th Annual State Department convention of the VFW Auxiliary at the Statler Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hoskins and their two-month old daughter are visiting on the Hilltop.

Mrs. Hoskins is the former Billie Joan Cole. Her parents reside at 305 Derrer-rd during the summer and in St. Petersburg, Fla., during the winter. The Hoskins live in Warren, O., where Mr. Hoskins is employed as a metallurgist for Republic Steel.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Long, 593 S. Harris-av, have just returned from their vacation at Chicago, Ill. While there they visited with Joyce MacDonald, former resident of the Hilltop. Concluding their vacation in Chicago, they spent the week-end of the 4th at Cedar Point, O.

BRIDES-TO-BE PLAN CEREMONIES

Miss Wilda Swain

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT M. SWAIN, 689 S. Ogden-av, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Wilda, to Mr. Joseph Leach, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Leach of Cincinnati. Glenwood Methodist Church will be the scene of the wedding, which will take place at 1:30 in the afternoon of July 31. Miss Swain, a graduate of West High School, will be graduated from Ohio State University on Sept. 2. Mr. Leach is a student at the University of Cincinnati, where he will soon enter Law School. He is the present mayor of Sharonville.

Miss Marianne Brown

MR. AND MRS. ALVA S. BROWN, 2709 Elliott-av, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Marianne, to Mr. Harold L. Buchanan, 3459 Sunset-dr. The bride is a graduate of West High School and is employed by the Walter P. Dicherson Co. Mr. Buchanan is also a graduate of West High School and is a junior in the college of engineering at Ohio State University. At present he is employed by the Columbus Metropolitan Park Commission. The wedding will be an event of September.

Ruth Snow Marries Richard Lee Wester

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Snow, 77 S. Wheatland-av, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Ellen, to Mr. Richard Lee Wester, son of Mrs. Edith Wester, 743 W. Guy-st, at Newport, Ky., on June 5.

The bride was attired in a royal blue suit with matching accessories in white and her corsage was a white orchid with lavender and white streamers. Her attendants were Mrs. Juanita Chambers, who wore a pink gabardine suit and a corsage of yellow and red roses, and Mrs. Charlotte Mulholland who wore a print dress with yellow roses and baby pompoms.

The bride is a graduate of West High School and is employed at the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., and the bridegroom is employed at the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, and are residing at 4661 E. Main-st, Bexley.

Briggsdale And Brown Road

By Mrs. Harry C. Downing

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Nance and children, 1873 Rosemont-av, have returned from a vacation in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dearduff and daughter, Delores, 1070 Geneva-av, are spending two weeks in Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. William Carpenter, 2485 Brown-rd, entertained friends and relatives at a picnic and wiener roast at their home, July 4.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for Juanita Gorslene, 1613 Jackson-av, who died at her home Friday after an extended illness. She is survived by her son, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dever, two brothers and a sister. Burial took place in Greenlawn Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nelson, 1845 Brown-rd, are announcing the birth of a son, June 27 at St. Ann's Hospital.

Daily vacation Bible school closed at Briggsdale last Friday. A demonstration was given that evening in the church for parents and friends. Total enrollment was 104. Average attendance daily was 82.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex O. Krier, 1621 Garling-av, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Beverly June, to Herman E. Stricher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Stricher, 2944 E. Livingston-av. The wedding will take place next spring.

The Netherlands forces in the homeland last year numbered 50,000 while their forces in Indonesia numbered 84,000.

Bride and Groom After Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Hamilton

Before a candlelit altar decorated with summer baskets of white gladioli and delphinium, Miss Virginia E. Fladt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Fladt, 163 S. Ogden-av, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. James R. Hamilton on June 18, at Zion Lutheran Church, with Rev. Otto F. Stolzenberg officiating.

Mr. Hamilton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hamilton, 489 Nashoba-av. Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of heavy satin fashioned with a V-shaped neckline and edged with imported Chantilly lace.

The gown was styled on fitted lines with a tight bodice buttoning in back, and a very full circular skirt, picked up in front and tucked in place with rows of lace bows. Her fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was held in place by a heart-shaped headpiece of Chantilly lace edged with a row of seed pearls. Completing her costume was a cascade bouquet of stephanotis centered with two white orchids.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Walter F. Kaumeyer, matron of honor; Miss Burnette Nicol and Miss Kathleen Krieg, bridesmaids; Ruth Eileen Walker, flower girl, and William J. Hamilton, ring bearer.

Attendants were attired in similar gowns of summer taffeta fashioned in rainbow colors with sheer off-the-shoulder necklines, fitted bodices and extremely full skirts. The skirts were detailed with rows of cording. All wore short taffeta mitts matching the color of their gowns.

Mr. David Hamilton served as best man for his brother. Seating the guests were Mr. Harold Emrich, Mr. Jack Fellows, Mr. Ralph Woods and Mr. Richard Fladt.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the church for 175 guests. Hostesses were Mrs. Richard Graupner, Mrs. Don MacLeod and Miss Virginia Speakman.

The new Mrs. Hamilton is a graduate of Central High School and attended Capital University. She was employed formerly by the John Hancock Mutual Insurance Co.

Mr. Hamilton is a graduate of West High School and attended Ohio State University. He is now an employe of the Railway Mail Service.

The couple will reside in Toledo.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

By Pat Martindale

Boy Scout troop 250 surprised their senior patrol leader, Kenny Martindale, with a birthday party, Monday, June 20 following their scout meeting, in the St. Aloysius annex. Kenny was 15 years old. The troop presented him with an official Scout tie. Scoutmaster Jean Jaquay, Mrs. Jaquay, Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Martindale, Rev. Maloney and 12 scouts were present. Ice cream, cake, koolade and candy were served.

Troop 250 recently purchased one new friction kit, three flint and steel sets, and six new tents for camping trips.

Cub Picnic

Six Den Chiefs, for Cub Pack 250, will act as life guards on the Cub picnic July 17. They are Jack McAndrews, Jr., Ted Roberts, Jr., Patrick Martindale, Kenny Martindale, Jr., Robert Patterson and Dick Vargo.

Scoutmaster Jaquay announced a "Parents' Night" is being planned. The date will be announced later.

Cub Wiener Roast

The old adage, "A good time was had by all," might well be applied to Cub Pack 250, Den 2, although at first it looked like a dull holiday for the boys. This is how it all started. At the den meeting, last Friday safety rules were discussed and the cubs decided, that to have a safe week-end, they should not drive on main highways; go to crowded or unguarded swimming pools, and, last but not least, no illegal fireworks. All in all, as one boy put it, stay at home and behave.

It isn't much fun for boys from nine to 12 years of age just to sit around, especially on the fourth of July. So the Den Mother and Mrs. Maxwell contacted the parents of Den 2 and planned a wiener rost and picnic on the Maxwell's back lawn. The 32 persons who attended live within two blocks of the Maxwells and no main highway or streets had to be crossed.

At 7:30 p. m. the picnic began. Each cub's family brought something to eat and the wieners came out of the treasury of Den 2.

Sleep Out

After the picnic was over the cubs went to the Den chief's home, where tents had been pitched for them by Bob Patterson, Paul McCord, Patrick Martindale and Den Chief Kennie Martindale, all scouts from Scout trip 250.

This was the first time the cubs had slept out doors and it proved quite exciting for them (and the neighbors). The four scouts were on night patrol duty.

No holiday tragedies or mishaps occured in the nine families who participated in Den 2 safety campaign, and the week-end proved not to be a lost one.

An old custom in England was the ringing of the "gleaning bell," which fixed the hours for beginning and leaving off gleaning.

For The Guest List

By BETTY BARCLAY

Do you keep a list of guests whom you like to invite for dinner every so often? Or perhaps, like many of us procrastinators, you have a list of people whom you never actually get around to inviting, though you always intend to.

Here's a new kind of guest list to keep: one listing the dishes you are sure will please a visitor. These should be sure-fire successes — the kind that don't fail you at the last moment.

You might start a file of this sort with three basic types of dishes; an entrée which can be quickly made for unexpected guests; a fancy company salad, and a popular dessert. For the entrée, try Salmon Savories, a good year-round specialty with the ingredients always ready on the pantry shelf. These Savories may be enhanced with your own special sauce, such as creamed fresh peas. And for a colorful party salad, here's a Ribbon Salad recipe which is coolly appealing for summer meals. And what guest wouldn't like homemade Butterscotch Icebox Cake — a favorite dessert for summer or winter.

Truly, a handy list of popular guest dishes can give inspiration to any kind of entertaining problems.

Salmon Savories

1½ cups corn flakes
1 cup flaked canned salmon
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon scraped onion
1 egg, beaten with 2 tablespoons milk and dash of salt
Corn flakes

Crush 1½ cups corn flakes. Add salmon, seasonings, onion, and 2 tablespoons egg mixture, mixing well. Shape into 2-inch cakes. Roll in additional corn flakes, slightly crushed; then in remaining egg mixture; and roll again in corn flakes. Fry in skillet in small amount of fat, browning both sides. Serve with celery sauce or creamed peas. Makes 8 savories. Makes 4 servings.

Ribbon Salad

1 package lime-flavored gelatin
2 cups hot water
¾ cup diced fresh or canned fruit
¾ cup cottage cheese or 2 packages (6 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 package raspberry-flavored gelatin
2 cups hot water
¾ cup Grape-Nuts

Dissolve lime-flavored gelatin in 2 cups hot water. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in fruit. Turn into a 2-quart loaf pan. Chill until firm. Spread cottage cheese over firm gelatin. Dissolve raspberry-flavored gelatin in 2 cups hot water. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in Grape-Nuts. Pour over cheese layer in mold. Chill until firm. Serve in slices. Makes about 12 servings.

Use oranges, grapes, pineapple, bananas or prunes.

Butterscotch Icebox Cake

1 package prepared butterscotch pudding
½ cup cream, whipped
Ladyfingers or cake strips

Prepare butterscotch pudding as directed on package. Cool. Fold in whipped cream. Line bottom and sides of mold or loaf pan with waxed paper. Arrange layer of ladyfingers on bottom and sides of mold. Turn ⅓ of pudding into mold; cover with layer of ladyfingers. Turn remaining pudding into mold and place another layer of ladyfingers on top. Chill 12 to 24 hours in refrigerator. Unmold. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IN THE southern corner of the new state of Israel there is a flourishing seaside resort named Nahariya. It was settled originally by refugees from Hitler, and every aspect of the town, every characteristic of the inhabitants is so emphatically German that when a United Nations commission was wondering whether to allot the town to the Jews or the Arabs, the mayor himself expressed little of no interest.

"What's the difference?" he explained. "Whatever they decide, Nahariya will stay German."

* * *

Mrs. Consolino was transporting her brood from Forest Hills to the Adirondacks. Somewhere north of Albany her oldest daughter asked, "Hey, mom, what was the name of the station we stopped at last?" "Don't bother me," said the distraught Mrs. Consolino. "What difference does it make?" "Not very much," conceded the little girl, "only Baby Brother got out there."

'Thatchers' Daily Doings'

Wednesday, May 11

Bill Brown came over this morning with the company truck. With that we took our two lockers to Union Station for expressing to Pier 90 in New York. Maybe they would not need to have been sent off so early, but I was thinking of possible delays and the intervening week-end and wanted to be sure that the lockers would be on hand when we reached the ship. However, when I went in to the express office, I learned the trunks would be in New York tomorrow morning so now that will leave almost a whole week in which to claim them.

Bill also drove me down to the court house where I went in to see Earl McCullough who had called me to say that he had completed writing the piano accompaniment for another of my songs.

Violet in the meantime had been washing up floor mats, bed spreads and the like to leave the house in presentable appearance when we lock the doors on Saturday. She also addressed the Daily Doings and made them ready for mailing. When I came home I helped wash the accumulated dishes from last night and this morning, then started getting tax stamps ready for redemption.

Rev. Olson came over during the afternoon and helped get the stamps in order. Mrs. Morison came in for a little while, too.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Michel came in to say "so long" and to give us the address of her sister-in-law's mother in Manchester, England, whom we hope to call on if we get to that city.

Late in the afternoon I had to get stamps at the post office. From there I had to go to the cleaners to pick up the clothes we had left there but they were not all ready. Now I shall have to go back again tomorrow to finish that job. Another errand took me to the drug store to get a tooth brush and some moth-balls—one to keep me clean and the other to keep winter things safe for the summer.

At the cleaners I met Mrs. Bauer, who said she and Bob had been wanting to get over to see us but had not found the time as yet. When I told her we would be out every evening from now on she came home with me to see Violet. Violet was full of apologies for her appearance when Mrs. Bauer came in as she was still dressed in the clothes and the markings of a day of hard work and cleaning. However housewives all have to look that way at times so Mrs. Bauer did not mind.

Art and Helen Pickles called for us at six to take us out to dinner. We were to have gone up to their house afterward to see Arlene and Jimmy and spend the evening there but they have another farewell to say. Young Pick has received orders from his doctor that he must get out of this climate and tonight Pick and his wife are leaving for Texas. That leave-taking is going to keep the Pickle family busy for the evening. Art took us up to Woodruff Avenue where we saw Miss Lord and her father for a few moments. We also picked up a small package there to be delivered to her sister in London. From the Hales' Art brought us home before getting back in his own family farewell.

Freda Barnes and Louise had wanted us to stop in if we had time to do so this evening. Although it was already after nine o'clock we walked over there and spent the rest of the evening there.

Thursday, May 12

Violet has been ironing this morning. She has talked to several people on the phone. She went downtown with me to get our travelers checks. She went to the barber shop to have her hair cut.

When I left Violet at the bank, I finished the check process, got more luggage tags, then went over to deliver the tax stamps for redemption. From there I took my song in to have some photostat copies made. Back home I gathered together more items to go into the luggage, made my own lunch, finished the Doings up to this morning. Later I went over to bring Ruth back here as we were going to make recordings of her piano playing. While she was here Bertha and Lois Young came to see us and to give us a little something to nibble on while we are traveling.

Jack Brittain has arrived as I have been typing this. He is going with us to the Fergusons for dinner tonight. Meantime Violet has gone down to see Mrs. Willer, who has been ill for many weeks and does not get out much.

Friday, May 13

I up at 6:30 this morning to wind up affairs locally. Violet wanted to wash up all the linens before leaving. This she managed to do even though telephone calls kept coming in every half hour from those who had been unable to see us and wanted to wish us a good voyage. She even managed to get all the ironing done and to press some of her own clothes.

I started out by getting the last clothes from the cleaners, getting a shirt which had to be shortened in the sleeves before I could wear it, getting tissue wrapping papers and refilling my supply of doctor's orders. That was the morning work along with the first part of my packing and helping to store away the unwanted things about the house.

At noon I was to meet Phil at the office to sign up appointment papers for the September deputies. At the same time I was to get my last pay check for the past two weeks which has been counted officially as a vacation. The cashing of this check was to provide the currency needed during our remaining days in New York and upon our return till we again reached Columbus. Bad news awaited me at this point. As soon as I entered the office Carl Cluggish began to apologize. The payroll had been made up and they had forgotten to put my name on it.

I did not know what to do for the moment. Ordinarily it would take several days to put through a pay voucher and I could not wait as we are scheduled to leave town at 8 in the morning. Also I had many more errands to do while down town and most of the final packing to do when I came back home.

Carl started at once to see what could be done. The first snag he hit was that the Civil Service Commission's office was all out to lunch and there would be no one there to do the first signing of a special voucher until nearly 1 o'clock. I left Carl to worry through with that part while Phil and I went to lunch.

From the lunch room we went to the bank where I traded a coffee jar full of dimes, which Violet had been saving for many weeks, into folding money for easier carrying. Next stop was at a shoe repair shop.

There was a visit to the candy shop to buy a little appreciation token to take to the girls at the travel agency, then a trip to that agency for the delivery. To the photostat maker for work left there to be finished, a trip to the Union to exchange a glove gift to Violet for a pair of larger size, a stop at a real estate office to see Miss Gill and inquire about her sister who is in the hospital. These completed most of the downtown work. Oh yes there I had to go back to the shoe repair shop, then get back to the office to see how the money situation had developed.

Back home once more to get things going again in the packing line while telling Violet the story of the day. If you are wondering what happened to the money here it is—when I got back to the office there was a check for me. It had been specially processed through all the bookkeeping departments in what was said to be a record time but, as they all said, you have to hurry when someone is waiting to go to England.

Ethel Cooke came at 5 o'clock and helped, first, with the packing, then, as Violet, partly dressed, finished Violet's ironing.

Ott and Cora came at this time to take us all over to Mamie's for dinner. "J. O." was there too. A jolly evening served as a leave taking, accompanied by the music of Bill's new phonograph radio.

Home once again before 10 o'clock, we went over to say goodbye to Mom, Ruth, Annie and Mrs. Beadle, then came home for last packing.

It was a half hour into Saturday morning when we went to bed.

Saturday, May 14

That day is here, the day we have been planning for since last December. Having finished packing the bags before we went to bed, the only thing we had to do this morning was to get up for breakfast which was served for the travelers at the Perry Morisons' at 7:30. Johnny got his eyes opened at this early hour for him and came down to breakfast, too. He couldn't miss seeing us off.

While we were still at breakfast, we happened to look out the window and saw a car in the driveway. At first we thought that George had already come for us but a second look showed that Mamie was in the car, which meant that its occupants were in our house and Mamie has a key for it.

In a little while George and Kathleen came. The seven bags were stacked in the lower hall. Johnny and Phil pasted on the Cunard labels to make the bags look experienced instead of brand new. The back door bell rang and the Plaeks came in to say goodbye. They had been over twice last night but we were not home. Mamie took over the care of an additional house by announcing that she would do all the sweeping and cleaning after we left.

Everyone went out to the car. Phil and George loaded the luggage. Goodbyes were said all around. At 9 o'clock we were on our way for New York on a beautiful sunny day.

Route 40, the coast-to-coast highway, was the choice for the eastward journey. It will take us directly to Baltimore and New York. For the morning ride and a part of the afternoon there was the usual scenery which has been mentioned several times in these pages, especially last summer when we were going to and from Vermont. The noon hour found us in Wheeling, W. Va., looking for a dining place recommended in the Duncan Hines restaurant guide. After much searching and inquiring we found the place had been out of business for some time. However, we found a tea room which satisfied the hunger of the moment.

By mid-afternoon we were well into the Allegheny Mountains, with new scenes constantly coming into view. The valley views from the several mountain tops are always the cause of exciting remarks. Signs on each mountain were scanned as we tipped the tops. From these we wanted to know just how high up we were. At Negro Mountain the sign read "highest point" and in this case it was 2906 feet.

At the town of Mt. Savage, in Maryland, we wondered what foreign land we were in. The streets were so narrow that two cars could just barely pass in the street, and houses opened right out onto narrow sidewalks sometimes almost into the street. The whole town seemed to have been created in this narrow way.

Approaching Cumberland, we were in a winding valley which continued for several miles. It was a winding valley which George referred to as "so winding a snake would get lost on it."

Trees have a way of growing on hillsides but the houses in the Cumberland valley are close competitors. All along the road you see houses plastered against the sides of the hills in a way to

TOP FILM STARS LOOK FORWARD TO NEW CAREERS IN TELEVISION

FRANK SINATRA as a ball player.

RED SKELTON as Neptune, the trident-flourishing king of the sea.

BING CROSBY as Indian chief.

BOB HOPE goes South American.

By ARMAND ARCHERD
Central Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—Television is no longer a myth. Judging by the actions of the movie studios, the new medium is a monster. However, the big name entertainers are not afraid of television. As a matter of fact they welcome the youngster with open arms.

It is easy to understand why the studios are afraid of television. Movie bosses have a horrible vision of people sitting home every night while theater ushers play poker to while away the hours. It has even been reported that some movie moguls are trying to figure out a door-to-door popcorn delivery system to at least get some theatrical revenue.

Seriously, the big boys are worried. When this reporter asked Louis B. Mayer point blank whether he would permit his contract players to appear on television, the answer was "No!" Understandable. If you could see Esther Williams in your living room, why pay 85 cents to go to the Bijou?

Secondly, supposing a studio's star did not happen to be telegenic, that information would not be available until after he or she had been seen by thousands. Let's face it, our big Hollywood stars have their favorite cameramen, who, after a period of years have learned the "correct" way to photograph these actors. Such is not the case, as yet, in television.

Yet, in spite of all this, the really big names, the tops in the entertainment field today, the true troupers are all anxious to get into television. And they are preparing for it.

TAKE BOB HOPE, for example. Bob was telling me about his anxiety to get into television a year ago. By the time you read this he may have signed for an autumn show. He is ready.

Hope thinks that the new medium will serve as a "hypo" for entertainers. "I appeared on a television show three years ago," he laughed, "and I put video back three years. I'm not afraid of it, but is it afraid of me? Plastic surgeons should get a big business out of changing faces of movie actors. Good morning, doc."

Television will be easier for Bob than radio. He loves to perform and he loves an audience. Radio confines him to that microphone. Television will be like vaudeville for him, and this he loves.

Bob's desire to enter the field, of course, has his studio in a dither. For weeks they claimed he did not have television rights. He said yes. Finally, it occurred to them that he might balk at picture-making if this money-making star were not allowed his freedom. He has television rights.

Another chap on the some movie lot, a singer named Crosby, is one of the few others who has this right. And the Groaner is convinced that he will like the new

For Crosby, too, is the kind of guy who drives writers crazy. He is too clever. If Bingle should think of something funny, he will put away the script and do it. Often the whole show will be ad lib. With freedom of action Bing can have you rolling with laughter on your living room rug.

However, the notoriously lazy Mr. Crosby has one significant comment: "It's going to be an awful lot of work."

That fact will certainly separate the men from the boys. Those who can only memorize a few single-syllabled-words at a time will also have to make their living elsewhere. Those who have not learned the ad lib art are also cooked.

Red Skelton is not one of the last-mentioned group. As a matter of fact, Red has told me that when his film contract is completed in another year, he doubts whether he will make any more movies. Television is for him.

For the past six months, Red has had a photographer filming his radio show. At home, Red has been making movies of his famous radio characters, the Mean Little Kid, Willie Lump-Lump, etc., and he has been writing scripts.

• • •

RED IS READY to start a television show as soon as the contract is terminated or the studio OK's television activities for him, whichever comes first.

Skelton is a clown, a vanishing race in the entertainment world. The greatest clown of this era is, perhaps, Ed Wynn. And he's to be on television.

Still another radio and screen personality has told me of his preference for the new medium. Frank Sinatra is his name. Frankie-boy is trying to assemble a show for autumn.

This, you might think a little amazing. However, those who know him well, and who have watched his progress in the past year, see nothing but great things for him in the new field.

Frank, once a scared crooner with but a bow-tie and a voice as his assets, has developed into an all-around entertainer, fair dancer, sharp comedian, and, of course, singer. One will have to be a triple-threat man to be consistently good on the very personal and critical television.

WHILE THESE "youngsters" are planning, Daddy Jack Benny has already put his name on a contract for a television show starting in September. Benny will do two shows a month for his present radio sponsor. Two-a-month indicates the amount of work that is required for a television program of Jack Benny stature.

However, Benny is an old trouper and I'm sure he will have as much fun as the audience. It won't be long before the show becomes a regular weekly feature, if the sponsor can afford it. For, let us face it, the sponsor is the boy who has to pay for all the time used in rehearsals. In television, the casts will be larger, and sound effects will have to be replaced by the real McCoy.

But one sponsor has already shown its willingness to go in for the expanded expense. They have dropped their radio theater and say that "the emphasis will be on television next season."

While all these performers prepare to work in television, a pair of them, seeing the great future of it, have already become active in other ends of that business.

Charles Bickford has a huge television maintenance business, maintains a large laboratory and operates a fleet of repair trucks.

Vic Mature, who has as sidelines to his acting, a meat ball factory and hotel, has opened a large retail store and plans many more because business is so good.

It looks like we'll be sitting home next winter, eh?

Architects Study Current School Building Program

By Myron T. Seifert

Howard Dwight Smith, designer for West High School, and along with other architects will take a critical look at problems as the result of a statement of policy adopted by the American Institute of Architects, under which members will share the benefits of new techniques and designs and endeavor to establish adequate codes and standards.

The program to undertake overall studies of school building problems is the outcome of a report of the institute's committee on school buildings, which recommends that architects take an active part, not only in planning of long-range school building programs, the strategy and tactics of a multi-building program and the programming of the physical facilities necessary to meet educational requirements.

The institute reaffirms that such studies are a proper function of the architect and should be considered as separate and in addition to the services customarily performed by the architect.

The committee found that codes and standards governing school building design are constantly being made and revised by governmental and other agencies, but are often inflexible while in force. They tend, the report says, to prevent progress and discourage new thinking and new solutions. It recommends that architects offer to set up joint committees with governmental agencies to establish codes and standards for maximum improvement and utility.

It also found that there is a dearth of information on the merits and demerits of new design techniques. Educator and architect alike can find few reports or publications that evaluate the development of school planning.

The institute's department of education and research will undertake to obtain information from available sources on questions of fundamental concern to architects and educators and make digests available to members and other interested parties.

Don't Overlook The Mound Street Folks

Elsewhere in the Record is a letter addressed to the editor, from a lady living in the Mound Street area. She registers a complaint about the suggested "Round The Hilltop" bus service not being extended down to Mound Street.

We think her complaint is a legitimate one and assure her that if, as, and when the bus service is provided there should be every effort made to provide a way for these people to get to the Broad and Sullivant business sections.

Committee Making– Final Appeal To Keep Philharmonic

"Save the Orchestra", was adopted as a motto to keynote a campaign to prevent the suspension of the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra. This slogan was accepted Tuesday night, when approximately 100 local citizens attended an open meeting at the Virginia Hotel in an effort to reinstate the orchestra for the 1949-50 season.

In order to accomplish this, enough money must be raised by Monday, July 11, to prove to the orchestra's board of directors that the people of Columbus want, and will support the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra.

Assurance was given by Norman Nadel, local music critic and chairman of the "Save the Orchestra" committee, that any money collected in this campaign will be held in a special fund until such time as the future of the orchestra is assured.

Contributions can be mailed to W. W. Mountcastle, committee treasurer, at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Odd Fact

A New Mexico University anthropology class recently completed a study of the physical characteristics of 200 men selected at random and found that most right-handed men's noses tilt to the right, their right shoulders are lower than the left, they have more flesh on the right side of their faces, their right hands are broader and their left legs are slightly longer than the right.

Camp Chase Victors Over Green Cabs

Camp Chase No. 98, playing at full strength for the first time this year, lashed out 14 hits for a 10 to 4 victory over Worthington Motors in the North division of the American Legion Junior Baseball League.

Jack O'Donnell pitched six hit ball and was tight in the clutches, while Russ Friend with 4 for 5 and Ron McElwee with 3 for 4 were the hitting stars of the day.

Worthington Motors threatened in the seventh inning to make the score 5 to 4. However, a Bill South homer with one aboard iced the contest in the ninth inning.

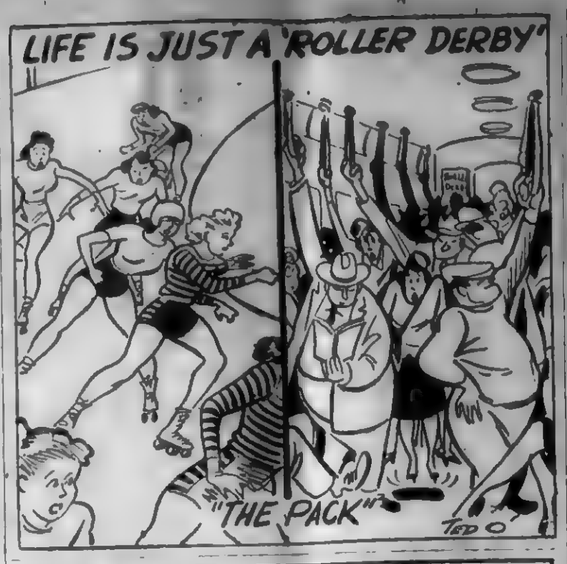
Adventist Group To Attend Camp



The Eastwood Seventh-Day Adventist Church, 26 N. 21st-st, will be represented by approximately 200 members at the denomination's annual statewide camp meeting held at Mt. Vernon, O., July 7 to 17.

The local pastor, Richard T. Minesinger, has been designated as a member of the camp hospitality committee, and will have supervision of the large pavilion. He will also speak at several of the meetings. In company with other Adventist ministers of the state, he has been on the grounds for the past two weeks to help in the work of pitching tents and setting up camp.

Approximately 4000 are expected to attend the camp meeting. It is held on the campus of the Mt. Vernon Academy, the denomination's secondary school for this state. Campers live in tents, dormitory rooms and in the surrounding community. The school's cafeteria will be in operation for the campers.

The camp program will include a full schedule of devotional studies and special features. Addresses will be given by leading church officials from Washington, D. C., and by returned missionaries. Activities and programs are planned for each age group.

Grandparents who saved their pennies as children to build a Seventh-Day Adventist mission ship for the South Pacific are looking forward to meeting a Christian native from that area. Pastor Robert Salau, a native of the Solomon Islands, will be at the Ohio Camp meeting July 12-17 and will be a special feature of the meetings.

make you wonder what holds them in place.

By dusk we began thinking of dinner and a place to stay for the night. Kathleen remembered a place she thought was between Cumberland and Hagerstown which had a wonderful mountain top view. She had seen it last summer on the way home and she thought that some time she would like to stay there. We kept on the lookout for this place and finally came to it on top of Town Hill. As soon as I saw it I recognized it as the place where our family had stopped one night 24 years ago. At that time it had been open only two days. We had always remembered the newness of the hotel and the wonderful views from the summer veranda.

Tonight, however, we could not have here except to eat a good chicken supper. The hotel part had been burned out several weeks ago. After supper we went on driving until we found a good tourist cabin spot just outside Frederick, Md., the town made famous as the home of Barbara Fritchie. This page was written on a good spring bed at Billy Boots Motel.

Rodenfels To Erect New Addition

The Rodenfels Chevrolet Co., 555 W. Broad-st, will be entering the final phase of its post-war construction program in the near future when construction begins on a new building to house the firm's body and paint shop.

The new structure, estimated cost of which was set at $95,000, will be located at 32 S. Mill-st, at the rear of the company's new home on W. Broad-st.

The building will include 20,000 square feet of floor space and will be equipped with the latest type of equipment. General contractor on the project is Leo E. Ruisinger, Inc., 851 Frebis-av. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy in November.

Construction of the body and paint shop will provide the auto firm with one of the most modern Chevrolet service centers in the city, officials of the company said.

The Rodenfels organization was founded by Leo Rodenfels at London, O., in 1924. The firm transferred operation to Columbus 21 years ago. Actively in charge of the company's operations are John L. and Dick R. Rodenfels, sons of the founder.

Cub Scouts Hold Picnic at Dam

Cub Scout Pack 37, sponsored by a group of citizens of the Hilltonia area, met Tuesday night June 28, at Shelter House No. 4 at Griggs Dam.

After a short business meeting conducted by Harold W. Howe, pack chairman, awards for achievement were presented by Cubmaster Paul R. Langdon to the following boys:

Silver arrow, David Hoover; gold arrow, Robert Howe; gold arrow, Stephen Foster; bear badge and bobcat pin, David Williams; and wolf badge, Charles Hahn.

The following Boy Scouts who have been serving as den chiefs for the three dens, received their Den chief's cord:

James Stanley, Larry Janes and Byron Bell.

On Wednesday, June 29, the Cub Pack made a tour through the Lustron plant.

Hilltop Students Swell Summer School Roster

By Myron T. Seifert

More than 1600 high school students, not to mention the additional hundreds of elementary pupils, are enrolled at Central High School this summer in a wide variety of courses.

Between 7 and 8 a. m. daily during the summer it is not an unusual sight to see Hilltop students at transit stops, books in hand, awaiting arrival of the trolley cars, and bent upon gaining an education during the hot vacation period, when their fellow-students are pursuing every form of vacation pleasure.

These book-minded students spend four and one-half hours daily from 8 to 12:30 getting out school lessons at the downtown school.

Hilltop Teachers

West High and Hilltop teachers who are devoting time in directing the teen-age summer course of study along with more than 40 other pedagogues, are Adolph Kittel, 563 Walhalla-rd; Roy M. Marine, 140 E. Frambes-av; Myron T. Seifert, 46 S. Westgate-av; Forman H. Slager, 3122 Wicklow-rd; and Howard F. Wilson, 89 Powhatan-av.

Thirty subjects and 65 various courses are offered in the senior and junior high schools, and elementary classes include all regular courses plus remedial reading and arithmetic classes in which individual help is given pupils who need the special attention.

C. L. Dumaree, South High day school principal, is director of the summer school program this year, and Ruth Snyder is head teacher in charge of the elementary school. The faculty includes 12 teachers in elementary school and 47 in the high and junior high schools.

West high pupils are typical of those represented at the summer session.

One West girl said she wanted to accelerate her school program so as to graduate sooner.

Another replied, "I need the credit in order to graduate."

One boy is taking summer courses so that he can hold a job and work on the stage and lighting crew next winter in day school.

Another wants to become a doctor and is shortening his years in high school to reach sooner the long college training period. Many who failed in regular school attend the summer institute in order to make up the work.

"Frankly only about half of those in attendance are in this group," Assistant Supt. L. K. Replogle said.

Hilltoppers who are enrolled at Central summer high school are:

Fred H. Fallmer, Delbert Galentine, Clarence Golden, Frank Grimm, John Gilbert, William Grooms, Jack Hagan, John Harmer, Raymond Harper, Albert Hagan, William Hughes, Charles Hunter.

It's Fun To Live In America

Good Health Is Fun, Too!

Say, remember the time your measles "broke out" right in the middle of the night! Or the time baby sister (or brother) was about to arrive at your house! Who was called to come a-running? And who came, bringing hope, confidence, and the "smell" of good clean, health-giving medicines? Why, it was the old family doctor, of course! Regardless of the day or night— rain or shine, sleet or snow, the doctor came. What's more, he didn't ask about your bank balance, Social Security number or have you fill out a set of government forms.

By George, do you know there are 200,000 Doctors of Medicine in this great land of ours—that's one M.D. for every 710 people, the lowest number of people per doctor of any nation on earth. Not included in this total are thousands of other doctors, fine men and women who specialize in different types of treatment. The chart reveals some interesting figures.

What about our nation's health? Considering our size, and races of people involved, we have made more progress than any nation on earth. Why, a child born back in 1900 could not expect to live beyond 49 years, but now the life expectancy is 68 years. In 1958, it will probably be three score and ten. Just think, only 18 years ago pneumonia and tuberculosis cut off the most of men's working years. Now it is accidents. Yes, we're making great progress! And these fine doctors of ours—who must go to school 8, 10 to 12 years after high school, have made this progress possible.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL? That's the sixty-four dollar question! But it shouldn't be hard to answer. Here we are, a nation that won our independence only 168 years ago. Yet in that short span, we have made more progress in health and well-being than any other nation. So, we're going to be mighty careful about changing our voluntary way for any compulsory "scheme."

Let's look at the record. Here's an excerpt from a letter we recently received from another country: "Our 'free medicine' is now costing my husband and me between three and five pounds (roughly, $12.00 to $20.00) per month in added taxes." Is that free? But here in America, one can voluntarily purchase hospital and medical insurance for about the cost of a package of cigarettes a day. SO, LET'S KEEP OUR VOLUNTARY WAY.

This is Number 3 in the new 1949 series of 12 folders. Prepared in the interest of our American Way of Life by Kiwanis International.

An automatic elevator entirely operated by vocal control has been proudly announced by Westinghouse. The company has unveiled a working display model, a bi-lingual triumph which responds briskly both to English and French instructions.

Unfortunately the capacity of this outfit is not made clear. If it turns out to be strictly a one man job, perhaps even those already terrified with the pitfalls of this gadgeteering age wouldn't mind a quiet chat with an understanding robot. But if it should become a full size elevator with an average of one character per load trying coyly to fool it—that would be something else again.

Westinghouse should come clean. If its new gimmick cannot comprehend all idioms and dialects, including pure Lower Swobbodian, then installations must be limited to those willing to follow rigid protocol, sternly enforced.

The vacation season formally weighs in after July 4th. Many of us Goofy Americans will follow the usual custom of burning up the roads to have a minute or two more up in the back woods some place where we can wallow in relaxation at a snail's pace.

Dear Editor:

Being a devoted reader of your Hilltop Record, I see where the Hilltop Business Men suggest a half-hour scheduled bus routed from Broad-st to Sullivant and thereabouts.

WE ARE BEING ROBBED!

I am one of many who live down near Mound-st. There are hundreds of us who make the trip to the Hilltop to shop every week. Quite a few of us don't have cars. Why, it's even handier to go downtown, than to walk several blocks and then to transfer twice before we even get to our destination, the Hilltop stores.

I live in the new section on Butler-av close to Mound. We are almost 700 numbers from Broad-st. Yet I've walked it because it's quicker than transferring twice. Here, I'm squawking! How about hundreds of families this side of Central that live even BELOW Mound? They are all Hilltoppers too!

So the Hilltop Business Men want a bus from Broad to Sullivant and thereabouts? You already have the Hague-av feeder. If you want business to boom, give my suggestion a second thought.

After all, aren't we all one community?

We want to be helped. This in turn will help you.

Thank you,
Mrs. Paul Murnane,
640 Butler-av.

P. S.: And speaking of free fare with a $1.00 purchase of merchandise or more. We willing to pay our fare just to get up there!

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

LIBBY'S voice was beyond control. "I don't need you?" she asked her daughter.

"No," Jane said. "There's nothing here for me to do—nothing here for me to be—and with Daddy there are so many things. I like the boys. I like the way she lives. I like her. I like having a real home. Oh, Daddy!"

"You've been that unhappy, Jane?" Libby said.

"Yes... Yes... I've been unhappy because I've been nothing, because you wouldn't let me be anything. I want to live the way other girls live, the way Helen and Daddy live. Oh, please try to understand! I'm not like you. I don't want to be different. I hate this apartment. I'm ashamed of it. And Daddy says he'll take me to another eye man and maybe I won't have to wear glasses all the time. You don't want me to grow up, but you can't stop me. You've lived just as you wanted to live, but you expect me to live the way you want me to live, and I won't do it. I'm not you. I'm myself. You can't think for me. I want to think for myself. You can't shelter me or spare me from anything. This is my life and I've ... I've often wished I had never been born! Why did you... why did you let me be born?"

Libby looked as if she had been struck several hard blows across the face. Her face was red, blotched.

"You don't really like people," Jane said. "I do. You don't really like them because you don't trust them. I do. It's just like I told Daddy—that everything you do and the clothes you wear are like ... like publicity for yourself!"

Libby blanched. The red spots upon her face deepened. She seemed to be shrinking in size momentarily so that she looked quite tiny and defenseless. And now the black satin pajamas looked ridiculous, and out of harmony with the scene. Even the apartment looked as artificial as a movie set.

Dick said, "Jane, Jane, you can say too much, dear!"

"I've got to, Daddy. I've got to. I'm only telling the truth. Why should you learn the rules if you're not supposed to apply them? Christian rules and commandments. Laws are no good if you don't live by them, are they? I'm only telling the truth! I'm not afraid of the truth about myself. I know it. I'm not pretty, and I'm not popular, and boys can't stand me. I'm a social flop. I dance like a horse. And with glasses I'm going to look like one! You... you can't do anything about yourself unless you're willing to know yourself even if it hurts!"

Beatrice sat in appalled, horrified silence. The residue, she thought. This is all that's left of the bright promise of those two lives I saw coming together in marriage. This, the blatant cruelty of an hysterical child, the maelstrom of naked emotion and Libby shrinking, shrinking—

Now Libby's face was the color of ashes. She swayed like a thin reed and clutched the table, pressing her long nails into the hard wood so that the table would forever bear the marks of this moment. The veins of her hand stood out blue and strained and hideous.

She said, "You may go. I'll send your things."

The next instant Jane was penitent and sorry. The tears rolled unchecked down her face, and beside her mouth.

"Oh, Mother, will you ever forgive me?"

Libby's eyes were as lightless as unlit lanterns. With supreme effort she said, "I do. That isn't hard. But it will be very hard for me to forgive myself. I doubt if I ever can."

Jane turned her ravaged little face to Dick. He put his arm around her and led her away.

Beatrice's stricken eyes followed them. When she looked at Libby again, she had slumped down beside the table.

"Libby."

Then she saw the feeble motion of Libby's hands, a gesture that told her that Libby wanted her to leave.

And as she closed the door she heard it—the sound of desperate grief, the sound of tears.

It was unthinkable to go home. She went out and sat in her car sick with her own helplessness, her own sense of guilt and responsibility. We blame lots of things on the times in which we live, she thought. Our confusion, our uncertainty, our tragic lack of leadership. But we are the times, each and every one of us. We condone divorce and broken homes, and make it so easy that the divorce rate has spiraled to alarming proportions. In our distorted minds we make war a time of prosperity, and peace a time of depression. We are all to blame. The shame, the defeat rest heavily upon all of us. We don't need a bigger national income. We need a bigger national character. Not more atom bombs, but more national cohesion and integrity, humility and sacrifice for the common weal. We need to rearm morally.

As she finally drove down her own street, she saw Marianne in a cluster of children stop to wave at her and blow her a kiss. We must build a healthy core in our children, she thought. Teach them to adjust themselves to certain unshinable truths. I'm so tired. My thoughts are spinning. I saw Libby dissolving into that black heap beside the table. And now I must take a bath and dress and put on my mask for Porter, for Marianne, for Frances. Where am I going? And where have I seen Bonnie Watson before? Porter brought her here to be his secretary. It was not an accident. It was all part of a plan. He's with her now. He's with her every day. He's with her far more than he's with me. And people are beginning to talk—that feather-brained woman at the party the other night—I don't know what to do, but whatever I do must be right. I can't make any mistakes. The line is so fine between safety and peril, between all those small delights we knew, Porter, and a lost, dead hope.

She went in the front door. The house was lovely. Frances had made a fire. My house, Beatrice thought. My lovely house. She went over and stood before the fire, and took out the combs that held up her hair. The sensation of her hair loose was good—I'm not going to wear it up anymore, she thought. I'm not sophisticated. I don't want to be sophisticated. I don't want to be one of the best dressed women in town. I don't want to be perfect. I want to be me. A fighting optimist, Libby called me. I am a woman in love with her husband, terrified of losing him, and I am attracted to another man, and I have just witnessed the most appalling of human dramas—and there but for the grace of God—what does it all mean and where does it end?

She eased her feet out of her shoes and stood in her stocking feet. That, too, felt surprisingly good. She had never done such a thing before.

"Why, Bea!"

It was Porter. She had not heard him come in. Indeed, she had no reason to expect him at this time of the afternoon. And now he was standing there highly amused at the way she looked with her hair hanging down and in her stocking feet. His was chuckling. She looked at him as if he were a ghost, and then she felt a current of energy pass through her.

"Oh!" she said.

His eyes were searching her face—half-serious, half-amused. But most of what he was thinking and feeling was inscrutable. It seemed to her then that he had never seemed so handsome. Did he sense it? They looked at each other curiously not as though only a few feet separated them, but rather as though if one moved forward he or she would plunge to unimaginable depths below.

Beatrice thought, I want to press my body against yours, Porter, and feel your livingness. But I cannot even come to you. I'd fall into whatever there is that is between us.

She said, "I guess I do look pretty funny."

"No," he said. "You look cute. Though I suspect how you hate that word applied to you."

Beatrice touched her hair. "You mean you . . ."

He nodded. "Yes, I like it better down. I don't know why you ever put it up."

"I didn't know, Porter."

"No, I suppose not. It really doesn't matter, does it? Just for a moment I" . . . He turned his wrist and looked at his watch. "I've got to step on it. Not much time." He looked at her. "I'm going to Chicago tonight. Mr. Ramey is picking me up in a couple of minutes to give me a last minute briefing before train time."

"You'll need some things" . . .

"Just a few."

"When are you coming back?"

"That's hard to say. I won't be back until I get what the old man wants. In a week or so, I should say." As he turned away, he picked up an envelope from the table. "Didn't you see this? A letter from your mother. No mistake about that handwriting. It's from Cecily all right."

"I'll read it later."

He went upstairs two steps at a time.

Speculative Extremes Absent In Current Economic Picture

By John Kelly

That we have profited by the hard lessons of the past is indicated by the absence of widespread speculative excesses and our unprecedented accumulation of savings.

There is reason for optimism in the fact that the current adjustment will not be complicated by the tragic aftermath of speculative extremes. A strong point in the outlook is that our financial institutions are strong and liquid, with money neither dear nor tight.

A source of trouble in the past has been the decline in the liquidity of both business and individuals, resulting from increases in debt. When cash is short and assets cannot be sold to pay debts without severe loss, people are in trouble.

Cash and cash equivalent assets of the economy now are immensely stronger than before the war. Such liquid assets have grown much more than personal and business debts have grown.

These assets, including $52 billion in redeemable U. S. Savings Bonds held by individuals, are reserves of purchasing power for those who hold them. Together with large corporate reserves against inventory loss, they strengthen the general situation immensely.

With respect to the familiar causes which in the past have produced declines of increasing severity, the prospect is reassuring. Along with lack of heavy pressure from such scurces there are other elements of strength which have been widely discussed and recognized.

One of the strong supports of the economy is the unshrinking segment of demand, for use both at home and abroad, which is represented by government expenditures. The vastly increased needs of the armed services and the stockpiling of strategic metals and materials will require huge outlays.

The E. C. A. program as designed assures the country of an export surplus. Barring a last minute bad break in the weather, the farmer will again be blessed this year with near record crops—at government supported prices.

Unemployment compensation and other income payments which increase automatically if incomes from wage and salary payments or from farm marketings decline constitute a strong underlying support.

Consideration of the sources of strength and absence of past weak spots in our present situation would appear to reveal nothing to indicate the imminence of a drastic depression.

This speculation on our current situation and some possibilities for the future will be resumed next week.

Songs Sung by Marching Pilgrims — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalms 120-134.

In my distress I cried unto the Lord, and He heard me. Deliver my soul, O Lord, from lying lips, and from a deceitful tongue.

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth.

I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord. Because of the house of the Lord our God, I will seek thy good.

Bless ye the Lord, all ye servants of the Lord, which by night stand in the house of the Lord.

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 134:1.

News of Rome

By Mrs. E. C. Sheets

The Luther League of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Rome, will present a play, "Fuller's Fortune", July 7 and 8, at Alton Grange Hall at 8 p. m. Children under six will be admitted free. Children up to 12 years of age will be charged 35 cents and adults 50 cents. The play is being put on in the interest of sending a delegate to Washington, D. C., to the Pullman convention in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Warner and son, David, spent the week-end visiting her brother, A. M. Courtwright, and family of Muskegon, Mich. Their home is on the lake front.

Priscilla Warner was the house guest of Jim Berry at the Berry family cottage on Lake Erie, over the Fourth.

Mrs. Eugene Moore, Fair-av, and brother, Louis Douglas of Cleveland, visited their cousin, Mrs. E. C. Sheets, Sr., last Tuesday.

The last choir practice of the Columbia Heights Methodist Church ended in an outdoor picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lamb, which was well attended.

Mrs. Jesse Woolard of Avondale was dinner guest at the home of Mrs. R. G. Barnecut Tuesday.

Opal Williams, Washington, D. C., is making a two week visit with her mother, 45 West-st.

Mrs. R. G. Barnecut entertained the Ruth Circle of the Columbia Heights Church on Thursday night.

Tommy Joe Lamb, accompanied Earl Foresman and family and Mrs. Foresman to Halle, Mich., on a fishing trip.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Barnecut spent the week-end in Muncie visiting at the home of her cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Halford McNaughton.

Alfred Sheets, Pasadena-av, who is located in High Point, N. C., is home for a week's vacation with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Thompson and son, Robert, enjoyed the week-end visiting in the East. Their visit included an ocean cruise off Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Miller, Maple-dr, his brother, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, North Columbus, and his mother spent last week at Lake Erie and Vermilian, Ohio.

Bridge To Picnic Grounds Closed

The Flanagan-rd bridge over the Scioto River closed to traffic Monday, will not be reopened "for some time" the Franklin County Engineer's office said Tuesday.

A three-foot hole was discovered in the middle of the bridge Monday afternoon, caused county officials said, by excessive holiday traffic and the heat. The bridge is the main means of access to picnic grounds west of the river above Griggs Dam.

The extince volcano, Aconcagua, in the southern Andes, is 23,080 feet high, and is usually regarded as the loftiest mountain in America.

Rev. A. J. Weld At Hoge 10 Years

The 10th anniversary of Rev. A. J. Weld's pastorate of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church will be observed Sunday, at which time the church session will give special recognition to him at regular services at 10:30 a. m.

Previous to coming to the Hilltop Rev. Weld had held pastorates at Minneapolis and Northbrook, a suburb of Chicago. A unanimous call was extended to him to come to Hoge Memorial after a congregational meeting on May 21, 1939. He assumed the pastorate on July 9, 1939.

More than 800 members have been added to the church roll under his pastorate.

Services Today For C & F Co. Director

John R. Dickson, 88, a director of the Cussins & Fearn Co. since 1914, died Tuesday in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

A native of Covington, Ky., Mr. Dickson came to Columbus 67 years ago from Morgantown, W. Va. He formerly was associated with the AB Stove Co. and retired from active business in 1916, but retained his position as director of Cussins & Fearn.

He was a brother-in-law of the late W. A. Fearn, one of the founders of the firm. He attended West Virginia University and was a member of the Broad Street Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Dickson leaves a son, A. F. Dickson, with whom he lived at 1811 Bryden-rd; a grandson, John A. Dickson, Gadsen, Ala., and two great-grandchildren.

Services were at 1:30 p. m. today. Burial was in Green Lawn Cemetery.

Life's drawbridges are raised or lowered to admit passage. At the same time they may hinder other passage. A drawbridge may be likened to a compromise—one gives a little, that another may gain a little, so both may profit.

A motorist, temporarily halted in passage by the raising of a drawbridge, might be inclined to chafe at the necessity of losing time. Yet, on sober reflection, no right-thinking person would halt the flow of commerce that depends upon the drawbridge for its passage to the market places.

A drawbridge is a reminder that the other fellow has rights, too. In this fast-moving age in which we live, we are too often given to deciding an issue purely on the basis of our own selfish interest in the matter. Too little thought is given to the rights of others involved.

The Golden Rule is a good one on which to build a foundation for the most satisfactory kind of life to the individual who has it to live. "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you" is a practical rule of life.

The churches and Sunday Schools of our community teach some valuable lessons in life. Regular attendance at your various church activities is a factor for good in the advancement of the interests of yourself and family. Such church and Sunday School activity also assures more consideration for the rights of "the other fellow" when life's drawbridges are being raised.

Survey Shows Ohio Hunters' Luck In 1948 Was Better Than In 1947

Ohio hunters for the state as a whole bagged more small game during the 1948 season than in 1947 but there were about 90,000 more hunters in the field in 1948, which partially explains the extra baked pheasants and fried rabbit.

Figures just released by Eugene Dustman, leader of the Ohio Wildlife Research Unit at Ohio State University, show that hunters killed 3,843,000 rabbits in 1948 compared to 3,068,000 in 1947, an increase of 25.3 per cent. For pheasant, the increase in 1948 over 1947 amounted to 19.4 per cent. In 1947 hunters took 592,000 compared to 707,000 in 1948.

For fox squirrel the recent game kill survey figures show that hunters killed 1,043,000 in 1947 and 1,155,000 in 1948, an increase of 10.7 per cent. The increase for the gray squirrel kill in 1948 was .8 per cent, and for muskrat, 16.8 per cent.

The greatest increase was noted in the take of raccoon amounting to 59.4 per cent with a kill of 574,000 in 1948 compared to 360,000 in 1947.

Of the hunters returning questionnaires in the survey who reported they bagged at least one pheasant last year, 39 per cent bagged one; 26 per cent bagged two; 11 per cent took three; another 11 per cent bagged four; four per cent bagged five; another four per cent bagged six; and five per cent bagged seven or more pheasants. The maximum number reported taken by any one hunter was 20. Eighty-seven per cent of the successful pheasant hunters bagged from one to five.

For rabbits, the kill per hunter in 1948 varied from one to 72. Of those reporting bagging at least one, 13 per cent bagged one; 14 per cent took two; 11 per cent bagged three; 12 per cent four; seven per cent five; and 25 per cent nine or more. Seventy-five per cent of the successful rabbit hunters bagged from one to eight rabbits.

LIFE ASSURANCE DOLLARS

work for YOU and the NATION

Yes, the dollars paid in premiums by the policyholders of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada go to work at once.

They are promptly and securely placed in Government, municipal, public utility and corporation investments.

They develop industry and expand business.

They build homes and schools, and modernize farms.

At the same time, dollars are being paid out by the Sun Life to safeguard families, to bring independence in old age and security to the bereaved. Thus the one and a half million men and women who, for their own protection, co-operate with the Sun Life of Canada — one of the top-ranking companies of the world — are making a definite contribution to individual and national well-being.

Benefits paid to policyholders and beneficiaries during 1947: $101,914,667;
Total Benefits paid since the first Sun Life policy was issued in 1871: $2,021,889,123;
New Assurances issued during the year: $380,659,514;
Total Assurances in force: $3,837,724,159.

Most Accidents Occur On Saturday

Ed Melvin, member of the city traffic commission, has passed on a bit of information recently compiled by his department and the police department relative to accidents in the city, as follows:

During the month of June most accidents occurred on Saturday, with 131. There were a total of 752 accidents this June as compared with 576 last June but with four fatal accidents last June there were no fatalities this year in the same month.

Peak hours for accidents are from 11 to 12 noon and 11 p. m. to 12 midnight.

There were 30 accidents as a direct result of drinking. There were 101 accidents as a result of following too close to another car.

McVay Named Assoc. Director

Ray F. McVay, 165 S. Roys-av, was recently elected a director of the American Retail Coal Association, the first Columbus man to be honored by election to this national association of coal retailers.

McVay

Mr. McVay is owner of the Bauch Coal Co. and has served as president of the Columbus Retail Coal Merchants Association, Inc., for the past eight years.

X-Ray Unit At Gladden Comm. House July 18-22

The portable X-ray unit of the Columbus Tuberculosis Society will be at Gladden Community House, 623 W. Town-st, to take free chest X-rays of residents in that area from July 18 through July 22. The X-ray unit will be in operation daily to take X-rays of people 15 years of age and over from 2 to 4:30 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

Sponsoring the program is the Progressive Mothers Club, working in cooperation with Carl Bogart, head resident of Gladden. Mrs. Evelyn Grumman, 65 S. Davis-av, is chairman of the club.

X-rays will be taken with people fully clothed. Each person X-rayed will receive a report by mail within three weeks.

Wheat Loan Rates Announced

The Federal Price Support on the 1949 wheat crop to eligible Franklin County Farmers will be $2.07 per bushel for No. 1 wheat, it was announced today by Ralph J. Agler, chairman, Franklin County Agricultural Conservation Association.

Wheat grading No. 2 or better or No. 4 or 5 on test weight only, will be eligible for support through loans made direct to farmers at the Franklin County ACA office, 209 S. Third-st, Room 207.

Loans will be available through January, 1950, and will mature on Apr. 30, 1950, or earlier on demand, Mr. Agler said.

Bean Dinner Contest Only 2 Weeks Away!

Yes sir, folks, it won't be long now! We're referring to that big, big contest which will appear in the Record Tuesday, July 26—the day before the Hilltop Bean Dinner.

Mom, Dad and the kids (yes, Granmaw too) will have a barrel of fun combining their mental powers to come up with the solution. Are your wits all sharpened? Good! You'll need 'em!

Keep your eyes peeled for complete details of this contest, which will be announced in the Record soon.

Association Starts New Rea-Bow Hall

An outstanding example of community self-help is the Rea-Bow Improvement Association, founded in April 1946 for the purpose of obtaining storm sewers, road improvements, and water for the Rea-Bow addition.

The storm sewers are in, the streets have been widened, and petitions are being circulated for city water service. Not content with just these successes, the association has founded a youth organization for the youngsters in the neighborhood, and sponsors many community activities.

The latest accomplishment of the association is the beginning on a new, larger Rea-Bow Hall at Clarendon-av and Whitehead-rd. Ground was broken for the hall on July 4, and current plans are to have the building completed for the children's annual Christmas program.

Officers of the association are Leslie Walters, president; George W. Wolfe, agent; Ernest B. Kidd, vice-president; Alice Brokamp, secretary; Ilene Miller, treasurer; and Clara M. Kidd, corresponding secretary.

This Saturday, July 16, a "Jitney Supper" will be served 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. after which dancing, singing and other entertainment will take place until 12 midnight.

W. C. Althen Funeral Held

William C. Althen, 81, of 1831 Roxbury-rd, died July 7 in Mt. Carmel Hospital. Before he retired 25 years ago, he had been a Pennsylvania Railroad scrapyard foreman. He also held patents for many inventions. Among his inventions were a lock nut used in making buggies, a "fuelizer" for economizing on gasoline in automobiles, a retriever for streetcar trolleys, and a machine which removed worn tread from automobile tires. As a child he had learned to use woodworking tools in the carriage and harness shop of his grandfather in Rome.

Mr. Althen was a member of Glenwood Methodist Church and West Gate Lodge No. 623, F&AM.

Surviving are a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Beatrice Althen of Los Angeles, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Dean, 69 N. Wayne-av, Mrs. Emma Fleming, 32 N. Westgate-av, and Agnes Althen, 696 N. High-st; and three brothers, Fred Althen, 99 S. Ohio-av, Ellsworth Althen, 706 Doyle-st, and Lawrence Althen, Columbus; three grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were completed by the Jerry Spears Funeral Home. Burial was in Sunset Cemetery.

Man Injured In Fall From Bridge

Dewey Phillips, 52, 39 Brehl-av, is reported in "fair" condition at Mount Carmel Hospital following a 30-foot fall from a balustrade of the southwest corner of the Broad Street Bridge Sunday.

Phillips said he was sitting on the cement railing, facing the street, when he became "dizzy and fell backwards." He landed on the ground at the water's edge.

Escapes Injury In Collision - Fire

Don H. Kunzi, 456 S. Westgate-av, escaped injury Sunday when the gas tank of the car he was driving was ignited by sparks from the wires of a metal utility pole it struck at Broad and Demorest-rd. The rear of the car swerved on the wet pavement and collided with the pole.

Unofficial estimate of the damage was set of $700.

Dusk Brings Gloom—Scoreless Homer

The long summer days aren't long enough for one Hilltop resident. He is Larry Persons of the Sullivant Avenue Merchants baseball nine, who is still telling friends about the home-run that didn't count last Thursday at Westgate Park.

Larry's team was leading the Green Cab No. 2 nine by a single run when Larry came to bat in the top of the fifth inning. His homer and trip around the bases was just a temporary increase in the lead, because before the inning ended the game had to be called because of darkness.

The merchants' team won, however, by the score of 2-1. Dick Wilson pitched, holding the Green Cab team to one hit.

Construction To Start On Ultra-modern Fire Station At Brinker and Sullivant-avs In the Near Future

Shown above is an architect's drawing of the new fire station that will soon be constructed at Sullivant and Brinker-avs.

Pride and joy of Hilltop firemen will be the new Fire Station No. 22, pictured above, which will soon be under construction at Brinker and Sullivant-avs.

The new station will be ultra-modern in every respect. The building will have a steel frame and walls of common brick with glazed materials on the interior. Roofs are flat and of pre-cast concrete, long-span, boxed joists with insulation and standard built up roofing.

The height of the apparatus room is above that of the dormitory and quarters section to allow a system of clearstory windows on both sides of the apparatus room, which together with the large glazed area of the overhead doors will provide maximum light and ventilation.

The watch office with radio and control desk is located at the front of the apparatus room in clear vision of street activity. The living and dining rooms are so arranged that the two areas may be thrown together by a system of sliding doors and thus used for several different purposes.

The spacious dormitory houses ten beds and is approached by means of two wide passageways, so arranged that both ends of the dormitory may be emptied quickly at the time of an alarm. A recess in the apparatus room will house two Circul-Air dryers.

Heating will be by means of a radiant floor panel hot-water system with pipes extended to the approach ramps sufficiently heated to melt snow and ice. A service tunnel will be installed running north and south down the center of the apparatus room. In this section will be housed the motor exhaust vent system and all necessary air, water, and electric conduits.

Generous roof overhangs are cantilevered beyond the north and south entrances to the apparatus room, so that the power operated overhead doors are adequately protected from the weather.

In all the station is so situated that the best available circulation is provided for the apparatus trucks both in and out of the station. Dormitories, locker rooms, toilets, etc, are on the West Side of the building so that privacy is maintained.

Brooks and Coddington, architects, 339 E. Broad-st, made plans for the building.

Hilltop Boy Makes the Grade at Annapolis; Is Sworn In After Physical Examinations

By Myron T. Elliott

The Hilltop is again represented at the United States Military Naval Academy, and Bruce Hall, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, 39 S. Algonquin-av, made the final hurdle last week at Annapolis when he qualified for his physical examinations, making him a bonafide "plebe" at the nation's top naval school, Congressman John F. Vorys announced last week.

Just a year ago, Hall took the preliminary competitive mental examination, and from a field of 50 candidates, received this appointment, along with Ted Tallmadge, Bexley.

Appointment

Last December, Bruce accepted this coveted appointment, and Friday July 1, was ordered to the military school where for three days he was tested for physical fitness. Tuesday, July 5, he was duly sworn in and made a member of Uncle Sam's select military stalwarts.

Recipient of a scholarship from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge last year, Bruce preferred the Annapolis four-year award.

Honor Student

An honor student during his days at West High School, where he graduated in June, 1948, he was active in a wide variety of school activities, especially in musical circles.

The Occident, official year book at the Hilltop school, showed that he participated in these activities:

Band Variety Show 3; Senior Showboat 3; "L" Society 2, 3; Vice President and Program Chairman of "L" Society 3; National Honor Society 3; Spanish Club 1; Drama Club 2, 3; Hi-Y 1, 2, 3; 6th Period Skits 2, 3; Band Parents Football and Basketball Dances 3; Ohio State Scholarship Test; OSU District First Place in Algebra 2; Hi-Y Homecoming Program Committee 3; Senior Scholarship Test 3; Home Room Vice President 2; Library Staff 3; Dance Band 3; Fifth Quarter Hop 3; Sound Effects Sr. Class Play 3; Miami University Scholarship; M. I. T. Award.

Miami U.

After one year as honor student at Miami University, Oxford, O., where he was enrolled in a pre-engineering course, Bruce now has an opportunity to further his engineering efforts with Uncle Sam as his counsellor and guide.

At Miami his musical talents were also in demand, and he had important leads in musical shows on the college campus.

Incidentally, Donn Eisele, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Eisele, 156 S. Algonquin-av, received this appointment last year to Annapolis. He was also a West High graduate in the class of 1948.

Similar Careers

Both boys, curiously enough, started their schooling at Highland Avenue School, finished their high school careers at West High simultaneously, and now are reunited at the naval academy.

Donn has been making a European cruise this summer, sponsored by the Annapolis school. He recently visited England, and will return to his home for a brief leave some time near the middle of August.

Another Hilltop boy, John Frederick Stoneburner, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stoneburner, 124 N. Ogden-av, who recently was appointed to West Point Military Academy, was inducted this week. The 1948 Central High graduate and former Ohio State University student, left Friday, July 1, for his new assignment.

John Stoneburner

The Stoneburner family accompanied John to his new destination, via automobile, where the family enjoyed a picnic on the army campus at West Point. Stoneburner was an outstanding track star at Central High.

Other Hilltoppers have merited the coveted military awards, and perhaps others we do not know.

Austin Magly son of the former West principal, was given an appointment back in August, 1920. He graduated from West High in 1920, and was given this appointment because of his fine scholastic record while in high school. He was recommended by Congressman Brumbaugh.

In those days few were interested in an Annapolis appointment, but Austin accepted it because he realized its importance.

Indian Lass, Friend of Many Hilltoppers is Touring West

A pretty Indian girl and one popular with Hoge Memorial church members is touring the country this week with some of her American friends.

The small dark-skinned girl, Rajama Devadas, 23, is working on her master's degree at Ohio State University.

While traveling through the West and Southwest, she has been corresponding with her Hilltop friends, Bess Sperry, Catherine Hakola, Dorothy King, Hazal Wollerman, Jane Jones, Mrs. A. J. Wold and Elizabeth Kight.

Rajama's experiences and impressions regarding her trip are recorded below as she saw them. Portions of her letter follow:

"To date I have travelled across 3600 miles, seen much and felt much. The second day of our trip we went through New Mexico. I saw many Indians in their natural settings and even conversed with one. I was sad that their culture has been branded native and uncivilized and is allowed to decay due to the pressure of other factors. The world is richer by the different cultures which give it color and life. Humanity should respect these differences and use them for mutual fulfillment and enrichment."

One of Rajama's unusual experiences was the sensation of being sunburned. Her skin, naturally dark, slowly turned light since her residence in this country. In her own words she describes her experience.

"I had studied in Tamil literature about deserts and their burning hot airs, but it was only theory. The theory became an actuality, when I crossed the deserts of Nevada and Arizona into California. Even I became sunburnt. The "fair complexion" which I had acquired after two years nourishment from your hands in Columbus, made it easy for my skin to color again. My family and people also told me that America had transformed my color."

Another part of the trip especially enjoyed by Rajama were the missions along the El Camino Real. "At each sacred church it was a great privilege to step in and say a word of prayer. The sacrifices of our forefathers are our rich heritage today. Therefore it is well to preserve and revere the past which is glorious and to prepare for the future, which is the legacy we leave behind."

Rajama is expected back from the West the latter part of this week. She is looking forward to seeing her old friends again.

J. R. Diehr Family To Visit England

T/Sgt. John R. Diehr, 187 S. Hague-av, is leaving Aug. 3 with his family to spend a 30-day furlough with his wife's parents in England.

Sgt. Diehr met his wife while serving with the army in London. Mrs. Diehr came to this country in 1944 and has not visited her family since then. The Diehrs have two daughters; Adrienne and Penny Jean.

Sgt. Diehr is attached to the main recruiting office in Columbus.

VISIT LOS ANGELES

Mrs. Howard Burroughs and her three children, Jo Ann, Donnie and Judy, 675 S. Wayne-av, are leaving today to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Rather, in Los Angeles, Calif. Mrs. Burroughs' sister, Mrs. Lee Washburn, and children, Sharon and Larry, 244 Eldon-av, are in Los Angeles at present.

FELLOWSHIP MEET

The Hilltop Kiwanis Club will meet this Thursday noon for an "old fashioned fellowship meeting." Purpose of the meeting will be for fellow Kiwanians to become better acquainted with each other. Booster donors will be Larry Scales and Ralph Schmelzer.

Dietz Says Westgate Park Lake 'Cleanest In 20 Years'

Chances for saving Westgate Park Lake seemed good yesterday as Ray Dietz, superintendent of parks, expressed the opinion that the lake was "cleaner than it had been in 20 years," and further stated that the measures taken to clean the lake were permanent.

Earlier in the afternoon a meeting of the Hilltop Business Association executive committee had mapped plans to confer with city officials on cleaning of the lake. It was the hope of the committee that raw sewage draining into the lake could be diverted into the city sewage system before entering the lake.

Pollution was the result of drainage from septic tanks in the area west of the park and outside the city limits. This sewage had previously drained through the lake and into a branch sewer.

HBA members are considering further talks with city officials to assure maintenance of the extensive cleaning program under way at the park.

Dr. F. L. Case Retired Physician Dies Thursday

Dr. Frederick Leonard Case, 87, retired Hilltop physician, 15 S. Brinker-av, died Thursday evening at his home following a three year illness.

He was a graduate of the Starling Medical College and had medical offices at the corner of Fifth and Rich-sts until his retirement in 1945. Most of his medical career was as a general practitioner, although he later specialized in diseases of the blood and skin.

Born in Maumee County, he had been a resident of Columbus for over 60 years. He formerly owned drug stores at Park and Spruce-sts, on E. Long-st and on N. High-st.

Dr. Case was active in the Odd Fellows organization and was a member of Central Lodge No. 23, Junia Encampment No. 6, Canton Junia No. 1, Grand Central Rebekah Lodge No. 669, Neoacacia Lodge 595, F. & A. M., and Scottish Rite.

He is survived by his wife, Jessie L., and a sister, Mrs. Frank C. Smith, of Miland.

Tennis Match At Westgate Park Saturday

Tennis stars from Columbus and Central Ohio will vie for honors when the City Claycourt Tennis Matches get under way at Westgate Park next Saturday.

Arnold Levenstein, captain of the Ohio State team, and Guy Blair, another Buckeye letter man, are current favorites in the contest, the first such tournament since the war. Another strong contender will be Charles "Pinky" Steinman, winner of the last tournament.

Expected to stand high in the competition are Bill Sherker, Pat Tonti, Jim Slager, John Hipple, Roger Lindley, Francis Harver and Dick Slager. A hard-playing contestant will be one-armed George Phillips.

Hilltop business men will present the trophies for the contest. Leo Phillips, Sr., former detective chief, is tournament chairman.

Entries in all divisions may be made before Friday evening at the Westgate Tennis Club, 3122 Wicklow-rd, or by phoning RA. 2063. Play begins at 10 a. m. Saturday and continues through Sunday. Finals will be Sunday, July 24.

He Planted Ad—Reaped Results; So Can You!

The good news is spreading—more and more Hilltoppers (and other Columbusites) are finding that it pays to advertise the Record Classified way.

Here's another of our many, many success stories. Mr. Dale Cox, 67 N. Wheatland-av, invested 60c for two insertions of the following ad:

MAN'S SUIT, 3-pc., dark blue pin stripe, 46-48. RA. 7112 aft. 6.

Result: The suit sold for $30. Others are selling their surplus belongings—why not you? Call us for the next issue, RA. 1125.

Seek Farm Work For Boys Here

The Kiwanis Club of Cleveland has announced that it is looking for farm work for under-privileged boys during the remainder of the summer months. These boys are members of the four Cleveland Boys' Towns.

Anyone wishing to provide work for these boys, or knowing any farmer willing to do so, should contact Jack Sensenbrenner, president of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, at RA.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

This Year's Beans Will Be Baked

The biggest news to hit the Hilltop in many a year is being announced exclusively in the Record today.

The news . . . BAKED beans will be served at the sixth annual Hilltop Bean Dinner to be held at Westgate Park on July 27, the committee announced this week.

Yes sir, the flavor will be changed this year. Instead of the old fashioned thick soupy plain white beans the committee is going all out and will serve nearly a ton of tasty streamlined baked beans.

Franklin D. Sparks and John Nippert, in charge of this part of the big bean festival, state that the beans will be cooked at David Davies Packing Co., and then taken to the Lucks Bakery where they will be baked to perfection and then transported to the park where generous portions along with crackers and coffee will be served for the very low price of 10c.

If you want to know in advance what the Hilltop beans will taste like why not whip up a small batch along the lines of the following recipe. Just take 100 pounds of white soup beans (Navy variety) and boil them well, add 10 pounds of brown sugar, 7 pounds of catsup, five large onions and a batch of ham hocks and bake well. That's the formula for the famous Hilltop beans you will receive July 27.

With only two weeks remaining before bean dinner time all committees have reported to Jack Merriman, chairman, that they are busy making final arrangements for the best bean dinner yet. Numerous Hilltoppers report delaying their vacation in order to be present for this big event.

W. Jeff. Summer Festival July 29

St. Simon and Jude Church, West Jefferson, will hold its annual summer festival July 29, 30 and 31, on the church grounds on U. S. Rt. 40, West Jefferson.

Rev. Raymond Danehy, O. M. I., pastor, has announced the following committees to be in charge of the affair:

Mrs. Walter Ducey and George Wise, co-chairmen; Cy McElroy, games; Mary Mooney, cashier; John Holland, booths; Mrs. Cy McElroy, dinner.

Retired Hilliards Teacher Dies

PROPERTY OWNERS RALLY

The Property Owners' Association of Franklin County will hold a mass meeting Saturday, July 16, at 8 p. m. in city hall council chamber, second floor, at which time Rev. Wallace J. Murphy of Tulsa, Okla., president of the Property Owners' Association of America, will be the speaker. All home owners and owners of rental property are invited.

Death Takes Dan Churton

Daniel Churton, 63, formerly of 92 N. Powell-av, died at the home of his son, John B. Churton, 1490 Park-dr, St. Albans, W. Va., Thursday, of a heart attack.

Services were held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the St. Albans Presbyterian Church, with burial in Ridge Lawn Cemetery, Huntington, W. Va. The Washington Lodge, AF&AM, was in charge of the service at the grave.

Mr. Churton was a member of the St. Albans Presbyterian Church, West Gate No. 623 F&AM, also a member of the Knights Templar and Shrine bodies. He was formerly manager of the Wylie China Co., Huntington, W. Va.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Laura Churton; three sons, John B. and Paul M. of St. Albans, and Rev. Daniel B. of Huntington; one [illegible] brothers, John Churton of Tunstall, England, and Jabey Churton of East Liverpool. Mr. Churton was born in Tunstall, England.

Those attending the services from Columbus were Margaret, Stella and Eva Burnside, sisters of Mrs. Churton, 92 N. Powell-av, and Mr. and Mrs. Mose Williams, 2581 Steele-av.

Westgate Electric To Give Washer At Bean Dinner

The growing list of prizes to be given away at the Hilltop Bean Dinner at Westgate Park July 27 continues to get larger and the latest item is a new Westinghouse Laundromat automatic washer.

Don Rice of the Westgate Electric Shop, 2655 W. Broad-st, announced the washer will be given away absolutely free. Full details for entering the contest are available at the store.

The washer is fully automatic and is valued at $299.50. Among other features, the washer measures water to the size of the wash by the setting of a dial. It can be installed anywhere and does not have to be bolted to the floor. And best of all; your hands need never touch water.

Hilltop housewives are invited to visit the store for a demonstration.

Holy Name Group Plans Playground

Completion of a playground project which has as its goal the installation of a complete set of equipment on the parish school grounds at 488 S. Roys-av, ranks high in priority on the program of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary Magdalene Church. Major items of equipment have already been erected by the society.

Edward A. Tonti, 253 S. Southampton-av, is chairman of a committee for the project. Parishioners are invited to inspect the equipment on July 14, when the playground committee plans to present the equipment formally to Rev. Raymond Bauschard, the pastor, at 7:45 p. m., preceding the regular monthly meeting of the society.

Larry Betsch Is Sworn Into Navy

Larry Betsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Betsch, 257 Westgate-av, was sworn into the United States Navy at the navy recruiting station at the Old Post Office. Before enlisting in the regular navy Betsch attended West High School and was employed by the Ohio State Journal. Larry left Friday for the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Cal., where he will receive his recruit training.

..A Million Dollars a Day FREE SERVICE TO THE PUBLIC

Do you know of any great group of educators, lawyers, brokers, merchants, insurance men, bankers, salesmen—who, year in and year out, day after day and night after night, give of their time, talent, energy and money to the extent of more than a million dollars per day?

At the present time, even in spite of exigencies of the times, the ethical physician members of the American Medical Association are rendering more than a million dollars a day of free service to the public.

That million dollars a day is a most conservative estimate of the services rendered by the Doctors of America in free clinics, hospitals, in homes and at their offices to patients unable to pay. This huge sum does not include the bills left on the books of physicians, by those who can and should pay.

The next time you hear someone berating Doctors for this, that and the other, remember this service that goes on every minute of the day and night.

The Medical profession is dedicated to the building and saving of men, has behind it the tradition of service to those who suffer, and the path of Medicine and scientific advancement is strewn with 24-hour duty martyrs.

There are exceptions, of course, as in all professions—but the spirit of these 24-hour martyrs, their principles, teachings and examples live in the hearts of all worthy physicians.

Business Decline Is Result Of Unbalanced Economy

By John Kelly

It is natural that all of us, employee and employer alike, are trying to foresee the future. The first is concerned about possible unemployment; the other is nervous about the fate of his business.

The ancient military truism that "generals always fight the last war" can be applied to those interested in the study of our system. When business history is examined past weaknesses are searched out for comparison with the present and valuable lessons learned.

From there on it is purely guess work with one man's hazard as good as another man's brainchild. The following is personal speculation on the future over the near term.

Neither the time nor the extent of the current adjustment is foreordained. Each will be greatly influenced by the policies that will be followed. Both will be determined by the degree in which we face and deal with the problems of the transition.

Any business decline is evidence that the economy has become unbalanced. As you know, the present drop is chiefly attributable to the fact that our tremendous industrial capacity has caught up with and temporarily outstripped our peacetime demand.

Whatever the level at which industry generally finds itself in balance, it would seem safe to predict that the "normal" of that time will not be the pre-war normal. Conditions appear to have changed too much.

The information on current employment does not point out that four million jobless now no longer bears its former implications. The population has grown more than 16 million since those days with the number of employables further swelled by wives and children who formerly did not work.

The national income before World War I never exceeded $45 billion—the rate of 1916. The post-war peak was reached in 1929—$85 billion. Today our national income is approximately $220 billion.

Ten years ago, in 1939, we had 44 million employed; today there are around 57 million persons employed. The average wage 10 years ago was $24 per week while today the average weekly pay check is $55—up 130 per cent.

There is about 5½ times more money in circulation than there was in 1929. In that year—the peak of post World War I inflation—circulation amounted to less than $5 billion. Today money in circulation has reached the awesome total of $27.4 billion.

In 1939, 10 years ago, the deposits of all Federal Reserve Member banks amounted to under $40 billion. Latest figures show that such deposits in member banks now total $106½ billion.

These startling contrasts indicate that the economy is entering a brand new world. Even if the future is strange and uncharted, there would appear to be nothing to make it so awfully tough unless we choose to make it so.

Speculation on some possibilities of the future will be resumed next week.

J. HUGH JACKSON

J. Hugh Jackson, dean of the graduate school of business at Stanford University and newly elected president of Kiwanis International, today informed officers of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club that his administration during the next several months would continue to emphasize the there, "Aggressive Citizenship—Our Individual Responsibility."

Installed as president of the community service organization at the closing session of its 34th annual convention a few days ago at Atlantic City, N. J., the prominent California educator said that he would urge Kiwanis clubs to work for world peace and guard against subversive activities.

He will visit Columbus this fall.

And Have Not Love

By MARGARET NICHOLS

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

BEATRICE bent down and picked up her shoes and walked over the rug. It's only the rug, she thought. Why didn't I go to him and put my arms around him and tell him how much I want him? Why didn't I tell him all these things in my heart? How much I need him.

Her image in the mirror struck her curiously. It was a rare thing for her ever to glance into a mirror unless she was dressing. She stopped and looked at herself seeing, strangely, a girl who had stood before a smeared mirror in a hotel room in Atlantic City and brushed her flowing hair. And to the image of a decade ago she said silently, And I, the present, tell you that I have lost more than I have gained. I'm not half the woman you were. But I kept my promise. I became a successful wife. I became so successful a wife, a hostess, a bridge player, a mother, a daughter-in-law, a clubwoman that—have I forgotten to be a woman?

And I have been so self-righteous, so sure that it was all Porter's fault! A perfect wife. That's what Libby called me the day I met David the first time, and I winced! That's what everybody calls me. Has the woman been sacrificed for the perfect wife? I've partitioned myself into so many people. Have I lost myself? Have I lost what made Porter love me and want me?

She was stunned by the impact of her own questions as she went upstairs and went to the closet, took a piece of luggage and began to pack the things she knew from long experience that he would need for approximately ten days. She had done the same thing so many times that she was scarcely conscious of doing it. Her fingers moved slowly, expertly.

And then Porter came out of the bathroom and changed into another suit and shirt and tie. He stopped and looked at her curiously.

"No one in the world can pack a bag as well as you, Bee, or anticipate just what a man needs away from home to save him a lot of bother."

The words stung sharply. Ah, yes, I have learned how to do everything so well—I tried so hard because in the beginning I didn't know how to do anything. And I succeeded so well, too well, in all the things that really don't matter too much, and failed in the one essential thing—to hold your love and your desire.

She said as calmly as she could, "Porter, why didn't you let me know that Bonnie was a stranger here? I'd have helped her."

His dark eyes quickened perceptibly. "There are some pople who don't want to be sponsored, Bee. They don't want to be the guest of honor. They want to find their own way. I know what you're thinking. We were eager enough to be sponsored by the Rameys."

"Do you think it was a mistake?"

Though she looked at him frankly, his face was closed to her.

"That's a post-mortem, isn't it?" he asked. "It's done now and we're in it up to our ears." His eyes surveyed the lovely, rose colored room, Beatrice's soft chaise longue, the silver brushes on his chest of drawers, the bottles of French perfume on her dressing table, the outrageously expensive bedspreads. With his face still closed to her he said, "All this and the Rameys, too. You look shot, Bee. What happened today?"

She closed the bag and snapped the lock. Then she sat on his bed, and cried at last.

"I know," she said. "I never cry. But why shouldn't I? I've hated women who bid for sympathy through their tears. All my mother ever had to do was to let a single tear fall, and she got what she wanted."

"But what happened?"

And after she had told him with great difficulty in speaking, she said, "A lot of people will say that Libby had it coming to her. Maybe she had. But to see her, to see anyone wither like that. She was telling all the time Jane was saying those ghastly things to her. I left her on the floor and alone. You can't see something like that without thinking that it could be you and your child, Marianne and I."

His quick sympathy surprised her. "That was tough. But she knows you'll stand by her. She has a lot of friends."

Beatrice shook her head. Her own face was blotched and shiny now, and her lipstick was gone. She looked quite plain.

"Libby had a lot of friends," she said unconscious of herself, "while she used her energy and her money to be seen and to entertain them. But from now on Libby will be the forgotten woman. I saw her crack and break today." She sat up and dried her swollen eyes. "I'm sorry. I know you want to be going."

"You don't look like yourself, Bee. Your daughter won't know her own mother when she comes in." When the telephone rang, he picked it up. "Hello. Yes. Sure, Bonnie. Read it to me. Okay. Are you sure you're all right? And remember I made the arrangements with Joe Weaver to pick you up in the morning and take you up in the morning and take you home. Fine. Good-bye, Bon."

When Beatrice arose he said, "Bonnie had a telegram to read to me. She wanted to say goodbye." He went to her and kissed her cheek. It was not a kiss at all. It was a habit. "See you," he said. He picked up the bag and left the room.

• • •

It was not until Marianne was in bed that night that she took Cecily's letter, and was surprised to find that it had been postmarked in New York and not in Palm Beach where Cecily customarily spent the month of January.

Beatrice read the large, sprawling, childlike handwriting:

Darling,

I didn't go to Palm Beach after all and the reason for my change of mind I shall tell you when I see you. That's why I'm writing, for you know how I abominate (is that word spelled correctly? there isn't a dictionary around) writing letters. The point is, darling, that I want you to run up to see me as soon as you can. Oh, I know you won't dash away, and there's really no haste, and I know that the holiday parties do stretch long into January and that you are being very social just now and wouldn't want to miss it for the world. I don't want you to miss anything on my [redacted] (I haven't missed anything on yours), and you are so necessary to Porter's career and well being and all that sort of thing. Men hate to go to parties alone. There's no one with whom to gossip afterward about who was or was not there and what everyone did and said. That's the most delicious thing after all about any party, don't you think, coming home and talking about it?

But your scatter-brained little mother needs advice, Beatrice, and you're so good at decisions and I'm so bad at them.

Surely Marianne must be almost as tall as I am. But if she's going to be tiny as I am, teach her to accentuate her smallness and not try to disguise it. My body has always been such a pleasure to me because I've never been bulky and I've never had to wear anything tight.

Your gifts were heavenly, as always. The slips and nightie were lush. How do you do it?

Much love,
[redacted]

P.S. I hope you will remember to tell Porter how I adore him, and how thoroughly I approve of him.
M.

Beatrice smiled because her mother's letters always made her smile. Yet in this one there was a commonsense usually lacking in Cecily's brief little notes, which usually only said where she was going and for Beatrice not to write her in New York. It was not, however, strange for Cecily to ask her friends and Beatrice for advice. She was constantly asking people what color did they think she should have her bedroom painted, and what kind of fur coat she should buy this time, and where should she go for the summer now that she couldn't go to Europe until things were better there. She asked them, and they told her as best they could, but she never did any of the things they advised. She would laugh and say that she had changed her mind. What problem perplexed her now Beatrice could not imagine, because if her mother had a problem, she usually slithered blithely out of it. It was of no consequence to Cecily if her changed mind caused other people frantically to cancel train or plane reservations, or for their lives to be turned temporarily into bedlam. Cecily would say simply and merrily that she had changed her mind.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

LAWYER MORRIS ERNST once was defending, in a New York court, Schnitzler's comparatively innocuous Casanova's Homecoming. Ernst offered to present, in support of his case, signed affidavits by various literary luminaries.

The judge said he'd be glad to see letters from Sinclair Lewis, Theodore Dreiser, H. L. Mencken, and Heywood Broun. After Ernst had won the case, the judge told him, "I really didn't need those letters to reach a decision, but my son collects autographs."

Among gambling stories is the one of the canny life-insurance salesman who sold a policy to a prospect that exhausted competitors had dismissed as "untouchable" by reducing his proposition to wagering terms. "I've got one million dollars to your twenty thousand—50 to 1—that says you'll drop dead within the next twelve months," he challenged. "Why you—" exploded the prospect, and before he recovered his equilibrium, he had signed for a whopping policy.

If Your Newspaper Carried a Headline Telling That a Number of Big Corporations Were Able to Escape a Billion Dollars in Federal Income Tax . . . What Would You Say?

Well, in the first place, you'd probably write your Congressman a scorcher! Quite properly asking—"How come?"

Yet tax-exempt commercial enterprises such as co-operative corporations, government businesses, so-called "trusts," and the like are permitted each year to avoid ONE BILLION DOLLARS in federal income taxes.

For example, co-ops, alone, do 17 billions in business and make profits of an estimated billion dollars on which they pay little or no federal income taxes like other business pays. Other commercial tax-exempts are comparable.

TAX THE UNTAXED First

Congress is looking for MORE government revenue to the tune of some four billion dollars. Plans are being made to increase income taxes on present taxpayers. Every income taxpayer should DEMAND that Congress tax the untaxed FIRST before adding more income taxes onto those already paying more than their share. Contact your Congressman NOW. Tell him to TAX THE UNTAXED FIRST!

Coconut Mystery Cookies

By Betty Barclay

THERE is really no mystery at all to these delicious cookies. Their name probably refers to the element of surprise when you bite into them. For hidden in the centers of these crunchy coconut cookies are creamy chocolate chips that make you say, "Mmm, what are these?" When friends drop in by chance, or by invitation, these confections are perfect to serve with a cool, refreshing beverage. Yes, you will love them to include with your summer refreshment ideas; although keeping a supply on hand may be a problem—for these are definitely not cookies to go "begging."

Mystery Cookies

2 egg whites; ¼ teaspoon salt; ½ cup sugar; ½ teaspoon vinegar; ½ teaspoon vanilla; 1 cup shredded coconut; ¼ cup chocolate chips.

Beat egg whites and salt until foamy throughout. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Then continue beating until mixture will stand in stiff peaks. Add vinegar and vanilla and beat well. (Entire beating process takes about 10 minutes.) Fold in coconut.

Drop small amount of mixture from teaspoon on greased cooky sheet. Place 2 chocolate chips in center of each cooky and cover with small amount of mixture. Bake in very slow oven (250° F.) about 30 minutes. Makes about 2½ dozen cookies.

Crosley Shelvador To Be Given Away At Bean Dinner

Golf — What Is It?

Golf is what letter-carrying, ditch-digging, and carpet-beating would be if these three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored sox, by gouty looking gentlemen who required a different implement for every mood.

Golf is the simplest looking game in the world when you decide to take it up and the toughest looking after you have been at it ten or twelve years.

It is probably the only known game in the world a man can play for a quarter of a century and then discover that it was too deep for him in the first place.

A golf course has eighteen holes, seventeen of which are unnecessary and put in to make the game harder. A "hole" is a tin cup in the center of the green. A green is a small parcel of grass costing about $1.98 a blade, and a lot of unfinished excavations. The idea is to get the golf ball from a given point into each of the eighteen cups in the fewest strokes and the least number of words.

The ball must not be thrown, pushed, or carried. It must be propelled entirely by about $200 worth of curious looking instruments especially designed to provoke the owner. Each implement has a specific purpose, and ultimately some golfers get to know what the purpose is, there are exceptions.

After each hole has been completed, the golfer counts his strokes. Then he subtracts six and says, "Made that hole in five. That's one above par. Shall we play for fifty cents on the next hole, too, Ed?"

After the final or 18th hole, the golfer adds up his score and stops when he has reached eighty-seven. He then has a swim, a pint of—, sings "Sweet— Adeline" with six other liars, and calls it the end of a perfect day.

Do You Long For The Good Old Days?

A lot of us frequently use the expression, "The good old days", meaning of course the days when prices were much lower than they are today.

True it is that prices in many lines are a lot higher than they were a few years back—higher than they have ever been before in certain lines. But aren't a lot of us just merely interested in eating our cake and having it too when we seek a return of those low prices?

In terms of purchasing power the dollar today is worth about 30 per cent less than in those "good old days" but what about the wages you are earning—and the hours you are working?

All in all the American standard of living today has reached a new high and we have nicer things and more of them than we have ever had before—more nice autos, more nice clothes, more and expensive vacations. And a lot of us were not enjoying these things on a 37½ hour week back in those days.

To top it off it is a fact that the quality of many items has gone up and prices of these same items has stayed down. Such is the case of household appliances today. Appliances are a good buy today and probably as good a buy as they will be for some time to come. So if you are planning some more of the good things of life that modern appliances will make possible, why put them off? Enjoy them now. Make these the "good old days." Look around, investigate for yourself. Visit your Hilltop appliance firms today and see for yourself.

15,000 New Telephone Books Here

More than 15,000 new telephone books will be distributed to customers in the Randolph and Jordan exchanges this week.

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. reported yesterday that it has 9,440 accounts in the Randolph exchange and 4,341 in the Jordan exchange, an increase of 760 over last year. Homes and businesses having extension lines will receive a book for each phone.

William McDonald of the phone company reported that equipment and phone numbers are in ample supply for the Hilltop area, and in most cases new subscribers can be speedily taken care of.

Phone company officials suggest that subscribers write their fire and police numbers in the space provided on the front page of the new book. "Some people have had difficulty remembering numbers to call in emergencies and we're trying to help them by leaving a space for these numbers on the first page of the book," said J. P. Gibbs, district commercial manager of the phone company.

Cash Waiting On Top Of Greased Pole

A lot of Hilltop youngsters are going to get their clothes greasy, and one of them is going to win a sack of money or a new watch.

The traditional greased pole is just one of the many features of this year's Hilltop Bean Dinner, to be held at Westgate Park July 27. All in all there will be 15 contests for the kiddies.

Youngsters will get the thrill of their lives, and oldsters will be youngsters again as they ride on the many amusement rides. The perennial favorite, the Ferris Wheel, will be there offering fun and a "bird's eye view" of the festivities to the whole family.

Also available will be "thrill" rides for the braver Hilltoppers and special rides for the very young children.

Topping of the midway entertainment will be a band concert.

Joe Briggs, chairman of the amusement committee, says that his committee has made plans for the entertainment of all, and promises that the entertainment this year will be the best ever.

John Burroughs Playground Scene Of Summer Fun

By Charles Boechler and Mary Moler

The John Burroughs School playground, 2585 Sullivant-av, is a popular summer spot for Hilltop youngsters, holding an attendance record for board of education sponsored playgrounds.

Among recent events was a combined doll, toy and hobby show. Joyce Streckler was awarded the grand prize for her combination grouping, which included her decorated bicycle, favorite doll and toy dog. Ellen Greenwood won the first prize in the hobby division with her pet ducks.

Winners in the doll display were Judy Clotts, Rosemary Osman, Lois Ann Hunter, Sandra Blum, Jacky Pale, Earlene Clotts, Eunice Woerling and Diana Osman.

Toy prizes went to Douglas Wilhelm, best collection of toys; Roger Bruns, funniest toy; and Freddy Casselman, most interesting toy.

Other hobby prizes were awarded to Rollin Watts, Douglas Wilhelm and Rosemary Osman.

Coming up on the playground list of activities is the annual exhibit of the Garden Club on July 28. Prizes will be awarded for the best bouquet of garden flowers, the prettiest miniature arrangement and the best single specimen of flowers or vegetables.

The pet show had to be called off this year due to the quarantine.

Daily activities at the playground include badminton, volleyball, basketball, horseshoe pitching, softball, swings, teeter and sliding boards, and ring tossing.

Boys under 10 years old are being sought for the midget softball team.

Future plans at the playground include a trip to the zoo for both youngsters and grown-ups. The charge will be 25c.

The playground is open Monday through Friday from noon until 8 p. m.

MASONS GET RAISE

Hilltop Little Theatre Will Offer 'You and I'

The Hilltop Little Theater group will present "You and I," by Philip Barry, as its first production of the 1949-50 season. Date of the play is set for September, with casting starting in early August.

The group produced four plays during its first season last year and ended the season with nearly $200 in the bank, plus stage props, equipment and a workshop donated to them for their exclusive use.

Associate membership in the group is available through the secretary, Mrs. Howard Moon, [illegible] S. Westmoor-av.

Old Age Pension Checks Delayed

Thousands of old age pension checks were held up as the General Assembly toiled with the biennial appropriations bill yesterday.

Vouchers are made out and will be posted as soon as possible, it was announced. Checks are mailed to counties in alphabetical order.

Arlington Lady Finds Record Ads Are 'On the Job'

Hilltoppers aren't the only folks who are using the Record want ads to good advantage these days; residents of other sections of Columbus, as well as the suburbs, are discovering that Record Want Advertising is truly a paying proposition.

Mrs. W. W. Heimberger, 2380 Oxford-rd (Upper Arlington), ran this ad in last Thursday's Classified Section:

GARAGE DOOR, overhead type, 1 pc. 7x14. Complete with operating hardware. Excellent condition. Reasonable. KI. 3725.

Result: A thrifty gentleman from our community purchased the door from her on Saturday morning — which proves also that Hilltoppers are willing to travel several miles, if necessary, to take advantage of a genuine bargain.

Some unused article in your home may be the very thing that one or more of our readers is looking for. The most practical and economical way to let them know about it is through a Record ad. Call RA. 1128.

Friends Rescue Home Here Completes 31 Years Service

By Leon Solomon

The Friends Rescue Home at Ridge and N. Powell-avs, nestling in quiet majesty behind 12 acres of lawn and stream, is Hilltop's sanctuary for wayward women. The organization, created 31 years ago by a Christian devotee, Evangeline Reams of Logan County, is perhaps the best example of the "Ethic" known to this community.

Founder

Miss Reams, a social and religious minded young woman, having long been interested in the problem of illegitimate motherhood, came to Columbus and joined the Highland Avenue Friends Church. Here she sought the assistance of the City Mission in making her dream of a rescue home into a working reality. The Quakers at Highland Avenue Friends Church formed a board that engineered the procurement of two houses on 13th-av. Later a wealthy citizen of Columbus by the name of Rayes went into bankruptcy and sold the present site of the Friends Rescue Home to the board for $24,000. The board then negotiated the selling of the two houses on 13th-av for $10,000, leaving a balance of $14,000 owed on the new haven.

While in the depths of financial despair and laden with the anxieties of failure, Miss Reams continued her ceaseless and constructive endeavors.

Giving instructions to the housekeeper, Annette Wheeler, (standing) is Monna Rogers (left), new superintendent of the home. Winona Muth (right), superintendent for the past four years, looks on. Miss Rogers took over her duties on July 1.

A short time after the purchase of the N. Powell-av home, a wealthy woman drove up to the Friends Rescue Home in a big automobile and pleaded with Evangeline to give her solace for her impiety. Miss Reams looked tenderly at the pregnant woman and softly said, "You need Jesus." At this point the young woman kneeled down and kissed Evangeline's hands.

A short time later the young woman died and out of gratitude left Miss Reams the $14,000 needed to pay the debt on the Friends Rescue Home.

Welfare Work

At present the state permits the 18-room establishment to shelter 26 young women at a given time. However, the allocated figure is rarely met.

Women are directed to Friends Rescue Home through the welfare department, friends, parents, judges and doctors. The personal histories of the constituents are private and very often young women come to the home six months before their babies are born.

The organization is well planned by the Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends which now motivates the program through quarterly meetings. To enhance the functioning powers of the home, the OYMF set up a local board in Columbus which meets monthly.

New Superintendent

The chief protagonist of the home itself is Monna Rogers, who took over her duties as new superintendent on July 1. Miss Rogers replaced Winona Muth, who retired after heading the staff for the past four years. The paid members of the staff include two registered nurses, a kitchen superintendent, housekeeper and Miss Rogers.

The therapy is administered through a religious and medical program, with Dr. Francis Davis having been the medical adviser of the home for more than 25 years.

When asked about the nature of the young women's difficulties, Miss Muth, the former superintendent, replied, "Evil things come from evil hearts. If they can make peace with God they can adjust to all matters in life . . . can live good, useful, satisfactory lives."

Bearing this philosophy in mind, the Friends Rescue Home creates a religious program with stress on Bible readings.

The physical aspects of the home include a chapel converted

Two registered nurses work full-time in the modern delivery room at the Friends Rescue Home. Shown at work are Nurses Eleanor Wilson and Opal Lockwood.

Enjoying a social hour in the comfortable sitting room at the Friends Rescue Home are two girls from the home and Isabelle Kessler, at the piano, superintendent of the kitchen.

New Hilltop Branch Library Construction Bids Asked

Broad-Binns Site Of One-story Building

A new Hilltop Branch Library will be constructed as soon as building conditions permit, according to a statement by librarian Will Collins, yesterday.

The board of trustees of the Columbus Public Library has ordered bids to be advertised for construction of a new library on W. Broad-st, just west of the West Gate Masonic Temple and near Binns-blvd, on a site purchased 10 years ago by the library board.

Harry T. Roderick, 12 N. Third-st, is the architect for the new building. It will be a modern one-story brick structure consisting of one large room and several supplementary small office rooms. It will have a frontage of 72 feet and a depth of 48 feet.

Bids on the project will be accepted at the main library at Grant-av and State-st until noon Aug. 9.

The present library, located in a rented structure at 21 N. Hague-av, will be abandoned when the new branch is ready for occupancy. It was the first city library located on the Hilltop, being opened in October, 1911.

Dist. Legion Aux. To Meet On Hilltop

The annual convention of the 12th District American Legion Auxiliary will convene Friday, July 16, at the Camp Chase Post club rooms, 10 S. Burgess-av.

Delegates and alternates of the 19 auxiliary units of Columbus and Franklin County that make up the 12th district will register beginning at 12 noon, and the district president, Mrs. Arthur Palmer, will call the convention to order at 1 p. m. Mrs. Wade K. Baum, department treasurer, will represent the Department of Ohio as guest speaker.

Mrs. Vernon C. Fiscus, president of the Camp Chase unit, announces that Mrs. Ray McVay will be general chairman of arrangements for entertaining those in attendance.

Hague-av Child Reported 'Better'

Richard Rhodes, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rhodes, 191 S. Hague-av, is reported recovering in Children's Hospital following a July 4 accident.

Richard suffered a fractured skull and multiple bruises when he fell from the back seat of the Rhodes' car three miles south of Circleville as the family was returning from a visit in Jackson, O.

Hospital officials say he was in "very serious" condition until Monday.

Tune Shop To Sponsor Disc Show

The Hilltop Tune Shop will air records of current hits in its new program, "Stardust Way," over WVKO-FM. The 20-minute program will be presented every Friday night preceding the ball game.

Rod Altmier will emcee the disc program. Mr. Altmier is a student at the Ohio State University, and was formerly manager of the armed forces radio station in Korea.

Open House at New Church Parsonage Set for Friday

Rev. and Mrs. Harris B. Anthony stand on the porch of the new Warren Avenue Church of the Nazarene parsonage at 675 S. Harris-av. Open house will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 Friday evening.

The Warren Avenue Church of the Nazarene has recently completed the building of a new church parsonage, with a two-car cement block garage, located at 675 S. Harris-av. The house, situated on two lots with an 80-foot frontage, is of brick and frame construction, and includes a living room, dining room, kitchen, pastor's study, sewing room, four bedrooms and two baths. Fuller V. Spurr, 4529 Trabue-rd, was the contractor.

This is the first step in the building program of the church. The old parsonage, located at 642 S. Warren-av, is now being moved by Muth Bros. to a vacant lot across the street, to be remodeled and sold. Following this the old church at 648 S. Warren-av will be razed and a new church building erected on the sites of the old parsonage and church.

Rev. Harris B. Anthony has been pastor of this church for nearly 12 years. During his pastorate a mortgage of approximately $5,000 has been paid, and over $100,000 in cash raised for building purposes. The income of the church has increased from $6,036 to more than $42,000 per year and the membership has almost tripled.

On Friday evening, July 15, the church is holding "open house" between the hours of 6:30 and 10:30 An invitation is extended to every one who desires to visit the new parsonage at this time.

3 Legionaires Elected To Patrol Auxiliary

Camp Chase Post No. 98 American Legion has announced that three of its members have recently been elected to posts in the State Highway Patrol auxiliary unit. They are Robert G. Daggett, 344 Belvidere-av, captain; John Martindale, 2000 W. Broad-st, sergeant; and John West, 172 Lechner-av, patrolman.

The auxiliary was reorganized in January, 1949, to assist in traffic checks, traffic controls, state and local emergencies, and disasters such as floods or fires.

Members of the auxiliary receive training in first aid, traffic control and laws, laws of arrest, and identification. There are 90 units on active duty at present with approximately 3000 members.

Only American Legion members are eligible for the auxiliary patrol.

Jaeger Deed Transferred To City

Philip Stout of the city recreation commission announced today that the title to the Jaeger country estate at Trabue and Wilson-rds was transferred to the city yesterday.

Transfer of the deed will be followed by planning of the 27 hole golf course by architects. The best layout for the course and location of an adjacent public park will be decided after the ground has been thoroughly surveyed and numerous aerial photographs taken and studied.

Disposition of the 13 room house, included in the sale, has not been decided, Mr. Stout said. Purchase was made with $60,000 in bonds and a $27,500 grant voted by the recreation department in 1945.

Timken Union To Take Strike Vote

A special mass meeting of members of the Columbus local, United Steel Workers of America, has been set for 2:30 p. m. Sunday at Central High School. A full report of union negotiations with the Timken Roller Bearing Co. will be presented and action taken to either accept the company's offer to date or strike, effective Monday, July 18.

Harry E. Mayfield, president of the union, stressed the importance of all members being present.

West Gate Lawn Festival Friday

The West Gate Craftsman Club of the West Gate Lodge of Masons is sponsoring its annual lawn festival this Friday at the West Gate Temple Grounds, 2925 W. Broad-st.

Hilltoppers are invited to come and bring their families to the festivities which will last from 5 p. m. until midnight. Music, fireworks, novelties, fish pond, and refreshments will be featured.

Entries Mounting In Clay Court Tourney; Hilltoppers Expected To Stand High

By Myron T. Seifert

When the sixth annual Westgate tennis tournament opens at the Hilltop Park Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, scores of players and fans will be on hand at the six clay courts to inaugurate the city clay championship series of contests, which will be continued on Sunday, July 17, and Saturday, July 23, and rounding out the final competition, Sunday, July 24, William E. Sherker, president of the club, said today.

Heretofore, the tourney has created widespread interest, and the one this year, first since the war, promises stellar performances and rare showmanship of participants.

Entries close tomorrow and drawings for the event begin at 8:30 a. m. Saturday.

Members of Ohio State Varsity Racquet Club who are expected to participate are Levenstein, captain 1949, Blair, Kuenzli, Dillon, D. Slager and Schiff, co-captains, 1950. Pat Tonti will represent the Notre Dame varsity. Veterans who have participated in collegiate tennis in former years and will also play are John Hipple, Roger Lindley, George Phillips, Francis Harvey and Leo Phillips, all of the Westgate tennis club. Entries are expected from Westerville, Springfield and other neighboring cities.

Youngsters on their way up, and eager to try their abilities in the competition include Jim Slager, Hilltopper (city playground champion, Junior Intermediate, 1947), and James Black, East Sider.

Ladies are invited to enter the women's singles, the management said. Several very good players, including Joyce Higgy, district champion, have already sent in entry blanks and others are to come.

Open Clay Court Tournament officials include Francis Harvey, secretary-treasurer, Westgate Tennis Club; William E. Sherker, president, Westgate Tennis Club; Leo Phillips, Sr., tourney chairman; Dick Slager, tourney co-chairman; John Hipple, charter member, Westgate Tennis Club; Leo Phillips, Jr., charter member, Westgate Tennis Club; Charles Merriman, charter member, Westgate Tennis Club; Pat Tonti, city playground intermediate champion, 1946; Jim Slager, city tennis court supervisor, 1949; and Lee Dienst, social committee, Westgate Tennis Club.

Hilltoppers who are members of the club are Robert Batson, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Bigler, Lee Dienst, Chester Fair, James Hagerty, Francis Harvey, John Hipple, Sanford Kaufman, Roger Lindley, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Longstreth, Betty Longstreth, Bob and Everett Longstreth, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merriman, Ralph Moore, Patty Moore, Leo Phillips, Harvey Postlethwait, William E. Sherker, Pat Tonti and Paul Walton.

Junior members are Danny Bunner, Bob Gilhan, Don Jackson, Jack O'Brien, Larry O'Brien, Jerry Ruffner, Donna Spring and Corinne Taylor.

Nick Barack, city recreation director, has sent a letter of appreciation to the tourney committee for its efforts to encourage participation in this sport.

B. of L. E. Group Will Hold Picnic

The annual picnic of Mary E. Cassell Division 52, GIA to the B of LE will be held Tuesday, July 19, at the cottage of Mrs. Edna Cullman at Buckeye Lake.

Casserole dinner will be served at 5 p. m. All members invited to spend the day and evening. For directions or further information call Mrs. P. C. Southworth, 32 Powhatan-av, JO. 3963.

Briggsdale And Brown Road

By Mrs. Harry C. Downing

Ethel Vass, 1706 Little-av, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given Friday evening, July 1 at the home of her sister, Mrs. Buster Boggs of the Little-av address. Miss Vass' marriage to Larry Eugene Martin will take place July 30.

The Weed Fighters 4-H Club met June 30 at David Nardin's home, 1029 Brown-rd. A report was given by the demonstration committee. Roll call was taken and a report was made on the progress of members' gardens. Secretary's report was read and dues were paid. There was 100% attendance. After the meeting was dismissed, refreshments were served and games were played. On July 7, the club held its meeting at the home of Sonny Fannin, 1688 Jackson-av. The boys are planning to get 4-H jackets. The secretary's report was given and dues were collected. Members decided to have a picnic July 14. Again there was 100% attendance.

Mrs. Dorothy Pack, 2042 Eakin-rd, returned home Monday afternoon from St. Anthony's Hospital where she underwent surgery last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Martin, 917 Whitethorne-av, enjoyed a three-day camping and fishing trip recently at Alma Lake, Wellston, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fannin, Jackie and Sonny, 1688 Jackson-av, attended the Faulkner family reunion, Sunday, July 3, held at the Earl Faulkner home in Zanesville.

Rev. J. Arva Shirer, former pastor of Briggsdale and Jackson Chapel Methodist Churches, and Mrs. Shirer arrived in Los Angeles, Cal., last Friday morning to visit their daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Vastoff, and her three children. Enroute home they will be guests of Rev. Shirer's sisters, Mary and Rose Shirer, Colorado Springs. After Aug. 6 the Shirers will be residents of the Ohio Masonic Home in Springfield, where Rev. Shirer will officiate as chaplain of the home. Their many friends here extend their congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wolfe, 2130 Whitehead-rd, were hosts to friends and relatives Saturday evening in honor of the wedding anniversaries of the following five couples: Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe's 25th, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Grimsley, Vadis-pl, 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cox, 20th, Mr. and Mrs. George Seymour of Bremen, 21st, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Salvatore, Northwest-blvd, the 12th. MR. and MRS. LEWIS TROUT

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Thomas, 143 S. Burns-av, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Norma Jean, to Lewis Milton Trout, son of Mrs. Grace Trout, 400 S. Richardson-av, on June 26 at 3 p. m. at the Hilltop Church of Christ. Rev. J. Carl Jordon officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Ferns, palms, and white baskets of gladioli and chrysanthemums formed a decorative setting for the wedding. The bride escorted to the altar by her father, wore a white slipper satin gown, styled with a sweetheart neckline, a fitted bodice and long tight sleeves coming to points over the hands. A fingertip veil of imported nylon illusion, white pearls and ear rings completed her costume. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

She was attended by Miss Miriam Beney, maid of honor, who wore a nile green marquisette over taffeta gown, styled with a full skirt and a rounded yoke neckline. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink rose buds, white chrysanthemums and baby breath.

Bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Kellermayer of Stryker, and Miss Ruth Bilzner of Toledo. The two bridesmaids were identical gowns of orchid marquisette over taffeta, styled with tucked bodices and full skirts. Both carried colonial bouquets of yellow roses, chrysanthemums and baby breath.

Best man for the ceremony was Mr. Robert Trout of Coshocton, brother of the groom. Ushers were Richard T. Thomas, Ernest Hayman, and Richard Rickmuth.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the church for 200 guests.

The new Mrs. Trout is a graduate of West High School and Capital University. She has taught school in Bloomingdale for the past year.

Mr. Trout is a graduate of New Lexington High School and is an employe of the Auditor of State.

Following a wedding trip to Cleveland and the Great Lakes, the couple now reside at 460 S. Richardson-av.

Forster-Leonard Vows Are Exchanged In Ceremony at Logan, Sunday, June 26

The altar of the Evangelical United Brethren Church of Logan, O., was beautifully decorated with a background of palms and fern, baskets of white gladioli and two seven-branch candelabras for the afternoon wedding Sunday, June 26, uniting Miss Alice Mae Forster and Cpl. Thomas Edwin Leonard.

Miss Forster is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wolfe of Logan, formerly of the Hilltop. Mr. Leonard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie W. McIntosh, 200 N. Grener-rd.

The open church ceremony read at 3:30 p. m. by Rev. A. N. Grueser was preceded by a half-hour of nuptial music sung by Miss Jo Ann Helschman and played by Mr. Carl Spence, Logan organist.

Escorted down the aisle on the arm of her father, the bride wore a Victorian gown of traditional white satin. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a heart-shaped satin tiara. Her bridal bouquet was Joanna Hill roses centered with gardenias.
